

Same Building; New Faces

Sullivan-Harrell Hall, long accustomed to registration lines, sees new faces in this one as the freshmen sign up for the first time. Slightly over 200 freshmen passed these tables last Thursday in one of the largest registrations to date.

Program Plans Call For Student Talent, TV Show

Within the next few weeks Millsaps will present its first radio program for this year. Plans call for more student talent in the writing and the presentation of the programs.

The possibilities of also presenting a TV program are being investigated.

A survey made last year showed that many students are interested in a radio and TV guild. All freshmen and transfer students who are interested in such work are requested to watch the bulletin boards for more information. Students with experience in radio and TV work are especially needed.

Meal Tickets Now Accepted In Grill; Manager Announces

Student meal tickets will be accepted in the grill as well as in the cafeteria beginning Friday, September 19, according to Mr. M. J. Marley, manager of the cafeteria and grill, and Mr. James W. Wood, Millsaps business manager.

For the first time in three years students can use their meal tickets for any edible purchase in the grill. Pencils, books, etc. will still require cash or check.

Grill hours are from 7:00 a.m. till 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday and 7:00 a.m. till noon on Saturday. It does not open on Sunday.

Registration Nears 700; Figures Not Yet Complete

On September 15, with approximately two weeks to go before the deadline, registration figures at Millsaps were nearing 700, announced the Registrar, Paul Hardin.

Registration is not complete at this date and exact figures will be released later.

Registration of the freshmen and transfers is nearly completed, the registrar states, but upperclassmen returnees are still in the process of signing up and are not entirely included in the figures. Also not included are registrants for night school.

Nearly three hundred of the above figures are freshmen and transfer registrants.

Registration last year for the first semester was 687, with approximately 160 freshmen as opposed to the 200 this year. This semester shows the largest number of new enrollees in recent years.

Freshmen, Transfers Attend Reception At President's Home

On Monday, September 7, at 8:00 o'clock a reception was held at the President's home for all freshmen and transfer students. After being received by the staff, the students were served punch and cookies on the terrace.

The following day, September 8, small informal coke parties were given for the new students. These parties allowed President and Mrs. Finger to get to know each student personally.

Millsaps Administration Announces Seven Faculty Changes For 1953-54

Seven faculty changes for the fall semester have been announced by the administration.

In the philosophy department the Rev. Robert E. Bergmark replaces Dr. Bond Fleming while he is on a nine-month sabbatical leave. The Rev. Bergmark formerly was pastor in Methodist Churches in San Antonio and Hunt, Texas. He attended Emory University and received his Bachelor of Sacred Theology from Boston University of Theology. Expecting to complete his Ph.D. work, he will attend Boston University this summer. He is married and has three children.

Mr. John T. Zumbro, professor of economics, steps into the place of Dr. Jack Price. A native Tennessean, he was awarded his B. S. from Middle Tennessee State College and his M. A. from the University of Tennessee. He has taught at Carson Newman College, Jefferson City, Tennessee, and at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville.

Mr. Frank M. Laney, Jr., fills the position in the history department left vacant by Prof. Raymond Platig. Born in Indianola, Mississippi, Mr. Laney is a veteran of World War II and of the Korean conflict. From Ole Miss he received his B. A. and from the University of Virginia his M. A. He is a member of the Southern Historical Society and of Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic fraternity.

A new biology professor is Dr. William J. Brett, member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He formerly was a teaching assistant at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, where he received his M. S. in zoology. From Northwestern University in Evanston, Illinois, he was awarded his Ph.D.

Miss Jean Sain fills the position formerly held by Miss Frances Decell, instructor of physical education. Miss Sain received her B. A. in education from Ole Miss, where she later was a physical

First Meeting Held For Band; Rehearsals Set

The organizational meeting of the Millsaps Band was held on September 15 at 11:00 according to the director, Mr. Harold Avery.

A good turn-out for the meeting was reported, with more expected when rehearsals begin.

The band members present voted to hold rehearsals on Monday night from 8:00 until 9:30.

The first rehearsal will be held on September 21 at 8:00 in the band room below Founders Hall.

Mr. Avery announces that all students who have played an instrument are urged to attend.

New Students See "Campus Closeup" As Part Of Orientation

"Campus Closeup," the movie about Millsaps College, was shown for the first time as a part of the school's orientation program for the freshmen and transfer students.

Planned last fall, the movie was produced by the Department of Public Relations. It was filmed by the Southwest Pictures Company.

"Campus Closeup" presents the events of a day which contribute to the building of character and preparation for useful citizenship in the life of a Millsaps student. Written by Jim Livesay, Director of Public Relations, the color picture was directed and narrated by Lance Goss, Professor of Speech and Drama.

Clements Crook, an alumnus of Millsaps and Director of Music Education in Meridian, furnished the musical background for the movie.

Here We Go Again

The traditional freshman hair-cutting ritual goes modern as regulation electric clippers are used on the majority of the newcomers this year. In years past, everything from finger-nail scissors to grass shears have been used.

New Innovations Added At Pix

Something new has definitely been added out Morgan Center way. The Pix Theatre is under the new management of Mr. Elliot R. Edwards, and he announces great things for the coming year.

Appearing in this issue and every issue of The Purple and White is an advertisement listing the following week's schedule of featured attractions at the Pix. This list can be easily clipped out and saved for later reference. Also in each ad there is a valuable coupon admitting two students for the price of one.

This sounds great to us but there is more to come. In the very near future Mr. Edwards plans a series of stunt nights on the Pix stage local sponsored by merchants. Also other contests are being formulated for the benefit of Millsaps students in the near future.

Why is this new manager interested in us? He's a college man himself and likes to work with college students. He is a journalism major from La. Tech in Ruston, La.; he has worked with Richards Theatre circuit for 13 years. He has successfully worked with college students in Dallas, Los Angeles, Ruston and Baton Rouge.

So our advice to you is to keep up with the ads to keep up with Mr. Edwards.

"Dear Folks: Please send me four hundred dollars at once; the school is bankrupt and each student has to pay double tuition. Kindly make the check out to me. Your son, Elmer."

The Vicar: "I want to speak to you about the milk you've been delivering lately, Fisher. We don't require it for christenings."

Major Chances Look Dim For Delta State Opener

By Johnny Morris

With the situation looking "anything but bright" the Millsaps Majors began Monday to prepare a gridiron machine for the coming season. Coach Bartling, usually optimistic over his team's chances, has joined the bandwagon of coaches reaching for the crying towel in a big way.

Some forty candidates reported at the beginning of the season and among them were 18 lettermen from the 1952 squad, and one numeral winner back from the 1950 aggregation.

several severe jolts as practice sessions opened. Three lettermen and several veteran non-lettermen who were heavily counted on to bolster the line failed to report. Two of the lettermen were tackles and their departure dealt the Majors' weakest spot a severe blow. The third letterman, a guard, quit because of a part-time job.

Bartling has been shifting players about to try to remedy the weaknesses. Bennie Kirkland, an end, has been moved to tackle, and Tom Prewitt, a fullback and end last year, has been tried at both guard and tackle.

The Majors' opener with Delta State is only one week away on September 26 at Tiger stadium. No time was wasted in getting down to full tempo workouts as several short scrimmage sessions were held last week.

The bright spot is the Major backfield, where seven lettermen and several of the most promising newcomers are playing.

Glenn Cain and Red Powell have the quarterback situation well in hand, and Hardy Nall will be counted on for action by mid-season. The halfbacks are being led by Tommy Parker, Sammy Joe Glorioso, Walter Waldrop, and Billy Greenlee, all lettermen. The fullback slot is well taken care of by returning letterman and most valuable player for last year, John Lowrey.

In spite of registering, paying, book buying, Rush Week, and all other frantic pastimes, it certainly is wonderful to be back at Millsaps. Everything appears to be much the same as I left it, with, of course, the inevitable new faces and bald heads.

Someday I am going to force the passage of a rule requiring compulsory name tags for all freshmen boys. I have yet to learn the knack of distinguishing one from the other until their hair grows out. I hope it will not be held against me if I greet all freshmen boys with simply "Hi."

The old routine is rather difficult to get into again. Classes meeting, errands, seem almost too much after a leisurely summer, well, rather leisurely.

A grand attempt to buck up my sagging spirits was made by all the Millsaps students this summer who were married, pinned, engaged, etc. I certainly appreciate it after the long dull season we had.

W. E. and Diane
We'll cover the marriages of students first: Diane Brown, Chi O, and W. E. Ayers, Pike, were married on June 10, in Greenville, home town of both. W. E. is a senior this year, and Diane is teaching in Jackson.

Sue and Doxy
Sue Campbell, Phi Mu, and Doxy Fisher, Lambda Chi, were married on August 30, in Hernando, Sue's home town. Doxy is from Jackson and is a senior this year.

Sue and Dave
Sue Lott, Chi O, and Dave Powell, Sig, were married on September 5, in Belzoni, which Sue calls home. Dave is from Gulfport and a senior, Sue is a junior this year.

Jo and Clayton
Jo Nall, junior from Jackson and Clayton Overton, also from Jackson became engaged this summer. Clayton is a KA and is attending medical school at Ole Miss. Jo is a KD.

Marianne and Jim
Marianne McCormack, sophomore Beta Sig, and Jim Eskridge, Lambda Chi, are also newly engaged. Jim graduated in June and is from Holly Springs, and Marianne is from Corinth.

Tommy and Frances

Banquet Is Held For YWCA Big And Little Sisters; Give Program

The Y. W. C. A. held its annual Big and Little Sister Banquet on September 9 in the cafeteria.

A supper of sandwiches, potato chips, ice cream, and Coca Cola's was served.

Entertainment was featured with Lucy Robinson as mistress of ceremonies. Lucy Lee Jones played mood music on the piano and Ruth Ann Pearson and Edna Khayat sang. Ivey Wallace did a tap dance and Carleen Durham and Dixie Windborn danced the Charleston.

The program concluded with a model meeting of the Y. cabinet, with Ann McInvale presiding.

Faculty members in the receiving line greet new students during the reception held at President Finger's home last week.

All Four Sororities Present Parties Honoring Prospective New Members

During the past week the four sororities on the campus held formal and informal parties in honor of the rushees.

Beta Sigma Omicron

In their Monday's party, the Beta Sigs followed a Chinese theme. Marianne McCormack starred in a skit entitled "Confucius's Big Problem." With her in the cast were Carol Poole, Ann McElroy, Doris Wilkerson, Barbara Walker, and Sybil Foy.

Chinese Effect

A far eastern effect was created by the use of lanterns and pillows on the floor. On the door was a sign with a BSO emblem and a Chinese tapestry decorated one wall.

For refreshments iced tea and cookies were served and tiny umbrellas were given as favors. Name tags were shaped like miniature maps of China.

Chi Omega

Chi Omega entertained the rushees Monday afternoon with a birthday party honoring the Chi Delta chapter on its 20th birthday. The guests were presented with miniature birthday cakes as name tags, and tiny pink and white baskets. They were greeted by the members, who were dressed as children.

Birthday Decorations

The center of the decorations was a huge three tiered birthday cake with pink and white icing.

For entertainment the Chi Omegas presented a skit from "Mother Goose" and various party games. Individual cakes topped with pink candles, and ice cream were served for refreshments.

Glimpses of French mademoiselles and whiffs of sweet perfume were caught at the KD house. After the guests had been presented with miniature perfume bottles for name tags and black satin programs had been passed on silver platters, the entertainment was begun.

The Kappa Delta Chorus opened and Edna Khayat sang "The Man I Love." Mademoiselle Mackie told the girls of charms perfume holds for men as models testified to the truth of her words.

The guests were served ginger ale and finger sandwiches.

On Tuesday Phi Mu's entertained with a Club Carnation party.

Guests were given top hats as name tags, and favors were silver menus topped with pink carnations. Audrey Jennings was MC of a radio program skit in which Anna Galloway and Loretta Wells each entertained with a song routine. Following this, Pip Thompson, Boots Carpenter, and Carleen Durham, sang.

Guests were seated at tables decorated with pink cloths and pink candles. A large pink carnation was also used to carry out the theme.

Pan-Hellenic Opens Rush Week With Tea For Rushees

The Annual Pan-Hellenic Tea was held on September 12, from 4:30 until 6:00 in the living room of Whitworth Hall. This marked the beginning of Rush Week for the sororities, and all the girls who were interested in joining a sorority were invited to attend.

Greeted at Door

Guests were greeted at the door by Peggy Faulkner, Phi Mu, President of Pan-Hellenic. She introduced the girls to Miss Mildred Morehead, Dean of Women, Minnie Farlow, Chi Omega, Dee Ford, Kappa Delta, and Mary Grantham, Beta Sigma Omicron.

Other members of Pan-Hellenic were Ann Carter, who presided at the guest book, and Jo Glynn Hughes, Shirley Fritz, and Janella Lansing at the punch bowl.

Parties were held through Thursday by each sorority and pledging will be held tomorrow night.

Jo Glynn Hughes, acting as cigarette girl, passed out candy cigarettes. Pink lemonade and cookies were served.

The Editor's Desk

by Eddie Gossard

As has been stated before by editors of this paper as their turn comes, the writing of a "first" column seems to present a particularly difficult problem.

There are a number of developments that must be mentioned in this issue of the paper, and it would seem at first glance that no trouble at all would be experienced in filling a column with appropriate comments. However, and here's the rub, all of them suddenly seem to deserve different treatment than that of an editor's column.

Perhaps the trouble is that far too many of the changes are too subtle to be pointed out in black and white type. There are some definite changes, however, which the returning upperclassmen will notice and which the freshmen and transfers, of course, will not.

As always, there have been improvements in the physical plant. They may not be major changes; they may not be even as much as the students or the administration feel are needed, but they are improvements and not to be taken completely for granted. There is new paint in and on many of the buildings over the campus, with probably the most improvement showing in the men's residence halls. Paint has been added, inside and out, and new desks have been installed in all the rooms. The auditorium in Murrah is getting a face-lifting with a view to a lounge in the rear portion. The new office for the Dean of Students is another new development.

Not all the changes are of architectural nature. We have on the campus this year several new professors. There are some changes in the academic set-up and there are some new courses.

But the real change is something that cannot be so easily defined. We began to sense something of it when a group of students and professors gathered just before the freshmen arrived on the campus to work out final orientation plans and to delegate responsi-

Many Religious Activities Are Available To Students

As a new Millsaps year begins, and as social activities and sports and studies claim increasingly the time of the students, it would be well to enumerate the religious activities that are available to Millsaps students.

First mention should, by all that's right, go to the chapel services each Thursday. These services are compulsory, but should be thought of not just as something that must be attended, but a real opportunity for spiritual enrichment.

Other activities available to students on the campus are Vespers which are held Monday through Friday at 6:00, and Morning Watch at 7:15 each morning.

Also on the campus are the YMCA and YWCA groups, the WCW, and, for ministerial students, the Ministerial League. These activities should be supported by the students. They are for you.

Also available are churches of every denomination in the city of Jackson, who welcome students from the Jackson-area colleges to their congregations and youth groups. Many of these churches are making special efforts to inform the students of their presence and their eagerness to have the students in their services.

Local Churches Invite Students To Activities

Jackson churches have gone out of their way to be nice to the Millsaps students. St. Luke's Methodist church had a punch stand on the campus by Murrah Hall as did First Baptist. St. Luke's also had a roundup party for the religious strays. To start the year off in a festive mood, Capitol Street had a hay ride Saturday night. Galloway, St. Luke's and Capitol Street provided transportation to and from Sunday school and church. Capitol Street had a breakfast for its members before Sunday school and the Galloway young people had a reception after Sunday school. After church each Sunday night, Galloway has an hour of recreation for the college age group.

Many of the other churches in Jackson, although they have had no particular function honoring the college students, welcome you to come and worship with them.

with the new Dean of Students, Dr. J. E. McCracken. He, along with Miss Morehead, Dean of Women, was largely responsible for the expanded orientation program, which we feel was a very valuable and much-needed addition to Millsaps' first-of-the-year activities. Dr. McCracken has been tremendously busy during the past weeks getting ready for the new year, and has at the same time been graciously helpful and friendly to all with whom he has come in contact, old and new students alike. We believe that Millsaps is most fortunate to have him as our Dean of Students and we believe that the student body as a whole already shares this opinion.

MARGUERITE DENNY

Former Student Sails For France On "Queen Mary"

Marguerite Denny, Millsaps graduate and Fullbright scholar, left Jackson recently for New York, where she will join some 200 other Fullbright scholars before embarking for France.

She will sail on the Queen Mary, and will spend a month of orientation training in Paris before going on to Toulouse.

Miss Denny graduated from Millsaps in June, 1953 with highest honors.

Cheerleaders For 1953-54 Chosen By Students At Special Assembly

Millsaps cheerleaders for 1953-54 were elected by the student body in a special chapel meeting held last Tuesday. They are Bobby Myers, Johnny Howell, James Walton, Boots Carpenter, Loretta Wells, and Ivy Wallace.

Preliminary tryouts were held Monday afternoon to choose finalists for the meeting Tuesday. Miss Jean Sain, Professor Paul Hardin, and Coach Sammy Bartling picked the finalists.

Finalists who tried out before the student body were George Hawks, Ike Musslewhite, Marge Eubanks, and Alice Smith, in addition to those elected.

Myers, Howell, Miss Wells, and Miss Wallace were cheerleaders last year.

Four hundred and twenty-five ballots were cast in the election, and were divided as follows: Myers, 354; Howell, 369; Walton, 240; Musslewhite, 232; Hawks, 65; Carpenter, 215; Wells, 315; Wallace, 318; McClenahan, 174; Eubanks, 126; and Smith, 106.

The cheerleaders' first duty was to lead a pep rally after chapel on Thursday. They lead a second rally tonight, and will perform "under fire" for the first time, at the Delta State game tomorrow night.

Women's Workers Elect Officers For New Session

Becky Lovett, Morton, is the 1953-54 president of the Millsaps Women's Christian Workers organization.

Other officers are: Claudette Westerfield, Mendenhall, vice-president; Sara Johnson, Cruger, secretary and treasurer; Wilma Ryan, Benton, social chairman; and Betty Westbrook, Summit, publicity chairman.

The officers met September 21 to formulate plans for the year. Programs including alcohol education, and courtship and marriage will be presented to the members through forums, outside speakers, etc.

Gossard, Head Continue Duties With Capable Staff Members

Eddie Gossard, senior from Meridian, continues to head the Millsaps weekly newspaper, the Purple and White. English major Gossard, who became editor at the beginning of the spring semester last year, will hold this post throughout the fall semester.

The business end of the publication is managed by Sid Head, a senior from Columbia. A ministerial student, his duties will run until the spring semester.

Audrey Jennings, society editor, spotlights campus social life on her page. In her column she informs the readers of pinnings, engagements, weddings, etc. She is a senior pre-med student from Chicago, Illinois.

News highlights are handled by Helen Fay Head, a sophomore English major from Jackson. Helen Fay directs news coverage of college events.

A star varsity basketball player, Johnny Morris is a capable hand at sportswriting. He reports varsity and intramural sports activities.

Roy Epperson, as circulation manager, distributes the copies of the Purple and White about the campus each Friday. At present he is also acting exchange editor, mailing papers for off-campus circulation.

Freshman King And Queen Will Be Crowned Tomorrow

Millsaps annual Freshman Day was set for today, SEB announced early Wednesday morning after a meeting Tuesday night. The annual gag day was set for the Friday before the football game with Delta State and will carry over into Saturday, winding up with a crowning ceremony for the King and Queen of Freshman Day Saturday night between halves of the game.

Nurse Triplett Now In Charge Of Infirmary

Miss Alice Triplett of Clinton is the new campus nurse, replacing Miss Bessie Haney, Miss Triplett has just completed her three years of nurse's training at the Baptist Hospital, and is now working toward her B. S. degree in nursing here at the college.

The Infirmary hours are just as they were last year: 7:45 to 8:45 a. m. and 4:00 to 5:00 p. m. Monday through Friday, 8:30 to 9:30 a. m. on Saturday, and closed on Sunday.

Student Board Holds Meeting; Committees Named

The student Executive Board held its first meeting of the year September 15 at chapel period.

SEB president Tommy Woodard called the meeting to appoint committees to set up the Budget, Freshman Day, and Homecoming

The rules for the day were posted for the freshmen Wednesday and were essentially the same as rules in years past, according to Howell Polk, chairman of the committee for Freshman Day.

Wearing apparel, such as shorts, unmatched shoes, no socks, neckties, and signs, for the boys; and short dresses, no make-up, uncombed hair, and signs for the girls follow the traditional pattern. Also following the usual procedure are the activities: scrubbing the sidewalk in front of Major Millsaps' tomb, carrying upperclassmen's trays in the cafeteria, and similar activities.

This year, for the first time, Freshman Day is to carry over to Saturday, with a pajama parade of the freshmen, along with the band and upperclassmen to take place in downtown Jackson at 2:00 p. m.

Freshmen will attend the game in their pajamas and will sit in a body. Between halves of the game, the Freshman King and Queen, who are to be chosen Friday night, will be crowned.

Day, and to work on setting up tryouts for cheerleader.

Chairman of the Freshman Day Committee was Howell Polk, with Fred Delong and Peggye Falkner also working on the committee.

Howard Cheek was appointed chairman of the finance committee.

Interest In Coming Play Leads To Dramatic History

Back in the dark ages when Millsaps was founded, there was no interest in dramatics among the students or faculty. From 1892 until 1910, Millsaps College lacked any sort of dramatics institution. The 1910 production by the Cap and Gown Dramatics Club, A & M College, at the Century Theater, led by Miss Courtney Clingsham (now a teacher at Central High School in Jackson) inspired a group to organize the first dramatics club.

In 1913 the first actual play was scheduled under the direction of Professor T. G. Noble. The play that was chosen was William Shakespeare's As You Like It. Two performances were planned: one in a natural amphitheater, located on the campus, and the other in Murrah Hall Auditorium. Rain necessitated both performances inside: but, nevertheless, the play was acclaimed as the greatest local talent presentation in the history of the college and the city of Jackson. However, since the clergy of the state had violently protested against the play, it was several years before another dramatic event took place.

With the resignation of Dr. A. A. Kern in 1920, Millsaps received the services of Dr. Milton Christian White. Dr. White did more to firmly establish dramatics than any other person. His first play, Fascinating Fanny, though put on under serious handicaps, was enthusiastically received.

During the next few years many advances were made. In 1928, after a successful production of Nothing But The Truth, the Millsaps Players were awarded a charter by the National dramatics fraternity, Alpha Psi Omega. The Millsaps chapter was the first in the state; today there are nine. Alpha Psi sponsors the awards for the best female performance, the best male performance, and the senior who has done more during his four years. These awards are made at the annual banquet after the play season has closed. The season includes three three-act plays and a series of one-act plays per year. The first three-act play of the year will be The Infernal Machine.

President Of SEB Finds That Millsaps Brings Friends, Fame

This week the Major Major spotlight is focused on Tommy Woodard, a senior sociology major, from Greenville. While at Millsaps Tommy has been active in many different organizations, the Players and the band, just to name a few. His honors include being vice-president of the Ministerial League and treasurer of the Y.W.C.A., representing Millsaps as Senator in the 1951 Youth Congress, and 4 semesters on the Dean's List.

Active in Fraternity

On the social side, Tommy is an active member of Pi Kappa Alpha. In the past he has served as historian, receiving an award at National Convention for the best record, and treasurer of the organization. Tommy is now the new president of the Pikes. "My most enjoyable experiences while at Millsaps were with the fraternity and my many friends."

Though he hasn't planned where he'll go to school next year, Tommy will eventually enter the ministry. When asked why he chose Millsaps he replied, "Because of its smallness—it offers a chance to really know everyone, its wonderful faculty, and the curriculum."

To finish his college career on bright note, Tommy was elected president of the Student Executive Board last semester.

tee. To work with him in setting up the budget were Yeager Hudson, Peggye Falkner, and Edna Khayat.

To have charge of the Social Calendar this year is Julia Allen.

Miss Sain, Coach Bartling, and Professor Hardin were appointed to pick the finalists for cheerleader tryouts which were held Tuesday.

Another meeting of SEB was called for Tuesday night at 7:30 for reports from the committees.

Millsaps Students Not Impressed By Acclaim Of 3-D Productions

Movie makers in Hollywood and throughout the world are joining forces to make 3-D the most cossal event of our century.

Full scale production is in swing to push radio and TV far into the background of the entertainment world. In the opinion of most students the 3-D pictures which have been shown here are not "terrifying" or "terrific". Neither do they rate the terms "gigantic" and "stupendous".

It would seem that Hollywood is cramming 3-D down the throats of the citizens when no one enthusiastically acclaims it. Lately the movies have been guaranteed to "make you jump right out of your skin."

When the proposed changes are made in the movie screen, it will fill the theater and the public will sit in the lobby.

During the month of October the Clyde Beatty Circus will be in Memphis and a motion picture unit from Wayne-Fellows Productions, Inc. will be making movies at the performances.

John Wayne, Number 1 man at the popularity polls, will star in the "Whodunit" by Mickey Spillane. The film will be a mystery story of the circus in Warner All-Media 3-D camera. Watch out for the escaping animals!

Glen Cain registers a negative vote for 3-D. "I think it's very hard on the eyes." Tommy Woodard also agrees with him.

"I never enjoy the movies," said Billy Greenlee, "so far they aren't good at all." Lucy Robinson says, "I can take anything but the knives coming at me!"

Beta Sig and KD Set December 5, 11 On SEB Calendar

December 5 and December 11 are the respective open dates of the BSO and the KD sororities.

These are the only dates which have been set on the SEB calendar. All sororities and fraternities and certain other organizations on the campus may place a date on this calendar with the assurance that no other party will be scheduled on that day.

Julia Allen has been placed in charge of the SEB calendar, and all organizations wishing to place a date on it should contact her.

Band Rehearses; Plays At Supper And Pep Rally

The Millsaps band had its first rehearsal on September 21. The turn-out was good, and the band sounds as if it has great possibilities for the coming year. Dr. McCracken, Mr. Avery, and other members of the faculty have given their earnest support to the band. Rehearsals are held each Monday night from 8:00 until 9:30 in the band room below Founders Hall.

To aid in the pep rally yesterday, the band played several marches. Members of the band supplied music at the supper hour Thursday night.

Deposit Guaranty Gives Loan to Millsaps Student

The Purple and White would like to extend the welcome mat to Mrs. Vester Ashmore; and to offer congratulations, also. If there are those of you . . . the natural-born skeptics . . . who never believe good of anything or anybody, this story will be of particular interest to you.

On August 31, 1953, Mr. Vester Ashmore applied for a loan from the Deposit Guaranty Bank of Jackson to allow his wife to finish college. By some strange coincidence, this was the one hundred thousandth Time-Pay loan issued by the bank. In recognition of the event, the loan was very courteously marked "Paid". You will admit this to be an unusual occurrence but nevertheless, wasn't it a pleasant one.

Mrs. Ashmore has had previous college training at Florence State Teachers College in Florence, Alabama, and taught in Kansas, Alabama. She received extension courses in Spanish from Howard College in Birmingham before moving to Mississippi in 1946. Now, she hopes to complete the requirements for a degree in Elementary Education by the end of the summer of 1954.

School Tradition and Lore Told By Old Millsaps Bell

Standing on its brick pedestal behind the library, the Millsaps bell remains a connecting link with the past although it has long been silent. After banging around the campus for many years, the historic old Victory Bell has at last settled down.

Tradition says that the old bell has been in use since the Civil War days. Some stories about the bell are a little hazy, and there is no evidence that all of them are true, but the inscription on the side of the bell tells of its beginning: "presented to the First M. E. Church, South, Lake Charles, La., by the Sunday School, 1900." Several years later the church burned and the bell was given to Dr. A. F. Watkins, then president of the college, and was mounted on a wooden scaffold beside Murrah Hall.

According to older members of the faculty, it was never used as a regular class bell, but was used principally to call group meetings in pre-fraternity days; to call meetings of the literary societies; often, to gather the crowd for a basketball game; and, sometimes, to proclaim a Major victory.

In 1933 the gym mysteriously burned, and the same time our bell was silenced. Six years later ODK took upon themselves the task of making a few much needed campus improvements; but when the sidewalks had been constructed and the rubbish cleared away, the old bell was left lying at the side of Murrah, a target for trash, rocks, and bottles.

Several years later, the bell was again remounted on a wooden scaffold, only to have marauders from Clinton pull it from its stand on the eve of the annual ball game. The Chocs swooped off a truck, painted in their warpaint and whopped it up by tumbling the bell to the ground, raiding Murrah Hall, and pulling up many shrubs and small trees.

The bell lay on the ground until the fall of 1947 when under the sponsorship of the Purple and White and Editors Carl Guernsey and Ralph Hutto, a campaign was started to get the bell remounted on a brick and concrete base. With the slogan of "Shell out for the bell" the students and alumnae did shell out. In the same year, Mr. R. E. Hobgood, Sr., Millsaps alumnus, and the Home Builders Supply Company of Jackson remounted the bell.

Today the bell still-stands as a constant reminder of the spirit of Millsaps.

Disease Strikes Millsaps Causing Baldheads Among Freshman Boys

Bald heads are here again (but not to stay we hope!) Seems as though that annual malady which afflicts most college freshmen boys has again struck the Millsaps campus—in epidemic proportions. This disease (commonly called shears and/or razors) overcomes all types of hair—curly, straight, thick or thin. Occasionally a stray curl or clump of hair will escape—but never enough to be helpful to the individual.

Time was when the freshmen got their heads shaved again when the Choctaws beat the Majors in football. That, however, is a thing of the past as the Chocs (pardon the expression) don't win anymore.

Yes, gone are the days of the curls and thick hair, but with careful attention daily applications of hair growing tonic, and nightly massages, a sprig of hair will again appear. And he who was the shameful owner of a bald dome will become the proud possessor of HAIR.

The neighbors were complaining of the racket Mrs. Jones' husband was making. "All the time he goes around cackling like a chicken," they griped.

"I know," Mrs. Jones said. "We get tired of it too. Sometimes we think he's not in his right mind."

"But can't you do something for him? Can't you cure him?"

"Oh, yes, I suppose we could. But we do need the eggs."

"I notice you put your biggest apples on top. 'Why?' asked the cynical customer. 'For the same reason you comb your longest hairs over your bald spot,' replied the grocer grimly."

At last a topic of conversation has replaced Rush Week—that is, two topics. Freshman Day and football season are with us, and if you think it's not a relief to talk about something besides Rush, you have been in hibernation for years.

Rush week—the very word conjures up visions of forgotten last-minute items, frantic scrambles, eternal smiles in what is desperately hoped is a friendly manner, unbelievably wild searching for a name to fit a vaguely familiar face, and absolutely no sleep or food, with the exception of punch and cookies. Isn't it wonderful to talk of other things?

Yeah Freshmen

Tomorrow night, of course, opens Millsaps' football season with Delta State and many festivities are planned. It certainly seems that it should add up to a big Millsaps weekend.

Freshman Day seems to have been extended to Freshman Weekend this year, with the probable result that Freshmen will be even more fond of it than usual. The pajama parade promises a little variety in what had become a rather dull episode. I can hardly wait to see the contestants for freshman King and Queen. This attraction is all that keeps me going these first few weeks.

Change of Season

The appearance of cold weather, and with it colds, flu, and other interesting illnesses brings a feeling that school is really starting. Somehow summer clothes and 100 degree heat just don't seem like fall—our cooler weather definitely does.

As a matter of fact—I know it's fall for I already have my first sore throat of the season. Those voices that sound like the owners

Millsaps "Y" Sponsors Group Entertainment For Whole Campus

On September 9, the Y.W.C.A. entertained the Millsaps students with an "All College Mixer."

Joan Wilson lead the group in fellowship singing and Roy Price entertained with his talented guitar playing and singing. Arthur O'Neil lead the group in various folk games, after which punch and cookies were served to all.

New Home For Commercial Department Is Clark House

Some things go unnoticed on our campus not because students are not interested but because these things are not brought to their attention. One such, if it may be called "thing" for the present, is a white frame building next door to Elsinore Hall.

Up until this year students have not had much use for this building. With the opening this semester it has been brought to our attention as the Clark House. This house is being used or commercial department work. The building has had a complete renovation this summer; paint, partitions knocked out, and in general, a face lifting. The results, three nice classrooms.

Purchased from Jackson College

But before some of the present students came to know Millsaps, the Clark House was known and in use. If you like history, let's dig up a few things that will be of interest to you.

In 1901 Major Millsaps purchased the land from Jackson College to make Millsaps campus the size it is today. Jackson College formerly owned the land on which the Clark House is located.

Banquets Held By Greeks In Honor Of Their Pledges

Banquets, honoring new pledges of fraternities and sororities on the campus, were held at various places immediately following pledging. The fraternities gave theirs September 18 and the sororities on September 19.

Fraternities

The Kappa Alpha's held their banquet at downtown Primos and the Kappa Sig's were at the Rotisserie. The Primos banquet of the Lambda Chi's featured Mrs. Tommy Naylor of the State Board of Education as the speaker. Mr. Pat Clendinning, Director of Education at the First Baptist Church spoke at the Pike banquet, held at the Walthall Hotel.

Sororities

The Beta Sig's and Chi O's both gave their banquets at Le Fleur's. Mrs. Texas Campbell, National KD Vice-President, spoke to the KD's at their banquet, held at the Rotisserie. The Phi Mu's also selected the Rotisserie for their banquet.

Millsaps Girls Award Prizes During Annual State Horse Show

The annual Mississippi State Horse Show, which was held on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of this week, had a number of Millsaps girls participating as Ribbon Girls. Edna Khayat also appeared as Miss Hospitality.

Those who were included in the program of presenting awards were Ann Anderson, Worth Bennett, Marion Swayze, Ann Ragan, and Esther Coker, all members of Chi Omega, and from Jackson, and Peggy Falkner, Phi Mu, from Yazoo City.

Phi Mu's To Hold An Informal Party At Their House Tonight

Tonight at 7 o'clock Phi Mu's will entertain their dates with an informal party at the Phi Mu house.

Entertainment for the party will be dancing, bridge, and other games. Boots Carpenter is in charge of the refreshments.

Miss Mildred Morehead, Professor Paul Hardin, and Mrs. James Alridge, Phi Mu alum, have been asked as chaperones.

Edna Khayat, Millsaps Senior, Is Chosen Miss Hospitality For State

Edna Khayat, a senior at Millsaps this year, was chosen this summer as Mississippi's Miss Hospitality. She was selected from 46 girls representing as many towns in the state. The contest was held during the week of July 14 through 18.

Edna, who is a member of Kappa Delta sorority and is secretary of SEB, attended the D. A. V. convention in Kansas City on August 24 and appeared in the American Legion convention parade on August 31 in connection with the contest.

Washington, D. C., will be the site of Edna's next trip, during October. This will be a gathering of all Mississippi senators and representatives for a group of parties.

Sigma Lambda Has Weekly Coffee Hour Thursday Afternoon

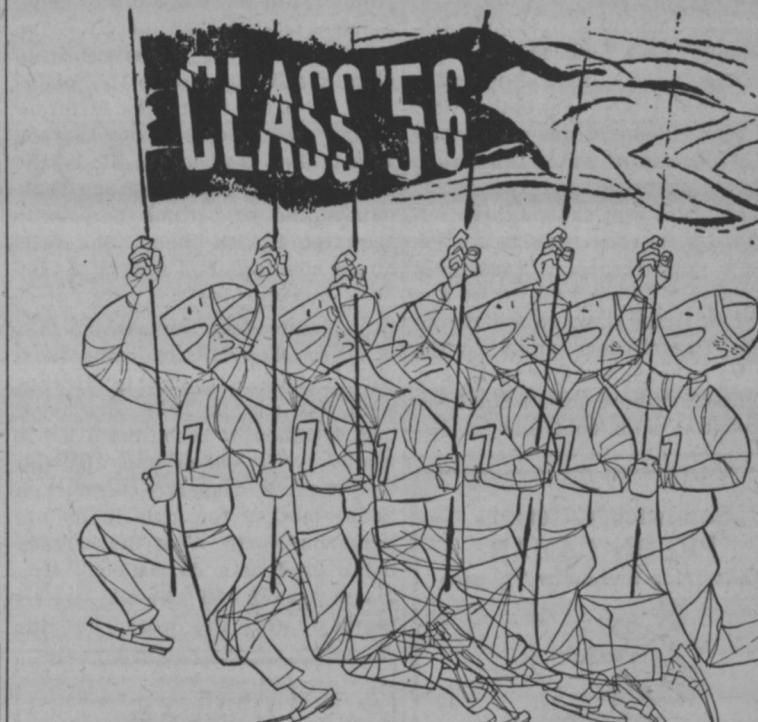

The Sigma Lambda honorary leadership fraternity for women held a coffee hour yesterday in the living room of Galloway Hall. Sigma Lambda took this opportunity to welcome the freshmen. Present were members of the fraternity, the faculty, and members of the student body.

A similar coffee hour will be held every Thursday from 4:30 to 5:30 P.M. All faculty members and students are cordially invited to attend this period of fellowship.

MAJORS OPEN SEASON TOMORROW

Ready For Statesmen

Ready to go against the strong Delta State squad Saturday night is 190 pound fullback John Lowry, of McComb. Lowry, a sophomore, was voted Most Valuable Player last year by the Major squad. He was one of the leading ground-gainers in last year's hard-played loss to the Statesmen.

Cain, Powell, Dunbar Chosen "M"-Club Heads For 1953-54

On Monday, September 21, the Millsaps "M" Club met, elected officers, and made plans for the coming year. The "M" Club is made up of boys who have lettered in any of the three major sports—football, basketball, and baseball—about thirty-five members.

Plans are being made to sponsor dances after the home ball games. The SEB is co-operating, so the "M" dances will be the only ones on the social calendar.

The "M" Club has a meeting every Tuesday during the chapel period, and all members are urged to attend. The club is one of the larger organizations on the campus, and could be the most influential.

Freshmen are going to be encouraged to attend all home games, particularly the Delta State game. Those Freshmen not attending will be punished in some inconspicuous way.

The freshmen are being encouraged to attend games in an

Greenlee to Be Intramural Head; Play Starts Soon

Boys intramural athletics are scheduled to get underway in the near future with speedball the first sport to be played this year.

Billy Greenlee, a sophomore, will be in charge of the program. He will, with the help of coach Sammy Bartling, set up the program, schedule, and provide officials for the games.

Each of the four fraternities, the Independents, and the Ministers will field teams this year as usual, with points going toward possession of the big cup awarded to the group with the best overall total for the year in speedball, basketball, softball, tennis and golf.

The game schedule has not yet been drawn up. A meeting will probably be held later in the week to discuss further plans. The time for all games played will probably be four o'clock, as it has been in the past.

The Pike nine will be fighting hard to hold the title they captured last year, while the Sigs, Lambda Chi's, and K. A.'s all show promises of having much stronger teams.

Millsaps Meets Statesmen In Opener For Both Teams

An under-dog, but dead game Major team will meet a strong Delta State squad in Tiger Stadium tomorrow night at 8:00. The game will lift the lid off the season for both teams.

Coach Gene Chadwick of Delta State has nearly the same team back that scored the season-opening 28-0 victory over the Majors last year. Twenty-two men on a thirty-seven man squad are holdovers from last year's team. Of the 15 newcomers listed, only one is a freshman and the majority are junior college transfers.

The only loss from last year's backfield for the Statesmen was quarterback James Ratcliff. To fill his position, Coach Chadwick has James Drewry of Kossuth and Gip Garner, a junior college transfer. Returning to the backfield are leading ground gainer Clarence Wilkinson (190) at left half; Leonard Cain, (a cousin of Millsaps quarterback Glenn Cain) who had the highest per try yardage (7.7 yards a try) last year at right half; and Paul Prestege (190) at fullback.

At end, Tom Holloway, a regular last year, returns along with Franklin Talbert and Dean Padovan, a returned veteran who played with the Statesmen before his hitch in the service.

Last year's tackles are back intact; George Groner (230) and Audrey Rozzell (210). Guard will be divided among returnee Willie Goodwin, and junior college transfers Wille Watson and Otis Corollo. Goodwin is a 210 pounder; Watson tips the scales at 190; and Corollo weighs 175. Returning at center is Jack White, of Louisville.

Coach Sammy Bartling of Millsaps expects little help from the new substitution rule "to help the small schools" and has been juggling his line-up since the opening practice.

The loss of ace halfback Tommy Parker dims the Majors' otherwise bright backfield picture. Parker is out with an injured hip and will probably be lost to the team until mid-season. John Little punting specialist and starting end last year, has a twisted ankle and his chances of playing against the Statesmen is slim.

Even with the limited substitution rule, the starters will need relief from second and third team players. Expected to see a lot of action as reserves are Bobby Joe Smith, end and tackle; centers Prewitt and O'Neil; and rugged guard-tackle Mit Roby.

Four men are fighting for the vacancy left by the injured Parker. Hardy Nall, Terry Moore, Billy Greenlee, and Walter Waldrop have all been working at the half-back position. Nall, converted quarterback, is expected to get the starting nod.

Expected to start at end are Bennie Kirkland, letterman linebacker last year, and either John Little or freshman Eddie Khayat. The tackles will probably be Cecil Tranthum and Jackie Mann. Tom Boone and Johnny Awad, lettermen from last year's squad, will again handle the guard positions. Expected to start at center is Charles Catledge, reserve last year and high school all-star center of two years ago.

In the backfield it will be Glenn Cain at quarterback, Sammy Joe Glorioso at right half, John Lowry at fullback, and probably Hardy Nall at left half. All except Nall were regulars last year.

The Majors have been working hard during the past week to get ready for the Statesmen, and expect to give the strong Delta squad a hard battle. Last year's game was a much closer contest than the score indicated.

The Editor's Desk

by Eddie Gossard

Things seem to be well underway at Millsaps for the beginning of a new school year, which, believe it or not, is already two weeks old.

We trust that, by this time, everybody has his books and has his nose to the grindstone in an effort to "keep up," to quote our President. We should like to add our "amen" to that admonition to keep up in class work. Of course it's impossible, but it's a good thought, anyway. When we were freshmen, a facetious upperclassman advised us not to let our studies interfere with our extra-curricular activities. So far, we haven't.

The campus spirit we mentioned last week is still with us. All indications are that it will stay that way.

Many last minute plans are being made at this writing for the game with Delta State tomorrow night. Many of them you will already know of. We have been in need of a full program such as being planned this week for football weekends for some time. The students have felt the lack of such activities; it is for us now to make the most of them as they arise, and to help formulate new plans and programs for coming games. Any ideas and any volunteers for work along this line will be cheerfully accepted by the student body officers. Dean McCracken, Miss Morehead, and any of the student body officers will be glad to act as sounding boards for the absorption of such ideas into the places where they will do the most good.

With the semester two weeks old, the Purple and White Staff is slowly getting down to the grind of putting out a paper every week. Any criticisms will be welcomed; the P&W is for the students and not for the staff. What you want is what we will try to produce. Incidentally, while we're on the subject, the staff is for you, too, and not for those strange people known as upperclassmen alone, or for those who happened to be left over from last year. If you'd like to work, we'd like to have you.

We have a suggestion which is made in complete seriousness, even though it may seem a bit whimsical. Several people have said to us the following immortal words: "I hope it gets cold enough to be like football weather for the game Saturday night." Now, everybody may not feel that way. Perhaps you like to go to football games in short-sleeved shirts and feel the balmy summer breezes blowing across your steaming back. We are not speaking to you. In fact we may never speak to you. What a very eccentric (and probably subversive) attitude to take! For those of you who like a tang of fall in the air, and a bit of a nip in the breeze with your football, we have a proposal. At this writing, the weather was warm; as you read this, it may have become quite cold; if so, the process has already worked. Immediately after reading this (we trust somebody reads it), concentrate completely for thirty seconds on just exactly the type of chilly weather that you want for the ball game tomorrow night. Without a doubt this mass concentration will have some effect on the weatherman—who knows? We don't think it has ever been tried before. But, after concentrating there are two important things to do:

First: turn to the person nearest you and say, "I sure hope it

Let's Have Some Fun

A project that had many backers two years ago, and which has been neglected recently, is that of campus recreational facilities, and of campus recreation itself.

It is our opinion that sufficient informal recreation on the campus for the students would solve several of what we consider "problems" in the realm of campus spirit.

As we have said, several times already this year, the campus spirit is fine right now. It has been fine at the beginning of the year before and has dropped below the point that makes one proud of his school. Now, at the beginning of a fine, new year is the time to think about sustaining that spirit through every possible means.

We feel that one of the best possible means is to provide an adequate informal recreational program.

Work along this line was done when a recreation room in Elsinore Hall was set aside as a recreation room. The catch was that Elsinore is no place for a recreation room, and no one particularly cared to go there simply to do the thing that were available. That was the second trouble. Bridge playing and listening to records were about the only things that could be done there. It was a good try, but it just wasn't enough.

Now there are plans underway to provide another, student lounge in the back of Murrah Auditorium. Fine, again, but again, not enough. We have lounges, and one more won't add particularly to the activities that can be carried on there.

It would seem to us that what are needed are not places but activities. At one time, the YWCA cabinet had charge of seeing that there were recreational facilities such as ping-pong, paddle tennis, shuffle board, folk dance music, and the like available each Friday night in the gym for student use. This stopped when the particular cabinet who had started it graduated from school.

We feel that something of that sort would be a welcome addition to the recreation available for Millsaps students. However, it is perhaps a job of such scope as to be better suited to a faculty member or to some person who could devote the necessary time and energy to the job.

Another worthwhile project that has been broached occasionally is that of having a dance at a point off the campus not too far from school after each home football game. Currently, the M-Club is working on this project for coming games. It may well be that they could continue in like manner for the rest of the season, or that other service organizations on the campus would like to pass the job around. We feel this a very desirable addition to our program, and suggest a get together of some sort after every game even if it is not always possible to secure a suitable place for dances. Such a practice would help us to keep our spirit high after a win, and give them a pick-up should we ever lose a game.

A very commendable addition already made to informal recreation on the campus is the equipment outside the boy's dormitories, particularly the pin-pong table. The table in the gym would be put to good use if some place could be found for it outside the gym, which is frequently locked to keep outsiders off the floor.

Other equipment would have its place in such a program, such as croquet, badminton, and the like. It might well be that the purchase of such equipment would have to wait till Spring but we feel that the need should be taken notice of. And while we're on the subject of needs, the shuffleboard equipment is in pretty sad shape. Some straight sticks and new disks are in order.

People do use this equipment; it fills a place in our recreational program. It should be kept up to date.

Another past function that has ceased recently is the dormitory social. These might take the place of a Friday night get together each week; they might be substituted for dances after football games if no place could be secured for those dances; or, they might (and this is perhaps the best solution) occupy a place of their own as they did before. They were planned by the boy's in the dorms and made open to the whole campus. Nothing fancy, but everybody had a good time.

There are probably other ideas floating around the campus. If one of them belongs to you, write it down and send it to us. We'll be glad to put it before the eyes of the officials as well as before those of the student body.

Make your recreational needs and desires felt; the administration has said again and again that if possible, those needs and desires will be met.

turns cold tomorrow."

Second: go to the ball game tomorrow night and see what happens. Next week, we'll see how everything turns out.

Mrs. Peck: "John!"

John: "Yes, my dear."

Mrs. Peck: "There's a corner torn off your paycheck. What did you spend it for?"

Go To The Ball Game

Tomorrow night the Millsaps Majors meet the Delta State Statesmen in the first game of season. The two teams will play in Tiger Stadium where Central High plays their games.

Last Friday the stadium was well-filled with fans to watch the Tigers lose to a slightly favored Greenville team. Many of those fans were Millsaps students. Tomorrow night some of those same students will not show enough interest in their own football team to stay in Jackson and watch a well-played college game between two scrappy teams.

Last Saturday eighteen thousand fans, again including many Millsaps students, flocked to Memorial Stadium to watch a one-sided contest between Ole Miss and Chattanooga. Tomorrow, again, some of those same students will not care enough about their own school to take the trouble to walk across the street to see the Majors play.

It will not be big-time football, no. Neither of the teams has ever been to the Sugar Bowl, or ever expects to go. But, it will be a hard-fought, well-played game of college calibre between two teams who want to win. It will be sports entertainment at its best, because it will be football for the fun of it and not work.

This year the freshmen are expected to attend all Millsaps football games at home. In the past, the freshmen have attended only if they happened to "feel like it." That problem is no longer with us. However, expecting the freshmen to attend and impressing on them the importance of attending is not the whole answer. This school contains more than freshmen, to wit, upperclassmen, who should feel it their duty and privilege to back the school teams the limit.

The mystery to us is why Millsaps find it such a chore to watch the Majors play. If we lost the majority of our games; if they were never close or exciting; if they were not up to the calibre of other games that Millsaps students attend there would be some explanation. We win more than we lose; we have two or three close calls each season because we play teams that compare closely with ours; we play good sound football. Even if such were not the case, one would think that loyalty to the school would bring out more than a few stalwart fans.

With a new year, and a new slate, both in the matter of games won and lost, and in the matter of proper (this means every student and faculty member who is not sick abed) attendance, we are in an excellent position to start off with a bang tomorrow night.

Our campus spirit is still in evidence and is still high. We can keep it that way by full participation in the activities of the week-end. Spirit is not solely concerned with football games, but attendance at the games is one of the manifestations of that spirit.

With this in mind, let's crowd the stadium, in so far as this student body can; let's encourage Jackson fans to come watch a good football game; and let's take the roof off the stadium tomorrow night. SEE YOU AT THE BALL GAME!

Millsaps Homecoming Day Set On Date Of Choc Game

Millsaps Homecoming Day has been set by the Student Executive Board for October 24, the day of the Millsaps - Mississippi College football game in Tiger Stadium.

A committee appointed by SEB is working on arrangements for the Day in cooperation with the Alumni Homecoming Day Committee. The student committee is headed by Roy Price and consists of Johnny Howell, Jack Dunbar, Carolyn Baria, and Ann Osborne.

The committee has formulated most of the plans and is still working.

A Homecoming Parade, with floats from each of the fraternities and sororities, as well as the band, and the student body and alumni in automobiles will be held in downtown Jackson.

The parade will wind up with a pep rally led by the Millsaps cheerleaders in front of the War Memorial on North State Street.

Campus decorations will be

Association Sponsors Community Concerts At Bailey Auditorium

Eleanor Steber, contralto vocalist from the Metropolitan Opera, will present the first of five programs to be sponsored by the Community Concert Association. The concert will be in Bailey Jr. High Auditorium on October 7.

The other four programs will feature the Agnes De Mille Ballet, on November 10; Robert and Gaby Casadesus, duo-pianists, on December 15; the Gershwin Orchestra with three soloists, on February 8; and Francescatti, violinist, on March 16.

Student tickets for the season are now on sale for $5.00.

Public Relations To Introduce New Publication

Major Notes, a new quarterly publication put out by the Public Relations Department of Millsaps, will come off the press sometime next week, according to Jim Livesay, editor of the magazine.

It will consist of 32 pages of pictures and stories of campus news, and also news of the current year. The cover will be a purple and green print of the crowning of "Miss Hospitality of Mississippi", Edna Khayat, with a panorama of Millsaps College scenes in the background.

Major Notes is primarily directed toward alumni and former students of the college. Four thousand copies are being mailed out to these alumni to keep them informed on campus news, in the hopes of putting more emphasis on alumni affairs. Extra copies, however, will be available to students in the public relations office and in the library.

Associate editor of Major Notes is W. E. Ayres. Other staff members are Elaine Hughes and Shirley Caldwell. The next edition will be in newspaper form and cover the second three months of school.

The last alumni news publication was put out in 1950.

taken charge of by the independent students on the campus with the Vikings and Norsemen heading up the effort. Roy Epperson and Louise Hight were chosen by the committee to head this project.

At 3:00 in the Christian Center will be the first of several showings of the movie, "A Day in the Life of a Millsaps Student," for the alumni. Punch will be served in the lounge between showings.

Efforts are being made to provide a program of music, including performances by the Singers and the band, for the alumni after the film.

The alumni will hold their regular banquet Saturday night before the Mississippi College game.

Plans are being made for a dance after the game, the event to be sponsored by the Inter-Fraternity Council.

Plans were made to initiate the new members at the next meeting.

Pruitt To Take Bobashela Pictures; Schedule Released

Pruitt Photo Service will begin taking Bobashela pictures Monday, October 5, at 8:00 a. m. in the Murrah Hall auditorium.

The schedule will run with frosh on Monday and Tuesday; sophomores, Wednesday; juniors, Thursday; and seniors, Friday. Pictures will be made any time between 8:00 a. m. and 4:00 p. m. on all of these days.

Cost of having the pictures made will be $2.00. This takes care of four poses, one of which will appear in the annual. Proofs will be returned to the campus and will be available in Murrah Hall in three weeks. Students are to choose the pose for the Bobashela and return the proofs within a week to the same place. Reprints will be available at a reasonable price at Pruitt Photo Service.

I. R. Club Invites Five Students To Membership

The Millsaps International Relations Club met last Monday night at 7:45 at the home of Dr. Ross Moore. This was its first meeting for the year.

Doug Mathis, invited to membership last semester, was initiated into the club.

The group voted to invite the following five students to membership in the organization:

Janella Lansing, Audrey Jennings, James L. Williams, Jenkins Spencer, and Jack Dunbar. Also invited to membership was Professor Robert E. Bergmark, who is replacing Dr. Bond Fleming in the Philosophy department.

Plans were made to initiate the new members at the next meeting.

The Bobashela staff urges all students to have their pictures made, in the hopes of having a bigger and better annual. It is scheduled to come out around May 15, 1954—on time.

ATTENTION INDEPENDENTS

An assembly of all independent students on the campus not affiliated with the Vikings or Norsemen will meet at chapel period next Tuesday in the Christian Center Auditorium to elect representatives to SEB. Those in Vikings and Norsemen are represented by their presidents.

All independent students are urged to attend this meeting.

Six Freshmen, All In A Row

Six Millsaps freshmen do an impromptu "bunny hop" in the grill during the Freshman Day festivities Friday. They are: Paul Kern of Morton, Claudette Koerper of Vicksburg, Jimmy Pickens of Jackson, Mary Elizabeth Burton of Jackson, Fred Abraham of Vicksburg, and Julia McQuirter of Humboldt, Tenn. These frosh looked a little better in the pajama parade Saturday afternoon, but not much.

Editor, Business Manager Of Stylus To Be Chosen

Applications for editor and business manager of Stylus, the school literary magazine, are being received by the English department.

Dr. M. C. White has announced that October 9 is the deadline for these applications.

Miss Thomasina Blissard, instructor in freshman English, has been named faculty advisor. Last year R. L. McCarter was editor and Claude Smith served as business manager.

Contributions for the first 1953 issue of Stylus, which will appear December 1, are now being received. All contributions will be read and considered, Dr. White said.

New students who are interested in writing for the publication may get back copies of it from any member of the English department for twenty-five cents each. Past issues contain formal and informal essays, short stories, and poems—a substantial portion of which were written by freshmen.

This year Stylus will enter its fourth year of publication. It is usually published once each semester, but last year the magazine appeared only once because of financial difficulties.

Jones And Jones To Head Band In Coming Year

The Band held its election of officers on September 28. Lowell Jones, sophomore from Jackson, is the 1953-54 president of the organization. Sam Jones, freshman from Jackson, will serve as vice-president. The new secretary is Mary Lynn Graves, sophomore from Jackson.

Present at the rehearsal were forty-eight members. A special practice period was called for Wednesday at 6:30 p. m.

The Band needs trumpet, cornet, flute, drum, and trombone players. Anyone desiring to play one of these instruments, please leave his name at the office of Dean McCracken.

Trips to Birmingham and to Memphis are being planned. Half-time shows will be presented at all remaining home games.

Hardy Nall To Play Oedipus In Players' New Production

Hardy Nall, a sophomore from Jackson, will play the leading man in "The Infernal Machine", according to Lance Goss, Professor of Speech. He will portray Oedipus, the prince of Thebes, in the Millsaps Players' first production of the season.

Karen Gilfoy, also a sophomore from Jackson, will act as Queen Jocasta leading lady of the play.

Seniors in the cast are: Keith Dix from Spokane, Washington as the soldier; Jack Dunbar of Sumner as Tiresias; and Fred De Long of Tutwiler as Anubis.

Ed Sturdivant, a junior from Jackson, will play the part of the Phantom (Laius).

Jimmy Jones of Kosciusko will be the young soldier while another sophomore, Joe Ebersole from Jackson, will be a messenger from Corinth.

Freshmen with parts are: Mary Warren Huntley of Jackson as Antigone; Walter Roberts from Canton as Creon; Sandra Weir from Garlandville as the Sphinx; Larry Tynes from Webb as the shepherd; and Lowell Jones from Nashville, Tennessee, as the captain.

The first reading of the play by the cast was held Tuesday night in the lounge of the Christian Center.

Wally James, a sophomore from Newton, will be assistant director and understudy for Queen Jocasta.

Minstral League And WCW Invite Interested People To Membership

Mission points are visited, hours of fellowship are enjoyed, and experiences in leadership are gained through being a part of the Women Christian Workers or the Ministerial League. Listening to Presidents Becky Lovett and James Buskirk outline this year's plans, one automatically becomes anxious to be a member in one of these organizations.

The WCW meetings are held every other Tuesday night at 6:30 in the Christian Center. Entertaining and informative programs are presented to the group. There are panel discussions pertaining to such topics as race relations, sex, and the Christian Caravans, and Summer Workcamps. This semester several skits are to be given to point out aids in Christian living.

Any Millsaps co-ed, whether her ambition is to be a full-time Christian elementary teacher, rural worker, pediatrician, director of religious education, housewife, or tight rope walker is welcome to WCW.

The Christian Center opens its doors Tuesday nights at 6:30 welcoming to Ministerial League meetings those students who are preparing to be ministers. At the present a series of programs is being presented on "A New Day in the Life of a Minister."

Both the WCW and the Ministerial League contribute much to Millsaps Campus and to the community of Jackson. Weekly visits are made to the Old Ladies Home, Charity Hospital, Old Men's Home, County Jail, Boy's Farm, and the Children's Home.

October has just arrived and remaining are eight more months of school. Today would be an excellent time for a student to become an active member of the Women Christian Workers or the Ministerial League.

Student Board Releases Calendar; Changes Made For Honorary, Band

The SEB Calendar which appears on page six, was released today by Jo Ann Cooper, chairman of the committee for drawing up the calendar.

There are some radical changes in the calendar from those of years past due to the setting of a new time for the band, Miss Cooper announced.

The calendar is being released in order to allow such honorary and organizations who tap on Tap Day to meet before that time. Some of the times have not been definitely set, and the calendar is subject to revision, says the chairman.

Any revisions or additions to the calendar will be published in the Purple and White as they occur.

The attention of the students is called to the dates set aside for the Players' productions. They are November 11, 12, 13, and December 9 and 10. These dates should be taken into account by organizations when planning programs or social activities.

Blumer Elected As President Of Millsaps Singers

Fred Blumer, of Escatawpa, was elected president of the Millsaps Singers for 1953-54 at an election held Monday night. Serving with Blumer will be Odean Puckett, of Jackson, vice-president; Helen Davis, Utica, secretary; and James Burnett, Woodville, reporter.

Members of last year's chapel choir were eligible to vote in the election.

The singers are currently working on the music for Handel's Messiah, to be sung at the city auditorium with other vocal groups in Jackson, including the Central High chorus. Also being worked on is a Feast of Carols for presentation in the Christian Center Auditorium during the Christmas season.

One hundred and fifty students compose the chapel choir for this year.

Twirlers Are Lee, Waddell, Whitfield, Ladnier, Brewer

Joan Lee, Columbus; Wanda Waddell, Margaret Whitfield, Pat Ladnier, and Helen Brewer, all of Jackson, were selected by a panel of judges to be majorettes for the Millsaps band. Mary Lynn Graves, Jackson, is the drum major again this year. Helen Brewer was chosen head majorette. Judges were Mr. Louis Pullo, band director at Central High School; Miss Jean Sain, Millsaps; and Mr. Calvin Smith, Pearl City High School.

Tryouts were held Monday night in Buie Gym. Each girl twirled for the judges. Claudette Koerper, Cary Stewart, Carleene Durham, and Joan Wheless were the others who tried out.

Last year's majorettes were Mary Lynn Graves, drum major, Wanda Waddell, Carleene Durham, Edna Khayat, Janella Lansing, and Cynthia Rives. Mary Lou Flowers, Frances Campbell, Molly Lawson, Rosemary Williams and Dot Renegar were the dancers.

I am in the process of making interesting study number 3967 or, the Influence of Luck. Significant opinions to the contrary, I can't help but feel that luck, whether called Lady or what have you, is a powerful influence against me.

How having three pop tests, being assigned 3,645,921 pages of outside reading, being called upon to give a dissertation on a forgotten assignment, having all your copy suddenly disintegrate, and then, while relaxing with a game of bridge, never have over one jack, all in one day, can be attributed to any thing but bad luck is beyond me. Show me your evidence and prove I don't have bad luck! It is very simple to attribute everything to happenstance, but I remain firm in my belief.

A Brilliant Solution

Don't get me wrong—I love school, all my professors, working on the paper, relaxing with bridge, and other similar pastimes. Somehow, sometimes, though, it does get one down. I devised a clever method to change all this. Each time I have a particularly bad day, simply commit that date to memory and next year, as that time rolls around, merely stay in bed all day.

Two major drawbacks are to be noted. In the first place I have a very poor memory and forget as soon as I try to remember. Dates in particular are impossible for me. Of course this could be solved by writing them down, but I lose things, too.

Yet Another Inconvenience

The other drawback is immediately obvious to anyone with a mind as analytical as mine. With outstandingly bad luck such as I have, it would greatly limit one's activities. After several years of this practice, it is obvious that I would literally become a hermit, never arising. This sad fate is, in my opinion, slightly less appealing than the one I already have. Consequently I have abandoned my scheme, and leave all rights to it to anyone who feels he could use it more profitably.

Weather Again

The weather is, without a doubt, one of the most trite subjects known to mankind. Nevertheless I feel a brief comment is necessary. I usually give the warm weather as a major reason for my attendance at this institution, but really enough is enough. Summer clothes, at least mine, have had it—I'm ready for winter, or Chicago, here I come.

Congratulations To KA's

Hearty congratulations are in order for Alpha Mu Chapter of Kappa Alpha. The Millsaps group ranked first among its entire order for the 1952-53 year in scholastic standing. Theirs is truly a record to be proud of.

Dance And Hayride Are Planned By KA On Saturday Night

Kappa Alpha and their dates will enjoy a hayride and dance tomorrow night from 7 until 11:30. The party will be at Westbrook Lodge on the Old Canton Road.

Entertainment will be by various members of the chapter in original acts.

The newly appointed KA social committee consists of Tommy Spell, chairman, Ernest Mincy, Jack Cooper, and Johnny Howell. They plan to have several informal parties in the near future.

The redecorated fraternity house will be open to students, parents, and faculty members on October 11.

Independents Give Autumn Party For Students, Faculty, 130 Attend

On September 24, the Vikings and Norsemen had a party for students not affiliated with a Greek social organization and for members of the faculty.

The party, the theme of which was autumn leaves, was attended by about 130 people.

To start the evening's entertainment, Helen Davis played the piano and Joan Wilson lead group singing. Ruth Ann Pearson, wearing a country costume, sang two songs, "Doin' What Comes Naturally", and "I'm Goin' Back to Where I Come From." Leslie Nabors played several selections on the harmonica. A trio, Jim Bennett, Yeager Hudson, and Jerry Williamson sang.

"The Faculty Four", a quartet consisting of Professor Paul Hardin, Dr. Milton White, Dr. A. P. Hamilton, and Dr. T. L. Reynolds gave an impromptu concert. After this Dr. Hamilton and Dr. White told jokes. Later the guests enjoyed charades and folk games.

Apple cider and cookies were served as refreshments. Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Price and Dean and Mrs. W. E. Riecken chaperoned.

"Y" Programs Are Designed To Be Of General Interest

"Come on, let's get on to 'Y' tonight!"

"Well, maybe, what's the program?"

"Oh! I don't know, but it should be interesting."

A common chant heard through the halls of Founders, Whitworth, and Sanders every Wednesday come 6:05.

Whether or not the voice realized, it she summed up the whole idea of "Y" programs when she declared, "It should be interesting."

Yes, of course, "Y" programs should be interesting, as any program should be, but they can only be so when each girl on the campus does her part. What is it? It can be stated in two words, Attendance and Participation.

On our campus we had no cut and dried pattern that "Y" programs should follow; instead, we try to build our programs around the interest of the girls who attend "Y". Being a Christian on a College Campus isn't always easy, but when problems and questions regarding this matter are brought out in surveys and investigations on this topic through the programs of "Y" we begin to try a little harder to live up to the ideals of the every day life of a Christian right here on Millsaps Campus. No, "Y" doesn't stick to just what's going on right here in our college community. Take for instance the time we thoroughly discussed the topic of UMT (Universal Military Training), weighing both the pros and cons of the matter, ending with the action of writing our Congressmen and letting them know our views.

YWCA on the Millsaps Campus can be a helpful and informative meeting or it can be a bore, full of meaningless words and surveys. Which will it be for you? Before giving your answer, give YWCA a sincere trial and let us see you at "Y" in the Activities Room Wednesday at 6:15.

God grants liberty only to those who love it, and are always ready to guard and defend it. — Daniel Webster.

The Story Of The Crushed Verdure, Or, Where Are Your Ethics Today?

Do you—yes, you—walk on the grass? A foolish question? Perhaps, but one to think about with some degree of seriousness. Do you realize you might be committing a sin? In fact, the summer class in Ethics set forth the thought that to walk on the grass at Millsaps is unethical.

Some students this summer became so conscious of this sinful act that they tried to right the wrong they had committed by putting a sign on the campus to keep others off the grass. The sign read, "Ouch, you are killing me." This paid off to some extent because people could just hear the grass screaming as they put their "number nine" down for another step. What a cruel and diabolical way to commit murder. But other hard-hearted people were not affected in the least. They read the sign and callously walked on across the grass.

The Ethics class reasoned somewhat as follows:

What is grass made for? Here at Millsaps it is for beauty purposes rather than to serve as sidewalks. In fact, sums of money were left for the specific purpose of building sidewalks—of concrete and not grass, incidentally, which would indicate that someone was concerned enough about the beauty of our campus to do something about it. So—and here is the moral of this tale—fellow student, take heed. Check your ethical standards, and every time you start to take a shortcut on our lush, green carpet, think: Would this be ethical? Not on your life! Not any more than to

Majorette Club Sponsors Many Campus Affairs

A worthwhile organization on the campus and one that deserves considerable praise is the Majorette Club. For the benefit of you green freshmen and upperclassmen, too, the Majorette Club is not open only to majorettes, but is the sister organization to the "M" Club and its membership is open to all students (female, that is!) who are interested in sports.

Headed by Dee Ford, who is assisted by Fredda Shelton, JoAnn Cooper, and Minnie Farlow, this industrious group has sponsored and is sponsoring many campus activities. Among these are the girls' Intramural sports, which will continue throughout the year. Through their efforts volleyball, basketball, ping pong, baseball, and other tournaments will be held. Already this year these young ladies have displayed amazing energy and ingenuity by decorating Bailey Gym for the dance after the Delta State-Majors game Saturday night.

The project of the Majorette Club last year was the lighting of the tennis courts, which has yet to be completed. When this task is accomplished, the Club plans to undertake the repairing of other recreational equipment. Plans are in the making for the chartering of a bus to the Millsaps-Southwestern game in Memphis on October 31.

The Club's highlight of the year is the annual stunt night, in which all organizations on the campus participate. The money earned from Stunt Night activities will be used for some worthwhile cause on the campus.

MAJOR MAJOR

Moss Point's Edna Khayat Named Week's Major Major

This week the Purple & White features Edna Khayat, senior English major from Moss Point, as Major Major.

Soloist for the Millsaps Singers for three years, active in Players, majorette with the Band, Social Chairman of the Beethoven Club, active in intramurals, Dean's List six semesters . . . these are only a few of her many activities and honors.

On the lighter side, Edna has been a Beauty for two years and runner-up for Homecoming Queen last year. This summer she received one of the state's highest honors in being named Miss Hospitality. Edna belongs to the Kappa Delta Social Organization, serving this year as Vice-president.

When asked what meant most to her in college, she said, "I don't want to sound trite, but I've enjoyed the genuine closeness and fellowship among the students. I guess my biggest thrill was being elected Secretary-treasurer of the Student Executive Board."

After graduation, Edna hopes to attend conservatory or teach English next year.

Vote Barineau, McClenahan Ugliest Freshmen; Harrison Wins Freshman Shoe Race

The crowning of a Freshman King and Queen during half-time of the Millsaps-Delta State ball-game climaxed a gala week-end of activities.

It all began Friday with the annual Freshman Day. Throughout the day freshmen lifted their voices in glorious song, sat on the floor, vainly tried to eat peas with a knife, and carried out every upperclassman command with reverence.

However, several upperclassmen were heard to comment, "It seemed unusually calm," or "We were entirely too lenient with them."

Still the consensus is that this year they looked and acted funnier than ever.

The judging was held Friday night in the Christian Center auditorium. Each freshman paraded across the stage to prove he was the ugliest. The field was narrowed to six finalists, but the choices for King and Queen were not announced.

Saturday followed with a pajama parade down Capitol Street, ending at the War Memorial Building. Here the pep rally was acclaimed "the best ever." Cheerleaders thought the "spirit was great." Again before the ball game students gathered on Alumni Field for a final rally complete with bon-fire.

At half-time "Veep", Howard Cheek, announced a shoe race for all freshmen boys. Newt Harrison, New Albany, came up from the mad scramble a winner, and was presented a trophy.

Cheek then crowned Dick Barineau of Jackson and Jean McClenahan of Indianola, Freshman King and Queen respectively. The couple was honored at the dance held in Bailey Gym after the game.

"I bet you think twice before going out without your wife in the evening."

"Sure; first I think up an excuse for getting out and then I have to think up an excuse for getting in so late."

A flea and an elephant walked side by side over a little bridge. Said the flea to the elephant after they had crossed it: "Boy, we sure did shake that thing!"

Majors Seek First Victory Tomorrow Against Hendrix

Seeking their first victory, the Millsaps Majors tackle the Hendrix Warriors at Conway, Arkansas, tomorrow at 2:00 p.m.

After falling victims to the 27 to 6 defeat handed them by Delta State the Majors have been working hard to correct the mistakes made in last week's game.

Millsaps won the first game of the series in 1950 when they defeated Hendrix 7-0. Hendrix came back in 1951 and defeated Millsaps 14-6 in a hard fought game. Then last year the Majors saw that the Warriors were receivers of a 25-0 defeat. This makes the fourth game played between the two schools.

The Hendrix lineup will probably be similar to that of last year, since there were only four seniors on last year's team.

A thirty-man squad will leave around noon Friday, and plans have been made to return immediately following the game Saturday afternoon.

Parker and Little will still be side-lined due to minor injuries. Parker suffers from a hip injury, and Little from a twisted ankle. No serious injuries were reported from the Delta State game.

Mississippi Football Squads Have Triumphant Week-ends

Last week was a great one for Mississippi football fans unless you happened to go to Millsaps.

The major colleges of the Magnolia State (Ole Miss, State, and Mississippi Southern) had good afternoons against strong opposition, and all came out on the long end of pretty one-sided scores.

State's offensive-minded squad reversed the procedure of two years ago when they grabbed a quick lead and held on to win 7-0, by pushing over four touchdowns for a 26-0 victory over Tennessee. The Volunteers, somewhat weakened, are always a power to contend with in the Southeastern Conference and no victory over them is to be taken lightly.

Ole Miss rolled over Kentucky 22-6 after overcoming a 6-0 lead grabbed early in the game by the Steve Meilenger sparked crew. The Reb quarterback picture is not settled, but appears well in hand with Eagle Day, Houston Patton, and Lea Paslay all available for duty.

Laurin Pepper, Bucky McElroy, and company moved back into "their own class" Saturday after their 24-19 win over highly rated Alabama with a 40-0 romp over the Paris Island Marines.

Action Begins In Intramurals With KS Victory

Boys Intramural Speedball opened Monday with the Kappa Sigs defeating the KA's 7 to 0.

The Kappa Sig TD was made by Parnell; the extra point on a pass to Rees.

The Ministers, Kappa Sigs, and Lambda Chi's each have six returning players, while the KA's have seven, and the Pikes five.

Defending their championship, the Pikes have returning ends Morris, Lee, and Rigby; Hunt as center; and Hobbs in the backfield.

The Kappa Sigs' returning six are backs Polk and Rees; ends Woods and Price; and guards Broadwater and Collette.

The KA experienced seven are backs Robinson, Carter, and Williams; ends Lynch, Spell and Blumer; and Cheek at guard.

Heading the list for the Ministers are backs Hasselle, Alexander, and Sparks; guards Wasson and

Hard-Fighting Majors Fall Before Strong Delta State

Coach Gene Chadwick's Delta State squad unleashed a group of hard running backs and a big, hard charging line on the Millsaps Majors at Tiger Stadium Saturday night and took a 27-6 win over the somewhat outclassed Methodists.

Millsaps, stymied throughout the game on the ground, turned to the air and revealed a surprisingly strong passing attack with quarterbacks Glenn Cain and Red Powell hitting ends Bobby Belcher and Bennie Kirkland with amazing accuracy.

Cain and fullback John Lowery, the Major's big offensive guns, were completely bottled up by the Statesmen line, and Cain was repeatedly thrown for losses by their hard-charging forward wall. The game had hardly gotten underway when the Statesmen took a 7-0 lead. The Majors received the kick, picked up one first down, and then were forced to punt. Delta State took over on the 15, and on the second play Wilkinson cut through a gaping hole at right tackle and romped 84 yards for the initial score. Guard Willie Watson's conversion was good.

Lowery returned the kickoff 15 yards to the 35 and on the first play, Cain hit Kirkland with a short pass, and Bennie ran 20 yards for a grand total of 26 yards. Sammy Joe Glorioso then fumbled, with Watson recovering for Delta State on the 29, but on the next play Glorioso broke through to recover Leonard Cain's fumble on the 24.

An offside penalty pushed the Majors back to the 29, but Cain, faking beautifully, hit halfback Walter Waldrop with an aerial on the 20, and he carried to the four before being run out of bounds. On the second play Cain swung wide to his left on a keep play and scored. His attempted conversion was blocked.

After that it was all Delta State. Several Major fumbles and a blocked kick gave the Statesmen enough edge to win easily.

In the first downs department, the Majors did okay, getting seven to ten for Delta State. Delta State was penalized 70 yards in comparison to 55 for Millsaps. The Majors had a touchdown called back late in the game due to an off sides penalty.

After the touchdown was nullified, the Greenies of Delta State completed a pass for some 80 yards and a first down to the Major's six yard line. The game ended with Statesmen in control on the 3 yard line.

Next week the Majors go to Conway, Arkansas to meet the Warriors of Hendrix College.

of hustle to fill the small, but very efficient shoes of Mr. Burnett.

In our opinion, the Millsaps Majors have a stronger grid squad this year than they had at this same time last year. They have a lot more depth and experience in the backfield and a stronger line.

In the game against Delta State last Saturday, the Majors showed a strong passing offense and a much stronger pass defense than they exhibited last year. If you recall, in last year's 28-0 Delta State victory, three touchdowns were scored via the air route.

To us it was evident that although Coach brought out the crying towel when the N.C.A.A. brought in one-platoon football, it helped the Majors Saturday night. The first eleven Millsaps men were just about on a par with the Statesmen first-stringers.

With some more conditioning, the Majors should just about reach the equal of any team in their class (i.e., teams on a non-subsidiary program) and could possibly be as good in late season as the Delta State team that beat them Saturday night.

The intramural program got underway this week with the men playing four speedball games and the women's volleyball league being set up.

The race for intramural laurels should be a very interesting one, particularly the speedball race now underway. The KA's, the Sigs, the Pikes, the Lambda Chi's, and the ministers all have been working hard in anticipation of a season of fun and a chance for the championship.

The Editor's Desk

by Eddie Gossard

Someone once said, "you can't win 'em all," and we'll take his word for it. We don't have to, of course; we just had it proved to us. But let's look on the bright side of things. Having lost one, there's no reason why we can't win all the rest of them.

Saturday night we hooked up with a big, experienced squad, at least part of which was especially chosen for its ability to play football. They showed that ability, and still were able only to pile up a three-touchdown lead. Everybody whom we have talked to is feeling the same way we all felt about the Delta State game last year—that "our boys" played a fine, hard game, and that we looked better than the score indicated. Most of us also felt that if the Majors had had more time to whip into shape and a couple of games under their belts, that we could have scored at least once more, and things might have been different.

So much for wishful thinking. We were out of our class admittedly, and we kept the game from being a track meet, even so. The Statesmen did not run in their second and third string players which would seem to indicate that they had some respect for what the Majors might do against other than their best. We can't win that one over, but we can win the rest, starting with Hendrix next Saturday (at Conway, Arkansas) and going through to the Choctaws and Ouachita.

We're happy about the way things have been going in the recreational line on the campus lately. The Viking-Norsemen get-together in Galloway Hall's living room was a very definite success. In fact, it smacked of the old Dormitory Socials and was received with the same enthusiasm. We recommend some more of the same, with the stipulation that the whole campus be invited. It was suggested during the last week that the boys don't have any monopoly on this business. The Whitworth-Sanders living room lends itself to similar gatherings, and the responsibility could be passed around from men to women and back.

Another bright spot in the recreation line was the get-together in the Bailey gym after the game Saturday. This idea is one to keep going, either on the campus or at Bailey, if the gym can be procured after our ball games.

In respect to many of the arrangements in connection with the ball game, our hats are off to the M-Club. They started the whole publicity drive, conceived the idea of the after-the-game-festivities, got the gym, secured use of the loud-speaker system at Tiger Stadium, and generally led off in raising the spirit to a peak for the game.

We didn't realize how many former Millsaps students like to keep in touch with the school through the Purple and White. During the past two weeks we have received numerous letters and personal requests for subscriptions for the coming year. They come from graduate students who have gone somewhere else to complete their schooling, from graduates who are working (we have at least half a dozen from widely scattered teachers who graduated last year), from professors who are gone, and from people who have just got into the habit of getting the P&W and keep getting it.

Let's Not Leap . . .

Last week a speaker who indirectly represented the National Association of Manufacturers spoke to the political science, economics, and psychology classes on the "American economic system."

That is all very well. But we, as did other people we have spoken to, had trouble in seeing just where Mr. Lewis had much to say about the economic system.

There were some notes taken during the speech, which, incidentally, was a very fine speech. It just didn't contain anything. The person who took these notes, on impulse, simply jotted down all the familiar sayings that he heard. The result was one of the most complete list of cliches having to do with love of God and country and work as one of our inalienable rights that we have ever seen.

Mr. Lewis pointed out that men have a right to work just as long as they want to, without someone coming in and telling them how long they will work, when they will quit, how much money they should ask for, and when to strike. He said nothing more. He did not speak against labor unions; he simply gave the impression that all men have the right to get along without them. All men have the right to work just as hard as they want, and to starve with dignity if they so choose.

Without a doubt. However, we think that they may not choose to starve, with or without dignity. Nothing was said about what we have also come to think of as the rights of men when it comes to getting a proper return from their labor, or for having decent working conditions, or reasonable hours.

This country is essentially one that sides with management in management-labor controversies. We're not saying that's bad. We do feel, however, that labor unions have done their part in improving conditions for the working man. We think that they have their place, and though they may get out of hand occasionally, we do not like to see or hear them called "someone who comes in and tells you how long you will work and when you will stop work and when you will strike."

The speech seemed to align, without actually saying so, the management side of our capitalistic system with Christianity. This we definitely do not like. Not that management is unchristian; the idea of placing ideas that delegate to men as their greatest right the right to work without benefit of labor unions alongside the highest principles that we know simply does not ring true.

The insidious thing about the speech, in our opinion, was that nothing else was said that you could put your finger on. In this respect it was an excellent piece of propaganda. People left with the idea, "I like that," though in the cold light of day they might not have seen much in it.

It should, at least, serve to keep us on our toes as to what opinions we follow and which way we jump on controversies. We need, very desperately, to think carefully before taking any views just as they are presented.

Tap Day To Be November 15, Announces SEB President

Tap Day has been set for October 15, Tommy Woodard, Student Executive Board President, announced recently.

The ceremony in which the various honorary organizations officially recognize proficiency among students in their field will be held during the regular chapel period in the Christian Center Auditorium.

The date is not tentative; it has been cleared through President Ellis Finger and is final.

Expected to tap new members on Tap Day are such organizations as Omicron Delta Kappa, Men's leadership honorary; Sigma Lambda, women's leadership honorary; Theta Nu Sigma, national science honorary; Alpha Epsilon Delta, national pre-med honorary; Alpha Psi Omega, national dramatic honorary; Eta Sigma Phi, national classics honorary; Pi Kappa Delta, national debate honorary; Kappa Delta Epsilon, honorary for teachers-to-be; Kit Kat, men's creative writing honorary; and Chi Delta, women's creative writing honorary.

Hold On To That Spirit

Campus spirit at Millsaps was high last week before the football game with Delta State. It was high right up to the game and stayed high even though we came out on the losing end of the fracas.

Now, the concern of every Millsaps student is to keep that spirit for the next game; for the football season; for the whole school year.

There are a few obstacles. We just lost a ball game. We are not playing at home next week-end, so big bonfires are out. We won't go as a body to the game. But they are not insurmountable. There are other ball games. We have won our share in the past and will probably do so in the future, including this season. We can have pep rallies before the team leaves; if possible we can send them off with cheers and encouragement. We can, and must, if we are to retain the spirit we want, take as great an interest in the game as if we were all going to be at it.

Winning ball games and yelling at ball games is not, by any stretch of the imagination, the whole of campus spirit; but, it helps. We like to win; everybody does. The old saw about "how you played the game" may sound trite to our "practical" generation, but there's something to it. We might add that there's something to how you support the ball team whether they win or lose, too.

Okay, we lost one; we'll win others. Let's win them right, with all the spirit that the student body can generate behind the team. Let's keep that spirit that we started.

Students Seek Denominational Groups Again

A petition is being circulated among the student body for presentation to SEB concerning the re-establishment of religious denominational groups on the campus.

Millsaps had, until last year, denominational groups who worked together through a Christian Council.

Last year, for the first time, an experiment was tried with a Student Christian Association — a non-denominational group.

Participation in the SCA has been at a minimum and dissatisfaction has been registered from several sources with the present set-up.

When the petition contains the required number of names it will be submitted to SEB for consideration.

Beta Sigs, KA's Win Scholarship Trophies Again

In chapel period Thursday, scholarship trophies were awarded to Beta Sigma Omicron and Kappa Alpha for their high scholastic averages. Beta Sigma Omicron won their trophy with a point average of 1.932, while the Kappa Alphas received their trophy for a 1.82.

Behind Beta Sigma Omicron in scholastic rating for the other women's social groups were Kappa Delta, Chi Omega, and Phi Mu respectively. Under Kappa Alpha in scholastic standing for men's social groups were Pi Kappa Alpha, Kappa Sigma, and Lambda Chi Alpha respectively.

All of the women's social groups had averages above 1.5; the men's social groups had a wider spread in their averages.

LIBRARY ANNOUNCES CHANGES; PUBLISHES STAFF SCHEDULE

The following announcements are made to the faculty and student body by the library.

The Catalog has been divided into two parts: one consists of the Author and Title cards; the other, of the Subject cards. This change was made in an effort to make the Catalog more understandable and therefore, more useful to the students.

The biographies of individual people have been lifted from their classified position on the shelves and placed together at the north end of the first floor stacks in a simple, alphabetical order according to the name of the biography. Collective biography remains in the 920 section.

A library handbook has been prepared for the freshmen and other new students. The staff schedule at the Library during the evening hours is as follows:

Miss Swearingen is on duty on Monday evening.

Miss Spiva, assisted by Bill Rose, is on duty Tuesday evening.

Miss Mary Grantham, assisted by Fred Yerger, is in charge on Wednesday evening.

Miss Blissard, assisted by Bill Rose, is in charge on Thursday evening.

New books which have recently been added to the Library include: Winston Churchill, the Man and the Era, by Virginia Cowles; Who Speaks for Man?, by Norman Cousins; The Irony of American History, by Reinhold Niebuhr; McCarthy, the Man, the Senator, the "Ism", by Jack Anderson and Ronald W. May; My Host the (See LIBRARY, page 5)

COMMUNITY CONCERTS

The community Concerts will be held at the City Auditorium and not at Bailey Junior High, as previously announced in the PURPLE AND WHITE.

PRODUCTION STAFF FOR PLAY ANNOUNCED BY PROF. GOSS

Professor Lance Goss released the production staff for The Infernal Machine early this week.

Wally James is assistant to the director, and John R. Howell and Janie Haining have been named stage managers. John M. Howell and Winnifred Hargrove are in charge of music and sound effects.

Janie Haining and John R. Howell are co-chairmen of the scenery committee and Cliff Rigby heads the lighting committee.

Co-chairmen of the costume committee are Lynn McGrath, Carleen Durham, and Anne McInvale. Ann Hand and Ann Carter are in charge of the makeup group.

Audrey Jennings, Robert Myers, Barbara Myers, and Bettye Jo Powell are co-chairmen of the publicity and tickets committee.

Other members of the production staff are:

Lighting—Ben McCarty, Steve Collins, Shirley Brown, Powers Moore, Merrimen Watkins, Warren Wasson, Mary Sidney Johnson, and Paul Kern.

Scenery—Pip Thompson, Cary Stewart, Kathryn Hook, Jeanelle Howell, Melroy McIntosh, Harris Eaton, Fredda Shelton, Mary Gene Gainey, Robert Streetman, Leverette Hayes, Minnie Farlow, Nona Kinchloe, Robert Harris, Jane Wiggins, Marianna Simmons, Douglas Mathis, Hugh McLellan, and Brooks Hudson.

FINGER SPEAKS FOR METHODIST YOUTH RETREAT

President Ellis Finger was the featured speaker for the weekend meeting of the annual state Methodist Student Movement Retreat held at East Central Junior College in Decatur, October 2-4. President Finger addressed the group on Saturday morning concerning the current spiritual and educational confusion which is prevalent in the colleges and universities of today, and pointed out the solution which the Christian Faith offers in such a situation.

Millsaps College was represented by Wilma Ryan, sophomore from Benton, who is secretary of the State Methodist Student Movement. She was among a large number of other Methodist Students who represented all Methodist students at all colleges in the state. The purpose of the retreat was to bring together the members of the various campus organizations for discussion of the campus religious program conducted by the Methodist Student Movement.

Through six workshops the student had an opportunity to discuss, on a give-and-take basis, the methods used by various groups and leaders in the Methodist Student Movement in Mississippi and to discuss possible new techniques in program planning.

LIBERAL YOUTH GROUP ORGANIZES IN JACKSON; MEETS EACH SUNDAY

A liberal religious youth group has been organized in Jackson under the auspices of the local Unitarian Fellowship. Any Millsaps students who are interested in participating are invited to attend.

The group meets each Sunday at 10:00 am. at the Heidleberg Hotel.

HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS INVITED AS MILLSAPS' GUESTS AT BALLGAME

The seniors and the faculties of fifty-three high schools within a seventy-five mile radius of Millsaps will be guests of the college for the football game, Millsaps vs. Sewanee.

This includes approximately half of the high schools within the seventy-five mile radius. The other schools will be Millsaps' guests at a later game.

ATTENTION VETERANS

All Veteran's are entitled to FOUR semester hours credit for Basic Military Training. This credit will be placed on their permanent record upon receipt of a photostatic copy of their discharge.

The registrar's office will be glad to make the photostatic copy for them if they do not already have one.

Veterans, please take care of this at your earliest convenience.

PIONEER STUDIES IN ALCOHOL MADE BY SCIENTISTS AT YALE

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 4:—A group of Yale's physical and social scientists, working in a reconverted mansion at the edge of the University's campus is making a pioneer study of alcoholism in the United States.

This research program is headed by Seldon D. Bacon, director of Yale's Center of Alcohol Studies. Its findings so far have challenged many of the pet theories about alcoholism and have thrown new light on American drinking habits.

The first of a series of reports from the Alcohol Center is the widely-discussed "Drinking In College," published by the Yale University Press. This report based on a study of 16,000 men and women students in 27 colleges and universities throughout the United States, is the first study ever made of the drinking habits of college students.

Among the conclusions reached in the book is the fact that the drinking patterns of most students are formed before they enter college.

"Drinking In College," based on a six-year study, is the first major report of the Alcohol Center. Apart from what the book tells about college drinking in America, the study is important because it establishes the foundation for a long-range study of a whole group of people containing a small proportion certain to become alcoholics.

"We at the Alcohol Center have long felt a need to study such a group," said Mr. Bacon. "We decided on college students because they're relatively less inhibited about answering questionnaires than adults, and also because they were available in groups on the campus."

"Also," he said, "we knew college students were old enough so we were sure a large number would have started drinking, but not so long ago that they would have forgotten when and under what circumstances."

"Until recently," Mr. Bacon explained, "all data on drinking habits were concerned with abnormal drinking and its relationship to divorce, crime and the like. We felt it essential to gain a picture

Apparently working their way through college by cleaning up around the campus are Millsaps co-eds Rose Cunningham, Jo Glynn Hughes, Maulene Presley, Jean McClenahan, and Sybil Foy. If this is the ground-cleaning crew for this year, sign us up; we'll be glad to pick up wheels, too.

MAJOR MAJOR

Vice-President Of SEB
Honored As Major Major

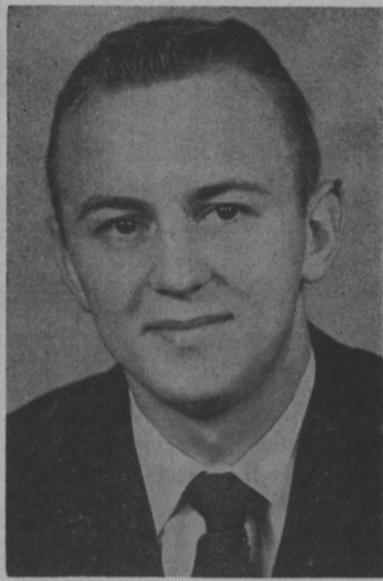

This week the Purple & White staff honors Grenada senior Howard Cheek as Major Major. Howard, a pre-med student, hopes to attend med school next, "though I don't know where," he added hastily.

Last year Howard, better known as "Cheek," was the alternate delegate to the Inter-fraternity Council for the Kappa Alpha's. In the past he has served as rush chairman and treasurer. At present, he holds the position of Sergeant-at-arms.

Cheek was active in the old pre-med club and has taken part in the annual Varsity Shows. He is well known as a musician.

SEB VEEP

As a climax to his college career, Howard was elected Vice-president of the Student Executive Board last spring.

There's Nothing Like A ROC

Bainbridge, Md. "There's nothing like a ROC."

That was the verdict of 80 co-eds who returned to their campuses after six weeks at the Navy's summer school for women Reserve Officer Candidates at USNTC, Bainbridge, Md., this summer.

Ordered to training duty on July 2 from 70 different colleges, they were transformed from casual co-eds to military misses overnight.

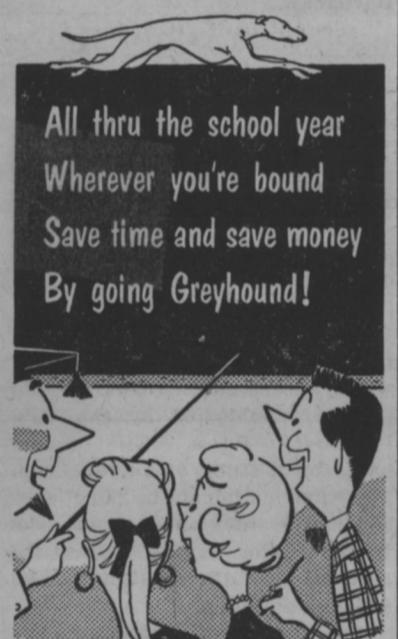

ROCs "hit the deck" at 5:45 a.m. They were in their bunks at 9:30 p.m., except on weekends. Every hour in between was scheduled.

Paid as petty officers if they were enrolled in the advanced phase of the program, and as seamen if enrolled in the basic phase, the embryo officers proceeded about their area in platoon formation.

They marched to chow. They sailed through four classes daily in such subjects as naval orientation and administration, communications, naval weapons and navigation. There were classes in drill and other periods for swimming instruction.

A working part of her own platoon, every ROC was placed in a position of leadership. She took her turn keeping "the log," standing a "security watch" in her barracks, and "huping" her platoon to classes or chow.

If she volunteered to plan exchange dances with navy men or work on the water show, the yearbook, or the company show, she met members of other platoons and companies. At station reviews

Belhaven Classes
Add Confusion And Chaos To Schedule

Getting a B. A. or a B. S. can mean many hours of anxiety and nervous tension, but for some ambitious persons it can be a double dose. "How so?" In answer to your probing question, I will give two prominent names—Millsaps and Belhaven.

Realizing that this may give you readers a mixed-up idea of what this article is to deliver, let me further explain.

Some of our ambitious students sign up for classes not only here at the future Alma Mater, but also at the Woman's School a few blocks over the way. Take the case of Linda Lou, who hails from Big "D" (Durant—to you uneducated ones), who has Religion at 8:00 in the Christian Center bright and early Monday morning. This in itself is fine, except that at 8:50 she must rush over to Belhaven for a music class. As the bell rings at 8:50, Brother Bob Anding is making a "huge" assignment for Wednesday's class session and Linda Lou is frantically giving her Gruen a hard glance. At eight minutes of nine she rushes apologetically out of the Christian Center and glides rather hurriedly over to the front of Sullivan Harrell where the chauffeur of the slick green limousine is shifting the auto into gear. Linda Lou manages to get out "Wait Please" and is successful in getting into the crowded car, only to find herself breathless and tardy upon arrival in the music department at Belhaven.

The moral of this story, such as it is, is to be sure you are long-winded and have good strong "running limbs" if you register for classes at both of these colleges or you will find yourself marked tardy in the Professor's little grade book.

she learned what it meant to be an indivisible part of a battalion.

Every ROC also had an opportunity to broaden her military horizons when the battalion "cruised" nearby military installations in Navy buses. She saw jet bombers take off at an air base. She watched rockets launched at army proving grounds. She visited a submarine based in Baltimore harbor. And if she were a member of the graduating class she was one of the few women who lunched aboard the U.S.S. REINA MERCEDES, station ship at the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Two summer sessions at the ROC(W) school qualify a co-ed enrolled in an accredited college for a commission in the Naval Reserve when she has earned a college degree and reached 21 years of age.

At commissioning ceremonies held August 15 at USNTC, the 1953 enrollees watched 17 qualified members of the graduating class take the oath of allegiance and accept order to active duty.

Many of the females counted on Brooklyn to take the series. They figured that luck was running out on the Yanks despite their powerhouse of hitters. One senior remarked, "It's now or never."

Millsaps Coeds Offered
Tempting Movie Career

By Fredda Shelton

On Thursday of last week four brave Millsaps Co-eds set out from Buie Gym, destination unknown. The bare facts, hurriedly given by Miss Jean Sain, stated that the shooting would occur, and that we would return by four. The time element prohibited further discussion.

Looking back at the city limits, I suddenly was stirred to know where I was going. The immediate answer was Silver Creek, an estimated hour's drive. For some reason, we had thought we were going to the Royal Theater. Perhaps this was because Mr. Royal had asked for us. After a rather brief conversation, on the merits of "Jessie James' Women," we settled back patiently. You see, we are going to act as extras in that movie, which is being filmed in our state.

One cat-nap later, entering Magee, Mississippi. I became curious as to the exact location of Silver Creek—you see, it isn't my usual policy to go wandering off, neither knowing why nor where. The driver, Mr. Jack Smith, told us Silver Creek was a little south of Prentiss, Mississippi. Like the dunces that I am, I didn't even know where Prentiss was. For your information it is twenty miles south-west of Collins and it takes at least an hour and forty-five minutes—I know. Suddenly finding myself in the middle of the country, speeding farther away from home, I was no little bit upset at the news. Needless to say, I could do nothing about it. To add insult to injury, we finally discovered the real role we were to portray—doubles for the stars in a bar-room fight. That was the last straw. I could just see my family's reaction to the very idea, it wasn't pleasant.

Arriving, I was rather surprised to find an old-fashioned town; complete down to saloon, and sawdust streets. We were personally met by Don "Red" Barry, director, part producer, and star. Other than his irritating habit of calling everyone "honey," I suppose he was all right; I just didn't care for him. He was anxious to impress upon us the necessity of really being rough. Fortunately, I was too short and had short hair. To be more specific, all the Millsaps girls were too short. One Jackson girl who had hair down to her waist was given a chance, providing she would peroxide her hair.

The four of us looked around for a while but there wasn't too much to see—at least, not when you were ready to come home, and we were! The set was very realistic—board walks covered the sidewalks, there were hitching rails, water troughs, a livery stable and opera house, a harness shop, a hotel, a general store, a corral, etc. The movie company utilized all of the real buildings in the town by putting false signs in the front. One added advantage to the set was the spur railroad that came right into town—this was the site of the famed James train robberies.

Finally we started home—I don't think a report on my discussion would be fair to the movie industry. I'll base it on a desire to be some where else. However, it was a most unusual experience. I don't believe anyone would have missed it, especially me.

Ardent World Series Fans
Co-Eds Know the Game Well

One may have always believed that the field of sports (i.e., baseball, football, etc.) was strictly a man's world—with limitations of course. Until lately the ladies have given their attention to fashions and domestic affairs.

However, with the opening of the World Series last week all ears and eyes focused on Yankee Stadium and Ebbets Field.

Brooklyn for a time became separated from the Empire State as Dodger fans booed New York. Still other girls were equally as enthusiastic in their praise of the Yanks.

No Standing Room

There were crowds around the "teevee" sets every afternoon. Latecomers finding no available space, not even standing room, despairingly settled for the radio. Practice teachers at Central were overjoyed when classes disorganized and loud speakers were turned on in every room.

Many of the females counted on Brooklyn to take the series. They figured that luck was running out on the Yanks despite their powerhouse of hitters. One senior remarked, "It's now or never."

From The Horses' Mouth

Students from Greenwood always support the "bums", for the Greenwood Dodgers of the Cotton States League was a Brooklyn farm club. These girls can keep score with the best of them, and their baseball terminology comes straight from the "horses' mouth."

The girls were impressed with the new records made this year. They agree that Mantle and Martin were the outstanding Yankee players as were Erskine and Snider for the Dodgers.

Milwaukee?

So now the Yanks have a record breaking five straight series titles, and are quite a bit richer per head. Yogi Berra says they'll win again next year. As for the Dodgers—well, they hope to be in there pitching come next October—against Milwaukee!

Co-ed: I hear that we are going to have a new concrete stadium.

No-ed: Yes, the alumni have at last decided to use their heads.

He: My stock in trade is brains.
She: Well, you sure do have a funny-looking sample case.

Majors Score Initial Win By Trouncing Hendrix 20-0

Last Saturday, October 3, the Millsaps Majors defeated the Hendrix Warriors 20 to 0 at the Hendrix hunting grounds in Conway, Arkansas. The ninety degree weather did not stop the Majors completely, but it did slow them down a bit.

The Majors took the opening kickoff, and marched for a touchdown without losing the ball. Big fullback John Lowrey ran 30 yards over tackle to set up the score, and plunged across from five yards out to end the scoring drive. Cain added the extra point, and the Majors were ahead to stay.

In the second period quarterback Cain returned a punt 50 yards for the second Major score. He missed the point-after-touchdown try, and the half ended with the Majors leading 13-0.

Soon after the third quarter began, Cain skirted end on the optional play for 35 yards and the last score of the ball game. He made the extra point, and the game settled into a defense battle with the Majors missing several chances to score.

Halfback Hardy Nall intercepted a pass on the Hendrix 40, and returned it to the four-yard line. A fumble nullified this scoring chance.

of the normal drinking customs of the American people.

"We studied the drinking habits of ethnic groups. But we also wanted to study a particular age group which we'd be able to follow for the next 25 or 30 years. As a result, we'll be able to trace the influences of marriage, of the change in economic status, of having children, and of changing attitudes on the drinking habits of these college students."

Mr. Bacon said that it will be possible to conduct follow-up studies of students interviewed in this college-age group because 77 per cent of them voluntarily gave their names for future references.

Yanks Take Brooklyn For Fifth Straight World Series Victory

The New York Yankees are baseball's world champions for the fifth straight year. The perennial champs took the Dodgers in six games after winning the first two, and then allowing the Bums from Brooklyn to win the third and fourth games.

The Yanks met the Flatbushers last year in the Series, took the Giants in a hotly contested brawl in 1951, and whipped the Phillies in four games in 1950. Before that, they had tied up with the Dodgers in the closest of all the recent series.

Yankee Billy Martin tied the Series record for hits, garnering twelve in the six games, and winning the final game with a scorching single to center.

Young Mickey Mantle came near the strike-out record when Carl Erskine, the Dodgers' iron man, fanned him four straight times in the third game. Erskine started three games for the Bums, but was only able to win one, and that one by striking out 14 Yanks for another record.

Mastermind Casey Stengel of the Yankees has now attained his goal of five straight pennants and world championships, and has successfully frustrated the Dodgers in their bid for their first championship in seven World's Series.

It has been said that "he who can sing and won't sing should be sent to Sing Sing"—but what about the person who can't sing but will sing? Would hanging do?

The Majors got into the win column in very impressive fashion last Saturday by trouncing the Hendrix Warriors 20-0. The Majors received the opening kickoff, and marched for the first score without losing the ball.

The Major line was very hard to gain against, giving up a net of only 35 yards on the ground for Warriors. They held the Warriors almost as well in the air, allowing only 54 yards via the passing route.

If the showing last week was any indication of things to come, the Majors could be off to a very good season. The line has been looking stronger as the season progresses, and there are at least two complete backfields ready for action at any time.

Another test of strength will come tomorrow against a strong Sewanee eleven. The game is rated a tossup, and if the Major line can stop the powerful single-wing plays used by Sewanee, the team should be strong enough to continue winning.

Since the two teams first met in 1947 the rivalry has become more bitter each year. The series now stands with three wins for Sewanee, two for the Majors, and one tie. Coach Sammy Bartling's sophomore-studded line-up remembers all too well the 27-13 defeat handed them last year at Sewanee, and should be prepared tomorrow to try and even the series between the two clubs.

A lot of attention has been shifted to speedball with the Majors on the road last week-end. The calibre of play so far indicates that a lot more attention will be given these intramural games before the season is over.

Referees for the games have been: Joe Hobbs, Jack Dunbar, Crow Parnell, Terry Reese, Joe Ebersole, and Jack Speights. Intramural head Billy Greenlee wishes to thank the referees for taking time from other activities to referee these games and thus giving intramurals at Millsaps a big boost.

Following are the intramural standing thus far.

There are but five teams in the speedball league this year, but all of the five are strong. As this article was written, it looked as though the first half race was between the Sigs and Pikes, with the Lambda Chi's, KA's and Preachers all close enough to pull an upset.

We would like to emphasize first half, because the second half could easily be a different story, with any of the five well-balanced teams emerging victorious.

Magnolia State Football Teams Continue to Win

Magnolia state football teams had another fine week-end, with Millsaps joining the ranks of the victorious with a 20-0 win over Hendrix.

The dark spot in Mississippi football fortunes was Ole Miss, who was rudely toppled from the win column and the ranks of the undefeated by scrappy Auburn, 13-0.

State's offensive machine is still piling up the yardage and the points, last Saturday's outing with North Texas State winding up 21-6. All-America candidate Jackie Parker scored two touchdowns, guided the Maroons to another, and spent most of the last half on the bench in the easy victory.

Mississippi Southern, still playing in "its own class," romped over the Tampa Spartans 42-6, with halfback Laurin Pepper providing three of the six touchdowns for the Southerners. Pepper scored on runs of 43, 57, and 34 yards, and averaged 19.7 yards on each carry from the line of scrimmage. Southern's line held Tampa to no first downs and to minus 49 yards rushing.

Delta State made Millsaps a favorite (on a comparative score basis—completely unreliable) over Howard by rolling over the Bulldogs 40-0.

While the Majors were amassing 20 points to Hendrix's none, the Choctaws were doing the same thing in their contest with Southwestern. The Chocs piled up their points in the first half and coasted to the victory.

651 Duling

The Editor's Desk

by Eddie Gossard

This week we are pushing a history book. As a rule we do not push history books, because they are too heavy. Not so this one. It is just the right size for pushing, weighing approximately 25 ounces, with its jacket.

Inside it is light, too. The name of this memorable manuscript is, "It All Started With Columbus, being an unexpurgated, unabridged, and unlikely history of the United States from Christopher Columbus to the present for those who, having perused a volume of history in school, swore they would never read another."

The author is Richard Armour, A.B., C.D., E.F., according to the title page of the book. Actually, Dr. Armour is a Harvard Ph.D., a professor of English at Scripps College, a four year veteran of World War II, and a colonel in the active reserve. Otherwise, he is one of America's foremost writers of light verse, having had pieces published in some seventy magazines, from "The New Yorker" to "The Saturday Evening Post."

Dr. Armour begins by explaining that 1492 (when Columbus founded America) is easy to remember because it rhymes with "ocean blue." He adds that Christopher could have sailed a year later and the date would still be easy because it would rhyme with "boundless sea." With that, he is off on one of the merriest parodies of anything, telling about American Vesuvius, for whom the new land was named, and how Columbus thought he was in India when he hadn't even got to Indiana.

The book romps roughshod over the annals of American history, missing very little, from the old custom of "Bungling" (for young courting couples) to the discovering of the Hudson River by Henry Hudson, who was pleased to find it named for himself.

The American Revolution comes in for a dig in the ribs, and the writing of the constitution and beginning of American government provide a rich field for the hilarious satire.

The reader meets such historic personages as Pansy de Lion, Bigamy Young (leader of the Mormons), and Wild Bill Hiccup (a man of few words, such as "Reach" and "Now git"). There is mention of the Alien and Sedition Act, and only a slightly garbled version of the Civil War (so called because it was fought as decently as possible).

The captains of industry are mentioned, including Vanderbilt, who made his money in ships; Carnegie, who made his money in steel; Rockefeller, who made his money in oil; and Morgan, who, being a direct person, made his money in money.

There's more, but you can read it for yourself. If you find Dr. Moore's American History classes disgustingly factual, try reading "It All Started With Columbus" for outside reading. An interesting time is guaranteed.

We have an apology. Due to a mix-up with the office, we released a story on the fraternity and sorority scholarship trophies as if it had happened last Thursday. Such was the plan and we didn't find out about the change until chapel, at which time (as we discovered when we desperately called the printers) the paper was already on the presses with the damage done. We're truly sorry, both for spoiling the surprise, and for making the honored social groups wonder just what was going on.

Denominational Groups: Reinstatement Considered

Last week in this paper appeared a story concerning a petition for the re-establishment of denominational groups at Millsaps.

That petition has not yet appeared. We propose to take advantage of the time lag to present some of the pertinent facts for the information of those who are not cognizant of the religious organizational set-up on the campus.

Until the fall semester last year, Millsaps was organized in denominational groups, with the groups meeting on alternate Wednesday nights and the YMCA and YWCA meeting on the other Wednesday nights. These groups included the Wesleyan group for the Methodists, the Baptist Student Union, the Westminster Fellowship for the Presbyterians, and the Canterbury Club for Episcopalians.

In late spring of 1952 SEB met and passed a bill creating, in place of the denominational groups, a Student Christian Association, an inter-denominational organizational organization which was to be coordinated through the "Y's". This took effect in the fall of 1952.

The "Y" organization at Millsaps, especially the YMCA, has, to make a sweeping statement, never been strong. As a result, the SCA program was never strong either. At the beginning of the year, several interesting programs, including a debate on the merits of the presidential candidates, were fairly well attended. As time wore on, interest and support waned, and by spring of 1953, the SCA was practically non-existent. The Association has not been active at all this semester.

Another aspect of the denominational group set-up is the Christian Council. This was a council made up of representatives from each of the denominational groups, which coordinated religious affairs on the campus involving all of the denominations, such as Religious Emphasis Week.

Under the SCA set-up there was no council. The presidents of the YWCA and YMCA with four other students from the "Y's" and the faculty committee took over such jobs.

One of the talking points for the advocates of a return to the former system is the need of a Christian Council to work out campus religious affairs pertaining to the whole student body.

There are two major views held on the conditions under which the denominational groups should be reinstated. One school desires the return to the situation that existed before the SEB action, with a Christian Council and with the "Y's" and denominational groups alternating meeting times.

The other school holds that retaining of the "Y" organization not only will not benefit the student body, but that the denominational groups should return only with the abandonment of the "Y" groups. Thus, we should have Christian Council and denominational groups, but no "Y's."

The exact nature of the petition is not known at this time. It may be that two petitions will be circulated.

We are not advocating any procedure, either as regards making the change or as to how it should be made. We are simply trying to present the facts, in so far as we are able, to the student body, who will sign the petition. Any desires regarding the change, either from groups or individuals, should be made known to members of SEB in order that the wishes of the student body may be followed.

Student News From Abroad

(From The Student Mirror)

BRAZIL

The food provided for students at the Federal University of Agriculture of Brazil—which is located 31 miles from Rio de Janeiro and is consequently conducted on a hostel basis—had for years been a cause of complaints. Though the University had managed its own farms, gardens, and cattle-breeding, there was no end to the students' complaints about bad or spoiled food. Protest strikes began, with the Rector even calling for the police once, who attacked the students with truncheons.

There there came a day when quite surprisingly Marshall Dutra, ex-president of the Republic, sat down with the students for dinner. Obviously, he convinced himself that the complaints were justified, for after a long struggle, in the course of which the authorities by all possible means tried to defend their right to the management of the food commissariat, the student body at long last was granted the management of the student restaurant.

The anniversary of this taking over of the responsibility by the students was recently celebrated with a great feast, for since that time there had been no reason to complain.

The students themselves are now enthusiastically cultivating a plot of land the yields of which they turn over to the kitchen. Incidentally, they have proved that the notion, still widely prevalent in South America, that students could not be trusted with administrative responsibilities of their own, is unjustified. (Special report).

FINLAND

The announced gold-digger's camp in Lapland, which was organized jointly by the Finnish and Danish National Unions of Students, was opened on August 15. Forty German and twenty Danish students will work there as gold-diggers. They have pledged 25% of the yield to the Finnish National Union. There had been great difficulties in finding a promising digging claim for the students, because all rich yielding places had already been staked out for other groups of interested

FRANCE

International vacation courses are being held in several French towns during the vacation months. Besides opportunities for intensive study of the French language, for an enlargement of knowledge in the fields of politics, literature and economy, and for the establishment of international contacts, ample occasion is provided for the course participants to become acquainted with the country and the people and to make extensive excursions. Cannes on the Mediterranean coast is a particularly attractive goal. An international course there is at present attended by some 300 men and women students from Belgium, Germany, Italy, Spain, Switzerland, the Saar, Sweden, Holland, Norway, Finland, Chile, India, and the U.S.A. (Saarbruecker Zeitung).

PORTUGAL

Great demands are made of students at most of the Lisbon faculties. To be admitted for further studies, students must pass every year an oral and a written examination in all their subjects. Anyone failing in one single examination loses a whole year, for the examination may not be repeated before the next year at the same time. Failing in these annual examinations three times results in the exclusion from the course of studies. (Signo, Madrid)

STUDENT RATES OFFERED

The magazines, TIME and LIFE announce their yearly offer to college students of special rates for subscriptions. These rates are for students only and are as follows: TIME, $3.00 a year (regular price—$6); LIFE, $4.00 a year (regular price—$6.75). LIFE also offers a special rate of $7.00 for two years. Other information can be obtained at the Millsaps Bookstore.

A Plea For An Early Annual

We have an oft-repeated, but we feel, justified complaint. We are making no reflection on present members of the Bobashela staff and we are not trying to taint the memories of those members who have departed this campus.

Nevertheless, we feel the necessity of repeating our gripe. We don't know when all the students on the campus got their annuals, but we received ours in the middle of the summer. Now we're glad to have it, but we would be gladder to have it before school is out, as would all the students.

Without a doubt, there are a number of perfectly good reasons why the Bobashela was late. There always are. And that is the point; there always have to be reasons.

No one seems to know why the annual can't be got on time by Millsaps students; everybody else gets theirs on time. It would seem that the printers and engravers hold a special grudge against the Bobashela; or maybe they love it so much they hate to see it leave their shop; at any rate it is perennially at least a month late, at best.

Again, let us make clear that we are striking out against no one personally; neither against present editors or against past editors, whom we have counted and do count among our friends. We simply feel that it would be possible to get the annual by the end of May when other people do.

We think that a prompt annual would do considerable for our campus spirit and we think that it should be the very seriously felt duty of the Bobashela staff to leave the engraver's and printer's no alternative but to get our material back on time so that the Bobashela could be received by the students at the usual (for most annuals) time.

Nine Millsaps Honoraries Tap Forty-Seven Students

Forty-seven students were tapped into nine honor societies at Millsaps College in Tap Day exercises yesterday.

Omicron Delta Kappa, national men's leadership honorary, which recognizes outstanding leadership in various fields on the campus, is the highest honor a male student at Millsaps can attain. Four men were tapped. They are: Jack Dunbar, Ernest Mincy, Fred Whitam, and Tommy Woodard.

Sigma Lambda, leadership honorary on the campus for women, is the counterpart of ODK. Five women were tapped to membership: Dunbar Babbit, Jo Anne Cooper, Edna Khayat, Ann McInvale, and Fredda Shelton.

Kit Kat, the oldest and most exclusive honorary on the campus, recognizes outstanding ability in the field of creative writing. Frank Mangum was tapped.

Chi Delta, women's creative writing honorary, tapped three new members. They were: Fredda Shelton, Ann Osborne, and Kay Fort.

Alpha Epsilon Delta, national honorary for pre-medical students tapped eight students and two faculty to active membership. The students were: Bill Lynch, Ben McCarty, Tommy Spell, Molly Lawson, Fay Gaddy, Keith Wolverton, Terry Reese, and Reginald Lowe. The faculty members were Dr. William J. Brett, and Professor William C. Guest.

Theta Nu Sigma, national science honorary, recognizes outstanding scholarship in the field of science. Nine new members were tapped. They are: Sarah Dennis, Minnie Farlow, Molly Lawson, Fay Gaddy, Tommy Spell, Terry Reese, Ben McCarty, Bill Lynch, and Harry Carter.

Alpha Psi Omega, national dramatics honorary on the campus, tapped three. They are: Ann Carter, John R. Howell, and Lynn McGrath.

Kappa Delta Epsilon, national honorary recognizing Education students and future teachers, tapped eight girls to membership.

Millsaps Band Goes To Howard Today For Game

A forty-one piece marching band left Millsaps by bus this morning at 8:00 for Howard College in Birmingham.

They will play at the Howard-Millsaps football game tonight at 8:00 and will spend the night on the Howard campus, returning to Jackson Saturday morning.

A new rehearsal schedule will go into effect next week. Rehearsals will be held Tuesday night (6:00-7:30 p.m.) and Thursday afternoon (4:00-5:30 p.m.). For the remainder of the football season a called rehearsal will be held Friday night (6:00-7:00 p.m.) for final work on Saturday's performance.

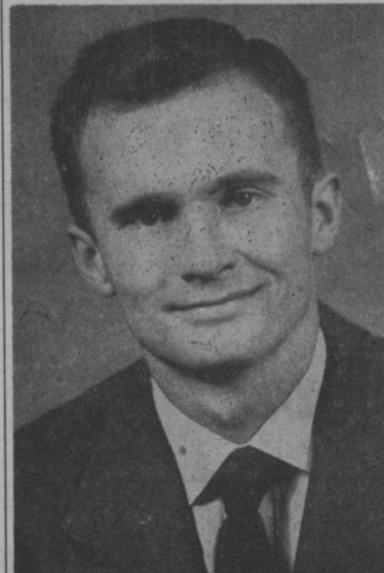

More Pictures, Better Annual Is Staff's Aim

According to Ernest Mincy, Bobashela business manager, approximately 550 annual pictures have been taken. This year's number of pictures was approximately 50

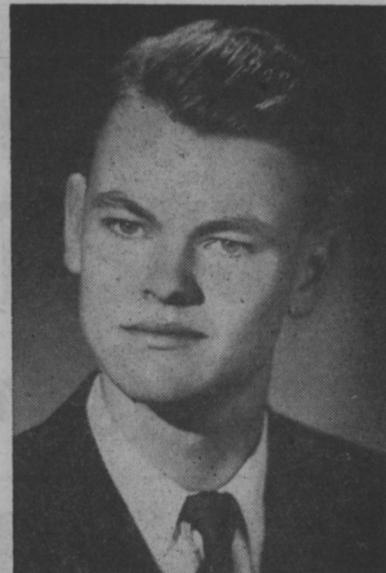

They are: Jo Booth, Dunbar Babbit, Jo Glynn Hughes, Linda Lou McCuller, Joan Wilson, Magdelene Cunningham, Lynn McGrath, and Betty Russell.

Eta Sigma Phi, national classical language honorary, tapped five students and one faculty member. They were: Martha Ann Selby, Betty Hardwick, Walter Ely, Harold Peden, Mike Connor, and Professor George Maddox.

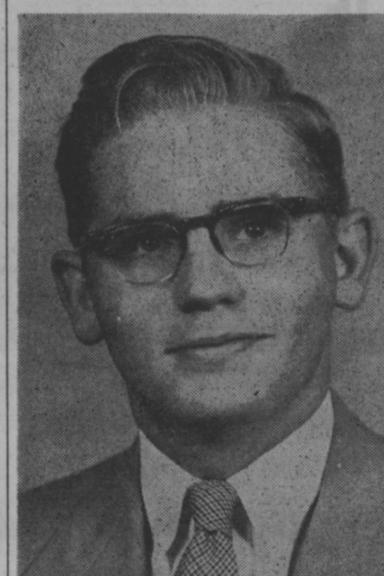

ODK President Sid Head presided over Tap Day ceremonies.

TOMMY WOODARD

Omicron Delta Kappa, men's national leadership honorary on the campus and Sigma Lambda, Women's national leadership honorary, tapped four men and five women, respectively, in the Tap Day exercises yesterday.

Jack Dunbar, Ernest Mincy, Fred Whitam, and Tommy Woodard were tapped into Omicron Delta Kappa. The membership, in addition to those newly tapped, consists of: Sid Head, president; Eddie Gossard, vice-president; Roy Epperson, Dick Berry and W. E. Ayres. Faculty members are: Dr. Ross Moore, Dr. J. S. Ferguson, president Ellis Finger, and Mr. J. W. Woods. Alumni members are: the Rev. Robert Matheny and Mr. Merle Mann.

Tapped into Sigma Lambda were Dunbar Babbit, Jo Anne

Cooper, Edna Khayat, Anne McInvale, and Fredda Shelton. The officers and student members of Sigma Lambda are: Barbara Myers, president; Minnie Farlow, vice-president; Dee Ford, secretary-treasurer; and Audrey Jennings, historian.

Jack Dunbar, senior political science major from Sumner, is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity, having served as president of that group during the summer. He has been active in intramurals and is a member of the M-Club, having lettered two years in baseball. He has appeared in several Millsaps Players productions and is president of Alpha Psi Omega, national dramatic honorary.

Ernest Mincy, senior from Jackson, is business manager of the Millsaps annual, The Bobashela. He is a pre-med student, member of Theta Nu Sigma, national science honorary, and president of Alpha Epsilon Delta, national pre-med honorary.

Fred Whitam, ministerial student from Natchez, is a second semester junior and a Sociology major. He has debated for two years on the Millsaps debate team, and is the sole member of Pi Kappa Delta, national debate honorary. He has been president of the Ministerial League, and has been active in the YMCA and in Wesleyan. Last year, he was a member of the committee that worked on Religious Emphasis Week. He

Study Clinic Opened By McCracken And Morehead In Murrah

A reading and study skills clinic has been started by Dean J. E. McCracken and Miss Mildred Morehead. The first class was held last Friday at 1:30 in room 10 of Murrah Hall. It will meet every Friday.

The class is still open. All students are welcomed, and freshmen should be especially interested.

Civil Service Commission Examinations To Be Held

The United States Civil Service Commission has again announced its Junior Management Assistant and Junior Agricultural Assistant examination for filling positions in Washington, D.C., and throughout the United States. The entrance salary for the agricultural positions is $3,410 a year, and for the management positions, $3,410, and $4,205.

The Junior Management Assistant examination is designed to bring into the Federal service outstanding young men and women for training and future development into future Federal executives. Southern, Ole Miss Win; State Deadlocked By Auburn Mississippi's major football teams are in the old rut again, with two coming out on top of heavy scores and one getting virtually upset.

Ole Miss and Mississippi Southern whipped their opponents with relative ease last Saturday, while Mississippi State blew a 14-0 half-time lead to underdog Auburn, to tie up the ball game and the SEC lead.

The Rebels rolled over Vanderbilt 28-6, overcoming the long-standing jinx held by the Commodores over the Mississippi team. Harold Lofton provided part of the scoring punch and Lea Pasley, Houston Patton, and Eagle Day shared quarterback duties for the day. The Rebels were a different team from the one that dropped to Auburn the week before. This victory puts them back in the win column where they have high hopes of staying until the Maryland encounter.

The Southerners, led by fullback Bucky McElroy, overcame a 7-0 deficit and went on to smother SLI with a tremendous second half scoring spree that put the black and gold out front 41-7 at the final whistle. Halfback Laurin Pepper was hurt in the second quarter and sat out the remainder of the game. The Southern line held SLI down effectively after the first score and cleared the way for McElroy and company to pile up the points.

Favored Mississippi State let a fighting Auburn team score three markers in the last half, including a last-second touchdown, to tie the game at 21-21, and throw the SEC lead into a State-Auburn-Georgia Tech sharing proposition with no defeats and one tie for each team.

Auburn's second-string quarterback, Bobby Freeman, engineered the Plainsmen's comeback and scored the last touchdown himself from two yards out, with only seconds to go in the game.

Freeman set up the score with pass to the four to end Jim Pyburn. The Plainsmen, who had been held scoreless during the first half, kicked the extra point after time had run out to gain the tie.

Maroon quarterback Jackie Parker was his usual brilliant self, running, passing, and handling the ball to perfection, and gaining yardage at will in the first half. He engineered all the State touchdowns, scoring one of the first half markers himself, and kicking three extra points. In the second half the Auburn line rose up and smothered State's offense, taking nothing away from Parker, who played brilliant ball throughout.

The Mississippi College Choctaws ran over a weak Southwestern team to the tune of 25-6 with freshman halfback Bill Gore of Union doing plenty of the heavy work.

Audrey's Annex

By Audrey Jennings

"Have you gone to the fair?" seems to be the latest rallying cry around the campus these days. Fair Week is one of the usually undisputed highlights of the year—nevertheless, I rise in protest.

There seem to be almost as many reasons for going to the fair as there are persons attending. Some go to ride the rides, some to see the shows, some to win a teddy bear, some to show stock, and probably some just for atmosphere. Like everyone else, I have my reasons for going to the fair. I like to ride the ferris wheel, see the rabbits and cows (I just like them), and eat "Pronto Pups." I also love the atmosphere and hope to get a teddy bear (I never have). Mainly, though, my real reasons for making the trip are those above.

A Sad Case History

In the early part of this week I visited the Fair. It was my second time to see a Mississippi fair and I looked forward to it with eager anticipation. I cannot say that I will do the same next year. I made one clumsy mistake—riding the "Tilt-a-Whirl." In my younger days I was strong in courage and stomach, qualities which I regret to say have vanished with the years. Now I panic on the ferris wheel, weaken at the sight of a roller coaster, and lose my usual jovial spirit after the Tilt-a-Whirl. Up until about ten years ago, the aforementioned device was always included in a day's outing to an amusement park, fair, or what-have-you. Then in a burst of wild, youthful exuberance I rode on the Tilt-a-Whirl eight times in succession. If you think this would not have a very deep psychological, not to mention physical effect, do try it sometime.

To Continue

Enough of background material, let's return to the story. I'm glad I saw the rabbits before the Tilt-a-Whirl, for I'm sure I wouldn't have been able to work up the proper enthusiasm for them. I almost couldn't eat a Pronto Pup! Luckily, the only lasting effects (after I learned again to walk) consist only of such things as a stiff neck, dizziness upon moving or not moving, a weak feeling in the pit of my stomach, and similar symptoms. I won't mention what my new motto is, but I suspect that anyone with an IQ of over 1 could figure it out.

Magazine, Invitations Mailed To Alumni By Public Relations

The public relations department of Millsaps has been busy for the last few weeks getting ready for the homecoming at the Choctaw game, Saturday, October 24. The magazine, Major Notes, and post cards are being sent out to all alumni within a 500 mile radius to furnish details and invite them and their families to the festivities.

Beginning today, cards are being mailed to remind the alumni of their dues. Regular dues are $3.00, and sustained dues, including admission to all Millsaps functions, are $12.00.

A new feature of the homecoming will be a baby-sitting service maintained by the Vikings from 3:30 p.m. until 7:00 p.m. This will be for any of the alumni who have small children.

MAJOR MAJOR

Minnie Farlow Is Chosen This Week's Major Major

This week's Major Major is Minnie Farlow, a senior from Jackson. Minnie is majoring in math and hopes to make "loads" of money working for some oil companies.

Here at Millsaps, Minnie is a former member of the 'Y' Cabinet, active in girls intramurals, former class editor and organizations editor of the Bobashela, publicity chairman and reporter of the Majorette Club, a student assistant in math, and on the Dean's List five semesters. She is Chi Omega's representative to Woman's Pan-hellenic and serves as treasurer. A member of Sigma Lambda, woman's leadership honorary, she is vice-president of that organization.

Minnie is affiliated with the Chi Omega social sorority. She has served a treasurer and now holds the position of president.

In reply to what Millsaps means to her, Minnie said, "I guess what I like about Millsaps is the close fellowship of students and faculty alike, the high scholastic standing, and the liberal education it has to offer."

News From Ole Miss, State Catches Student Interest

Peggy Mullin, ex-Millsaps student, is now head majorette at Ole Miss. Her picture made the front page of last week's Mississippian.

In Mary Cain's column in the Summit Sun - paper of Southwest Mississippi Junior College—is an interesting bit: "Love making has not changed in 2,500 years. Greek maidens used to sit and listen to a lyre all evening, too."

Maybe it's a little subversive to mention it, but Miss Pohl of M. S.C.W. has released a list of special dancers. On October 31, they will give their annual fall program—one of the highlights of their Homecoming activities.

From State come some new ideas for Freshman Day. Scabbard and Blade, an ROTC sponsored society, had a five day period of initiation during which the initiates had onion-eating contests, endured impossible drill formations, and suffered through numerous egg wars.

Westminster College in New Wilmington, Pa., is wasting no time in finding out who's who. Their Student Council has already announced their Who's Who Show—it will be a musical show with local talent.

In connection with the observance of the Louisiana Purchase Sesquicentennial, Tulane is pictured in a comprehensive exhibit the history of the Louisiana Territory and the Mississippi Valley. Pictures, maps, models, and historical documents are on display to illustrate events and phases in the area's development—from the days of the early explorers to the heyday of the river steamboat.

Prof. Hardin's Idea Starts Ball Rolling; Murrah Lounge Is Result

Has anyone thought about the how, why, and what connected with the new lounge in Murrah?

As for the how and why, the idea originated with Professor Hardin. One day last summer Professor Hardin went to President Finger with the question, "Why don't we do something with the old auditorium in Murrah?" President Finger liked the idea, and suggested that they use the back of the auditorium as a lounge for students and faculty, a place to

Victorious Team Welcomed Home By Student Rally

The bus had been alive with singing all the way from Conway and, of course, the regular "beat-outs" were in full swing. A certain player was being teased about how many girls would be waiting for him when he got back. Just then the bus rounded the Murrah Hall corner and Tom Boone told the bus driver to cut loose on the air horns... Millsaps was coming home with a victory! Then to everyone's amazement, it happened!

"Look at them come!" "Where is my shirt... quick!" "Is the dorm on fire?" "How did they get out?" "Give me my comb!" "There she is!" All these and doubtless many more comments were made by members of the Millsaps Major's football team. The cause of the excitement was a steady stream of girls in assorted get-ups of bluejeans, rolled-up hair, and raincoats pouring from the dormitories in a mad rush to be the first to greet the biggest hero.

President Finger went to bed early and set his alarm for 1:00 so he could be sure to be up and dressed by the time the boys got back. At 1:15 he was over at the gym and was informed that he had slept through all the noise and excitement. Dr. Wallace was also leaving his home to go to Buie Gym when he met his son returning from the rally after playing ping-pong to keep the boys in the dormitory up. Dean McCracken and Miss Morehead were very welcome members and Jim Livesay was there with his flash-bulb attachment and camera making the boys get off the bus several times so he could be sure to get a good picture. The team seemed to appreciate it... let's hope the good idea is not forgotten!

Homecoming To Be Big Day For All Millsaps Alumni

For Millsaps alumni, Saturday, October 24th, is the BIG DAY. Young and old graduates will be returning to their Alma Mater to shake hands with past schoolmates, to survey the familiar yet ever-changing campus, and to cheer the Millsaps Majors to victory.

about the campus.

Invitations of "Come one, come all," will be issued for the variety program which is scheduled for 4:45. At this time the Alumnus of the Year is to be honored.

At 6:00 the alumni (by this time a trifle weary) are to gather for a banquet. By 8:00, however, they will once more be in high spirits and eager to attend the Majors vs. Choctaws game in Tiger Stadium.

While Mamma and Papa enter into the whirl and bustle of their big day at Millsaps, the "little ones" will be entertained royally by baby sitters from 3:30 p.m. to 7:00 p.m.

Saturday, October 24, is indeed to be the BIG DAY, for Millsaps will open its gates and invite all grads to return home for an unforgettable day with old and new friends.

Return To Denominational Groups Still Undecided

by Bettye Jo Powell

Some of you may have seen or even signed the petition that was started Tuesday regarding the return of the various denominational groups to the campus program. This writer, being of the curious type, asked several students how they felt about this pending question and why. Found below are some of the answers given to satisfy my curiosity.

Fred DeLong: "In view of the fact that students work better in their denominational groups, I say 'yes'."

Linda Lou McCullar: "I think they certainly should, as this is a church college and even though it is supported by the Methodist, it recognizes all denominations."

Ann Turner: "As far as I am concerned if there is a question of doing away with 'Y', I say 'no'."

Bubba Lee: "Yes, some students have lost interest in their church as far as being active is concerned. The YMCA has been a failure and maybe inter-denominational groups can do the job that 'Y' failed to do."

Alleen Davis: "Yes, something should be done to create more interest."

Betty Robbins: "Great to have them again—don't really know why, but it seems it would get more people interested."

Louis Hodges: "I don't know too much about the S.C.A. (Student Christian Association) as it now stands, but I can't see that it is doing anything. If the denominational group existed it would involve more people and the students would have a chance to develop their religious interests."

Janella Lansing: "Yes, I think it would be very good. We need to emphasize religious groups more. I definitely think Millsaps should have a Wesleyan Group."

Odean Puckett: "Yes, I think the denominational group's return would be good, provided they offer a program that will be of benefit to the campus and students and not just another meeting for us to attend."

Grill Post Office Will Remain Open For All Latecomers

Attention all late risers! Now you can get that added beauty-sleep and still get your letter from "the boy back home." Thanks to the Y Commission on Campus and Personal Affairs headed by Ann Orsborn, the Post Office will be open 24 hours a day. (The Commission talked to Mr. Marley who in turn contacted Mr. Wood. The idea was approved, and immediately a door was constructed between the Grill and the Post Office. This door will be locked when the grill is closed but the back door will always be open. Now there is no need to get up before twelve on Saturday just to find someone to go and get your mail before the grill closes—nor is there any need to dash through your experiments in lab just to get to the Grill before five. There is also a light by the mail boxes that can be turned on—or, as Mr. Marley says—OFF!

If your parents are unskilled laborers, your adverse chance of being listed in "Who's Who" are about 48,000 to 1. If skilled laborers, (carpenters, plumbers, mechanics, etc.) your favorable chances are about 1 in 1,600. If farmers, your chances are 1 in 800. If clergymen, 1 in 20.

Majors Down Sewanee Back

Two Millsaps backs and a lineman move in on Sewanee fullback Bill Doswell as he picks up some yardage for Sewanee in last Saturday's game. Stepping over an unidentified Sewanee blocker is halfback Sammy Joe Glorioso (24); quarterback Red Powell (14) moves in from the right to help nail Doswell; and tackle Bobby Joe Smith (70) moves up as insurance.

Majors Clash With Howard; Seek Third Straight Win

Tonight at 8:00 p.m. in Birmingham, Alabama, the Millsaps Majors will be seeking their fourth straight victory over the Howard College Bulldogs, and their third victory of the year.

The two teams first met in 1949, and since then have staged four hard fought and entertaining battles. The Majors have overpowered the Bulldogs in three out of four games.

The results of the series runs like this:

1949 Howard 18 Millsaps 0
1950 Millsaps 18 Howard 7
1951 Millsaps 27 Howard 14
1952 Millsaps 27 Howard 7

Howard was defeated by both Delta State and Mississippi College. They are seeking their first victory of the year, and Coach Bartling doesn't intend for the Majors to be the scapegoat.

This will be the Majors' first Dixie Conference game. If they defeat Howard and the Choctaws, they would automatically become the Dixie Conference Champions for the third straight year.

Coach Bartling stated, "In last week's game against Sewanee, the boys played the game they were capable of playing." He expects this game tonight to be as rugged as the past games with Howard.

Robert Ricord, due to a knee injury in last week's game, will probably be side-lined for the remainder of the season. This was the only serious injury reported from the Sewanee game.

Coach Bartling stated that last week's victory over Sewanee was certainly a "team" victory. He is very proud of the excellent performance exhibited by every player.

The team left this morning around 7:00 a.m. They will have lunch in Tuscaloosa, Ala., and then on to Birmingham for the game tonight. They plan to leave for home early Saturday morning.

The starting line up will probably be the same as it was last week against Sewanee.

Starting at right end will be Eddie Khayat or John Little, and on left end will be Bennie Kirkland. The tackles will be Jackie Mann and Cecil Trantham. On left guard will be Johnny Awad or Tom Prewitt, and Tom Boone on right guard. At center will be Art O'Neil or Charles Catledge.

In the backfield, it will be Glenn Cain at left halfback, Sammy Glorioso at right halfback, "Red" Powell at quarterback, and John Lowery at fullback.

When a girl finds she is not the only pebble on the beach, she gets a little boulder.

Wife: I wonder why they say love is the greatest thing in the world?

Hubby: You've got me.

Wife: Yeah, maybe that is my trouble.

Visitor: How did your horse happen to win?

Jockey: Well, I just kept whispering in his ear, "Roses are red, violets are blue; horses who lose are made into glue."

The reason a lot of people cannot find opportunity is that it goes about disguised as hard work.

The Majors have continued to improve at their early season pace, and as the season approaches the half-way mark, it appears that they could go undefeated for the remainder of the year. All the games should be close, hard-fought contests, and with the various rivalries the Majors have built up, the likelihood of an unbeaten record from here is very slim, but still a possibility.

Changes in the line-up of the Majors by Coach Bartling have had a lot to do with the improvement.

The most important change came last week when Glenn Cain, first string quarterback, was shifted to right halfback. Glorioso was shifted from right half to left half, and Red Powell was called upon to replace Cain at quarterback.

We thought that "Red," a sophomore letterman from Memphis, did very well last Saturday against Sewanee. He is not, in our opinion, as good a runner as Cain, but he calls the plays that grind out yardage, and has impressed us as being a much better passer.

Also, with Cain at halfback where his running ability can be used to the fullest extent, the Majors have a backfield of three hard-running, break-a-way men, and a stronger passing attack.

We will go off the deep end this week and make a prediction. From our perch, it looks like the Majors by at least two touchdowns at Howard Friday night. The Majors will not see this edition until after the game; therefore, their confidence will not be pushed any nearer the dangerous precipice of over-confidence.

Our neighbors over in the west pastures have also been making an impressive record, so the game next week is shaping up to be a real rock 'em-sock 'em affair. The Chocs will be out to avenge our narrow victory last year, and they will be looking to give Coach Sammy Bartling his first Mississippi College loss in his third season as coach of the Majors.

Majors Pick Up Second Win By Walloping Sewanee 35-6

Last Saturday the Millsaps Majors took every advantage given them by the Sewanee Tigers, and rolled to a 35-6 victory. The Majors built up a 21-0 half-time lead, and then, with second and third string men playing most of the last half, they added two more touchdowns in their impressive victory.

The game featured the long runs of half back Glenn Cain, recently converted from quarterback, and the line plunges of fullback John Lowry. Cain also made good on every attempt at extra point conversion.

Red Powell, in his first starting roll for the Majors, filled with poise and confidence Cain's shoes at the all important quarterback post. He was backed up by Billy Greenlee, who passed for considerable yardage and engineered the Major's fourth touchdown.

Bright spot of the game for the Majors was the emergence of two backfield combinations with scoring punch. Powell, Cain, Lowry, and Glorioso started and piled up three touchdowns in the first half. The Majors have won another one, and by a pretty lop-sided score, too. The Choctaws are piling up the points, as well; they took Southwestern 25-6 Saturday night. October 24 might be pretty exciting, at that.

All sorts of felicitations to the band for their much appreciated performance at the game Saturday. We were impressed with the quality of the show, considering the very limited time they had to work up their routine and rehearse. We're looking forward to some real half-time entertainment now that the ball is rolling.

How do you like the new lounge in Murrah? We expressed our views on lounges in general some weeks ago—that is, that we feel they aren't perhaps the primary need of the campus—but we are forced to admit that the new one is most attractive and convenient.

The modern furniture is comfortable as well, and we haven't found a better place to read philosophy between classes.

In connection with the lounge, it has been mentioned that there are already rings on those new black tables from Coca-cola bottles. This is, understandably, disturbing to those who are responsible for the whole business, and it would be greatly appreciated if the students could find a sheet of paper to protect the tables. We would like to suggest the possibility of permanent pads of some sort for protection.

The year is moving along at a pretty good clip. Tests and such indicate that we are getting deep into our courses, and activities are hitting their stride.

Not the least of these is Tap Day, which has just occurred. Yesterday in a ceremony sponsored by Omicron Delta Kappa the honoraries on the campus tapped to membership those students who have attained high achievement in various activities.

Congratulations are due each and every tappee and we extend them now on behalf of the Purple and White. Particular congratulations are due those tapped into the two leadership honoraries, Omicron Delta Kappa, and Sigma Lambda. These two organizations honor those campus leaders who have been exceptional in extra-curricular activities and in leadership and service to the school. To become a member of either of these honoraries is a signal honor and not to be taken lightly, either by those tapped, or by the student body at large.

School spirit is being fanned, as Dr. Wroten would say. Attendance at the ball game was not as large as would have been desirable, nor was the enthusiasm as great as could be wished, but in all, we have improved since the beginning of the season.

That spirit that is in there needs to be fanned a little more, though, before we take on the boys from across the way. Today we're traveling to Birmingham to meet Howard, and next week we get our shot at the Chocs. If we start now, with preparations for the Homecoming festivities, and building up the spirit that we do have, with a view to making this the most successful Homecoming we have ever had (with a victory over the Chocs thrown in), we should have a full head of steam come next Saturday.

Independent SEB Election: Not What It Should Have Been

Last Thursday during chapel, it was announced by Dr. J. D. Wroten for SEB president Tommy Woodard that a meeting of all independent students not affiliated with Vikings or Norsemen would be held for the purpose of electing representatives to SEB.

A conservative estimate would place the number of independent students at 200. Probably there are considerably more.

Sixty-five students remained in chapel for the election. Vice-president Howard Cheek and President Woodard held the election, in spite of the fact that there was some question of a quorum—defined by the constitution as 25% of the total enrollment of independent students.

Earlier in the week—Tuesday, to be exact, a special meeting was called for this purpose. A notice was placed on the bulletin board one week in advance, as provided by the constitution. At this meeting were some twenty people. The meeting was postponed until Thursday when everybody could hear the announcement and, being there, "would no doubt be interested enough to remain for the election."

The election was held Thursday, poor attendance notwithstanding, and will stand. The two people elected might well have been elected had the whole of the independent group voted. They may be expected to do as good a job as any two people in school.

That is not the point. The point is that it was only through the perseverance of the heads of SEB that the election was held at all, and that when every independent on the campus had an opportunity to remain and vote, with no class for nearly thirty minutes, only a bare fourth chose to do so.

No group of people who are so apathetic as to walk out of chapel and sit down in the lounge across the hall, and who refuse to take the trouble to come back for the election even when asked individually by someone who is interested enough to care, as some were, deserves a voice on SEB.

Independents, you who didn't think it was important enough to bother with; you have a voice on the Student Executive Board. You have an able voice, who will work for your good and for your "rights."

You don't deserve it. You don't have any rights as concerns a voice on SEB. You forfeited that right when you failed to take the trouble to elect that voice.

If you ever catch yourself saying that this campus is run by a few people in fraternities and sororities, remember that it is your own fault and no less than you deserve. Those very "few fraternity and sorority people" went to a great deal of trouble to give you representation which you do not in the least deserve.

If this makes you mad, good. It's meant to.

Whenever the members of a democracy of any sort reach the point at which they take their democracy for granted to the extent of neglecting the right (which is also a duty) they stand in grave danger of losing that right. And then they scream about the government's taking over.

The independents of Millsaps stand in just that danger now. If this school ever has representation on Student Government by classes, the independents will be out in the cold unless they discontinue their present attitude.

The independent group on this campus could, by its very size, have a strong vote in campus affairs. Until they take their responsibility seriously, they will have, not a weak voice, but no voice.

It's about time this group quit being so proud of being independent that they can't feel any duty or responsibility to themselves if not to their school.

The independents will have an opportunity to redeem themselves by pitching in and doing a real job on the campus decorations for Homecoming, which job has been set aside for them by the Homecoming Committee.

offer excellent opportunity for advancement. To qualify, applicants must pass written tests and must have had appropriate education or a combination of education and experience. Students who expect to complete their courses by June 30, 1954, may apply. Appropriate experience alone may be qualifying for some positions. Candidates for the Junior Management Assistant who meet the requirements will be given an oral interview. The age limits, waived for persons entitled to veteran preference, are 18 to 35 years (except for the position of Agricultural Writer-Editor for which there is no maximum age limit).

Further information and application forms may be secured from the Placement Office or from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, 25, D.C. For the Junior Management Assistant examination, applications must be filed not later than November 12, 1953; for the Junior Agricultural Assistant examination, not later than December 1, 1953.

Plans For Homecoming Day Ready For Students, Alums

Plans are fast shaping up for the 1953 Millsaps Homecoming Day on Saturday, October 24.

The high point of the Homecoming Day program will be the crowning of the Homecoming Queen during the half-time ceremonies of the Major-Choctaw game.

Five girls, nominated by the M-Club, will be candidates for the Homecoming Throne. The student body will meet Tuesday in chapel to select the Queen. The remaining four girls will serve as Maids of Homecoming.

The initial event of the day will be a parade on Capitol Street featuring the Millsaps Band, sorority and fraternity floats, and gaily bedecked student and alumni automobiles. The parade will begin at 2:00 p.m. at the west end of the downtown business district and proceed eastward to the War Memorial Building where a giant pep rally will be held. Plans are being formulated to present a prize for the best float to the organization sponsoring it at this time. Following the pep session the students and alumni will return to the campus to continue the festivities.

On the campus there will be several showings of the movie, "A Day In The Life of a Millsaps Student" beginning at 3:30 in the Christian Center Auditorium. Between showings punch will be served in the lounges and alumni will have the opportunity to greet old friends. Each sorority and fraternity will hold informal open house for visiting alumni throughout the evening.

At 4:45 a variety program will be presented in the auditorium of the Christian Center, featuring award presentations and music by the Singers and the band. The alumnus, chosen by a faculty-student-alumni committee, who is selected as alumnus of the year will be formally presented and honored. Following the presentations the Singers will sing two numbers from the Messiah and the band will play several selections, including some novelty numbers, to conclude the program.

The annual alumni banquet will be held in the cafeteria at 6:00 p.m. after which the alumni will go as a group to the football game.

In addition to the Coronation Ceremony at halftime, both the Millsaps and Mississippi College Bands will put on a marching show.

The committee in charge of Homecoming preparations consists of Roy Price, chairman, Johnny Howell, Jack Dunbar, Carolyn Baria, and Ann Orsborn.

The alumni committee for Homecoming consists of chairman Zach Taylor, Jim Livesay, W. E. Ayres, Dr. Ross Moore, and Mr. James Wood.

The Vikings will provide baby sitting service from 3:30 to 7:00 for children of alumni.

The campus decorations have been turned over to the Independents. Roy Epperson and Louise Hight are the heads of the committee, and the job will be spearheaded by the Vikings and Norsemen, with the help of all campus independents.

The day's activities will be culminated by a dance after the game sponsored by the Inter-Fraternity Council.

INTRAMURALS

Girls Volleyball In Full Swing; Games Exciting

All the spirited yells and screams heard in Buie Gym each afternoon from three until four does not mean that the Majors are playing the Choctaws, but that the girls' intramural volleyball games have begun.

For the past two weeks the five teams led by Peggy Falkner, Lucy Robinson, Minnie Farlow, Aspacia Athas, and Ivy Wallace have shown a mounting enthusiasm.

Ivy Wallace's team, team 4, succeeded in triumphing over Minnie Farlow's team, team 3, by the score of 35 to 16. High scorer for Wallace's team was Gail Fielder with 19 points. The losing side's high scored was Virginia Hewitt with 6 points.

Team 1, headed by Peggy Falkner, topped team 2, led by Lucy Robinson, by the score of 49 to 20. Mary Lynn Graves was high scorer for Team 1.

Aspacia Athas' team won by a forfeit from Lucy Robinson's team.

The most exciting game played thus far was between teams 1 and 4, with Team 1 winning by the score of 31 to 27. High scorers for Falkner's team were Yvonne Moss and Frances Jernigan. Gail Fielder was again high scorer for Wallace's team.

Next week's games are as follows:

Monday 3:00 p.m.—Farlow vs. Athas
Monday 4:00 p.m.—Wallace vs. Robinson
Wednesday 3:00 p.m.—Robinson vs. Falkner
Wednesday 4:00 p.m.—Farlow vs. Wallace
Thursday 3:00 p.m.—Athas vs. Falkner

HOMECOMING BEGINS TONIGHT

Vol. LXVI MILLSAPS COLLEGE, JACKSON, MISS., OCTOBER 23, 1953

No. 6

Mississippi College Has Homecoming Here Sat.

Mississippi College will have their Homecoming ceremonies tomorrow along with the Millsaps Homecoming ceremonies, it was announced to the Purple and White late last week by SEB President Tommy Woodard after a meeting with campus leaders from Mississippi College.

The Choctaw parade will be at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon. The two parades will each be held on Capitol Street one after the other.

The Mississippi College Homecoming Queen will be crowned at 7:45 before the ball game. At the half, in addition to the Millsaps coronation, both bands will march.

Setting of the M.C. Homecoming at the Millsaps-Mississippi College game was the work of an M.C. Alumni Committee, according to President Woodard, after meeting with the M.C. student officers.

Millsaps Homecoming preparations will go on as before with some slight modification as to schedule.

Mangum, Grantham Chosen Editor, Manager Of Stylus

Frank Mangum and Mary Grantham have been named editor and business manager respectively for the 1953-54 edition of Stylus, campus literary magazine.

A senior English major from Natchez, Mangum is a staff writer for the Purple and White, a Kit

Kat tappee, and a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Miss Grantham, a Jackson senior, is an economics major. She is president of Beta Sigma Omicron and a department editor for the Bobashela.

Contributions are now being received for the December 1 edition of Stylus. Past issues have included short stories, poems, and formal and informal essays — a substantial portion of which were written by freshmen.

Stylus is published once every semester. Last year, because of financial difficulties, it was published only the first semester. This year will mark the fourth year of publication.

R. L. McCarter has been editor for the past three semesters. Claude Smith served as business manager. Miss Thomasina Blisard is the faculty advisor.

Eddie Gossard.

Plans for homecoming were discussed. The homecoming committee's plans were read and approved.

The band was given a new time and the activities calendar was again turned over to JoAnne Cooper. The question of the re-establishment of the demoninational groups was taken up first because the budget hinges on it. Investigation was referred to a committee made up of Yeager Hudson, chairman; Julia Allen, Ann McInvale, Oscar Walley, and

by Dick Bibler

"... Just what it says—'If _____ of _____ what _____ is _____?' If you had read the assignment, that question would be perfectly clear."

The "Little Man On Campus" Comes To Millsaps College

A new face will adorn the office of the Purple and White, and incidentally, the pages of the paper, for the rest of this semester.

A scatter-brained young man with a flair for getting into the most absurd situations imaginable on a college campus, a vacant-eyed stare, and wild black hair has become a member of the P&W staff.

The name is "Worthal," though "Worthless" would seem more applicable to his companions. "Worthless" is not the consensus of the P&W staff, however. Worthal, better known to many as "the Little Man on the Campus," is worth a laugh almost any time.

"Little Man on the Campus," a one panel cartoon for college newspapers is the creation of Dick Bibler, a former (and not very long ago) student at Kansas State.

Bibler is a former Associated Collegiate Press cartoonist who struck gold with "Little Man on the Campus" and is now in business for himself.

Bibler, who's been scribbling cartoons since 12, experimented with 12 Worthal faces before selecting the one which adorns college newspaper humor pages this fall.

Through Worthal, Bibler's pen pokes fun at professors (Prof. Snarf is the cartoon's tyrant teacher) classes, registration, athletics, rush week, and college in general.

Bibler sometimes cuts a bit deep with his double-edged humor, but all in all the cartoons provide a good chuckle for all concerned and a deep guffaw if you are not the object of the pointed pen.

STUDENTS INVITED TO HOMECOMING ACTIVITIES

All Millsaps under-graduate students and their parents are invited to the afternoon program in connection with Homecoming. The activities will begin at 3:30 tomorrow afternoon in the Christian Center Auditorium and will include showings of the Millsaps film, "A Day in the Life of a Millsaps Student," a variety show, and music by the Band and the Singers. This announcement is made by Jim Livesay for the Alumni Homecoming Committee.

festivities will be a dormitory party in the Galloway Hall living room at 7:30 after the bonfire rally tonight. The entire campus is invited to the party which will feature refreshments, music, local talent, and "just plain fun," as have dorm parties in the past.

Tomorrow at 2:00 p.m. the parade will take place and will be followed by the Choctaw parade. Professors will drive their cars in the parade, and plans are being made to have the freshmen march as a pep squad behind the cheerleaders. Floats, cars (student, faculty, and alumni), etc., will form between 1:00 and 1:30 in front of Murrah and the Christian Center tomorrow afternoon and will proceed down North State to the east end of Capitol Street. The parade will move from the east end of Capitol down the main drag and pass through the underpass at the I. C. depot. There will be no pep rally at the War Memorial. This is being done in co-operation with the Police Department to co-incide with previous plans made by the Choctaws for their parade.

The Millsaps-Mississippi College football game will take place at 8 p.m. at Tiger Stadium. The crowning of Mississippi College's Homecoming Queen will take place before the game at 7:45.

Bobashela To Have Male Favorites; Election Tuesday

Five male favorites in addition to five girl favorites will be chosen in the Bobashela election for Master Major and Miss Millsaps to be held Tuesday from 8 to 1 in Murrah.

A plurality will decide who will be Master Major and Miss Millsaps. The five boys and five girls with the highest number of votes will be favorites. The ballot box will be set up in the hall in Murrah. Each student will vote for Master Major, Miss Millsaps, five boys, and five girls of his own choice for favorites. There will be no nominations. This year's annual will be the first in the history of the college to feature male favorites.

Bobashela beauties will be selected as usual by an off the campus judge. Each girls' social organization will put up three girls. Pictures of them will be sent to be judged. Five beauties will be selected from this number.

According to Editor Fred DeLong this year's feature section is to be one on a new type of paper, "sepia-tone." It is felt that this will add greatly to the beauty of the 1954 Bobashela.

T. W. Lewis and Betty Small were the 1953 Master Major and Miss Millsaps.

Psychology Club Has Monthly Meeting; Stewart Is Speaker

Mr. Charles Stewart, a 1949 Millsaps graduate with a major in psychology, was the featured speaker at the monthly meeting of the Psychology Club held October 14, at the home of Dr. Ray S. Musgrave. Mr. Stewart received his masters degree from Ole Miss and is now a research psychologist for the army. The subject of his talk was "Psychological Research in the Army."

Officers of the club are: Yeager Hudson, president; Leslie Page, vice president; and Joe Ebersole, secretary. The group meets every month. Plans are being made for a social next month.

Ancient Art Of Magazine Parody Is Revived In American Colleges

Top magazines which take themselves seriously—and which ones don't—may have to look to their laurels. For, according to an article in the November issue of Pageant Magazine, college parodies on Time, Life, the New Yorker, Pageant, etc. may become far more intriguing than the magazines themselves.

From Superman to Life, no magazine is safe. The college calmly takes the professional magazine's style, lay-out, and special techniques and proceeds to misuse them, with diabolical accuracy, to crucify the staff, the printer, the advertiser, and the general public for buying the magazine in the first place.

How do college magazines get away with it? There are three answers to this question says Pageant, all of which point the way to bigger and better parodies in the future.

1. College students tread a thin line between shaky solvency and financial impoverishment. Threat of a libel suit frightens them about as much as a foreclosure on their dormitory rooms.

2. They would probably put out magazine parodies anyway.

3. Their victims love it. The Ladies Home Journal furnished expensive engraving plates for the creation of Columbia's "Ladies Home Journal." Other magazines of greater or lesser circulation have cheerfully followed suit. And, despite the barbs, insults, and scorn, a parody pretty well establishes an important point no magazine editor ever tires of hearing:

Someone is reading his magazine.

And there was the little girl who swiped her mother's corset and then couldn't wear it—no guts.

Decell Memorial Collection Now Ready For Use

The library committee—consisting of Mrs. Goodman, chairman; Dr. Ferguson; Dr. Price; and Professor Sanders, ex-officio—announces that the library has received and is now making available to students the Decell Collection. These books are the gift of Miss Frances Decell, a former professor at Millsaps, and her brother W. J. Decell and come from the library of their father, J. Lloyd Decell, a beloved bishop of the Methodist Church and president of the Board of Trustees of Millsaps from 1938 to 1946.

These books range from those on religious subjects to biographies and books on general and local history. Included are the twenty volume set of Great Texts of the Bible, Durant's The Story of Civilization, and Freeman's definitive biography of Robert E. Lee. In addition, there are several dictionaries and lexicons which have added value because they are duplicates and may be circulated.

The Decell Memorial Collection is a fine addition to the Millsaps library and an appropriate memorial to this great friend of the college.

Science Foundation Offers 750 Graduate Fellowships

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 9, 1953—The National Science Foundation has recently announced that it plans to award approximately 750 graduate and postdoctoral fellowships for study in the sciences for the 1954-1955 academic year. These fellowships which are open only to citizens of the United States will be awarded solely on the basis of ability. They are offered in the mathematical, physical, medical, biological, and engineering sciences, including physical anthropology, psychology (excluding clinical psychology), physical geography and interdisciplinary fields.

Students studying for either their masters' or doctoral degrees are eligible for graduate fellowships at the first year, intermediate, or terminal year levels of graduate study. College seniors majoring in the sciences and who expect to receive a baccalaureate degree during the 1953-54 academic year are encouraged to apply for the awards. Individuals who have received a doctoral degree or who can produce evidence of training in a field of science equivalent to the training represented by a doctoral degree in science are eligible to apply for a post-doctoral fellowship.

The selection of predoctoral Fellows will be based on test score of scientific aptitude and achievement, academic records, and recommendations regarding each candidate's abilities. Post-doctoral applicants will not be required to take the examination. The evaluation of each candidate's qualifications will be made by panels of scientists chosen by the National Academy of Sciences. The final selection of Fellows will be made by the National Science Foundation.

The annual stipends for predoctoral Fellows range from $1400 to $1800; the stipend for postdoctoral Fellows is $3400. In addition to providing limited allowances for dependents and travel, tuition and certain required fees will be paid by the Foundation. The tenure of a fellowship is for one year and can be arranged to begin at any time after June 1, 1954, but normally must not be later than the beginning of the 1954-1955 academic year at the institution of the Fellow's choice.

In order to be considered for the 1954-1955 academic year, postdoctoral applications must be received in the Fellowship Office of the National Research Council by December 15, 1953 and graduate applications by January 4, 1954.

Detailed information and application forms may be secured from the Fellowship Office, National Research Council, 2101 Constitution Avenue, N. W., Washington 25, D. C.

BUS WILL GO TO SOUTHWESTERN

The Majorette Club is sponsoring a bus to take Millsaps students to Memphis next week for the Millsaps-Southwestern football game. The cost will be $5.75 per student for a round trip. A list will be placed on the bulletin board for those interested to sign. The game is Southwestern's Homecoming.

That old annual day is almost with us again. Upon closing my eyes I can see endless floats, streams of crepe paper (Who did you say could get it for us wholesale?), frantic costume-making, theme-planning, and all with a cheery smile for our visitors.

There's another side to Homecoming festivities, too. You're right—the Alumni are here to have their day.

If the brisk pace of activities planned doesn't wear them out, the alums should give us a lot of help in asking Major fans what they would like for dinner. There's one thing you really must give the Choctaws credit for. They do work up more school spirit around Millsaps than anything or anyone else ever does.

Has it ever occurred to you that before long, you, too, will be an alum? I've been considering the problem and feel that close observance of tomorrow's guests is the only solution. I'm going to do some shrewd watching to plan how to behave and react next year when I visit my Alma Mater.

Beware, One And All

I'd like to give just a word to the wise, now, if you didn't mind. Next Saturday brings a day that is very significant to any who may come in contact with what are loosely called children. Hallo'ween, you know, brings out the ghosts, skeletons, etc., as inevitably as, well, Homecoming. Drawing on past experiences, I would like to relate one which is very significant. While making an exit after a quiet supper at the Juke last year, I was nearly given a heart attack by three small goblins, witches, or something similar. This year I plan to look behind doors, peer into corners, and take any other necessary precautions. My only advice is for all to do the same.

Student Executive Board Is Not Local Mystery Cult

Do you know about the mystery cult on Millsaps campus? Sometimes Millsaps students ask this in regard to S.E.B. Students just don't have an knowledge of this organization unless they are on S.E.B. or unless they get their curiosity stirred up.

The Student Executive Board is the student voice on the campus. Each student has a voice in the government by virtue of the fact that he is a Millsaps student. If you have a question or suggestion the S.E.B. welcomes you to come before them with it.

The S.E.B. keeps everything running as far as student activity is concerned. This group sets up the social dates and meeting time of the different organizations. Along with this the student executive board has the power to change certain organizational groups.

Right now, with the discussions over denominational groups, students have their opportunity to "sound-off" and make things go their way. Student opinion will be a help in determining the answer.

S.E.B. has the task of dividing the student activities fund among the different organizations which need money to operate—Purple and White, Singers, and the Band, to name only a few.

The Student Executive Board is made up of the three officers elected by the student body; president, vice-president, and secretary-treasurer. In a true sense other members are elected but not by the student body as a whole. The Presidents of the Inter-Fraternity Council and the Women's Pan-Hellenic Council with the President of the Vikings and the president of the Norsemen, two Independent representatives, the President of the band, the President of the Singers, the President of Y, President of Woman's Council, editor of the Purple and White, editor of the Bobashela, make up the working part of the organization.

Since democratic principles are stressed on our campus, it is the duty of every student to know how their S.E.B. works. If you are to be a good citizen in later life you must be a good citizen on your college campus. Effective student government comes about only when the student body as a whole strives for it.

Bring That Spirit Out In The Air Where It Can Breathe For A Change

The door of the Millsaps 1953-54 school session was opened several weeks ago by the citizens of the Millsaps campus. As these first few weeks of school have come and gone, many of us, if not all, have realized and literally felt the growing warmth of the school spirit that is in each of us (credit to Dr. Bergmark for this thought.)

Tomorrow's parade, pep rally and the most important game of games will give this spirit a chance to come bursting forth with all the radiance and excitement that we can squeeze from our busy bodies. With the social organizations preparing colorful floats and the independent groups put-

Certainly all of us can't meet the lads from the south pasture on the gridiron, but each of us can do our part in helping to make the parade, pep rally, and the game a booming success, by not only being present but by showing the enthusiasm and interest that we have for our future Alma Mater. If by chance, you have been guilty of letting your "spirit" lie buried down deep inside, how about giving it a chance to come out into the open and breathe awhile? We'll look forward to seeing you, your spirit, and all the accompanying cow bells and noise makers tonight at the pep rally and tomorrow night at Tiger Stadium.

The portly man was trying to get his seat at the circus. "Pardon me," he said to a woman. "Did I step on your foot?"

"I imagine so," she replied, after glancing at the ring. "All the elephants are still out there."

'Judge' Magazine; Satire Weekly Is Back Again

NEW YORK, N. Y.—October 21—The new JUDGE Magazine arrives today. It will be available on leading newsstands every Wednesday.

We believe you will be especially interested in the "Cheer Leaders" department which will be a double-page spread of the best humorous material reprinted from the various college and university publications throughout the country.

JUDGE, the famous weekly of satire and humor, was founded in 1881, and reached its greatest success in the roaring twenties and terrific thirties. In those tempestuous times, JUDGE was the calm clear voice of traditional American values and ideals.

Now, JUDGE is back to amuse and entertain. But it will have a serious note, too, in its weekly editorial. JUDGE will continue its heritage as the guardian of American traditions. It will once again use the power of the cartoon to present political, economic, and social questions in a clear-cut, affirmative American manner.

In addition to numerous pages of jokes, satire, cartoons, and verse, JUDGE will contain the following regular departments:

JUDGING THE NEWS, POLITICAL SATIRE, JUDGE, JR., BRIDGE, CUCKOO CROSS-WORDS, SPORTS, CHEER LEADERS, HORSES, THEATRE, RADIO, TV, MOVIES.

Marguerite Twinem, Missions Secretary, To Visit Millsaps

Miss Marguerite Twinem, Secretary of Missionary Personnel for the Board of Missions of the Methodist Church, will be on our campus October 30th and 31st. She will be glad to have conferences with students whose interests lie in Christian Service. There is a possibility that group meetings will be planned at which she will speak.

Miss Twinem is a native of Nebraska, a graduate of Redlands University in California with a Master's degree from the Kentucky School Missions. In 1948 she received her B. D. Degree from Garrett Biblical Institute. She served as a missionary in China under the Woman's Division of Christian Service and has visited mission work in Asia, Africa, and South America. She has served as minister of Education at the First Methodist Church in Fresno and in Riverside, California as well as in our Methodist Church in Tientsin and Nanking, China.

Arrangements for an interview with Miss Twinem may be made through Dr. J. D. Wroten or Becky Lovett.

JACKSON, MISSISSIPPI

MAJOR MAJOR

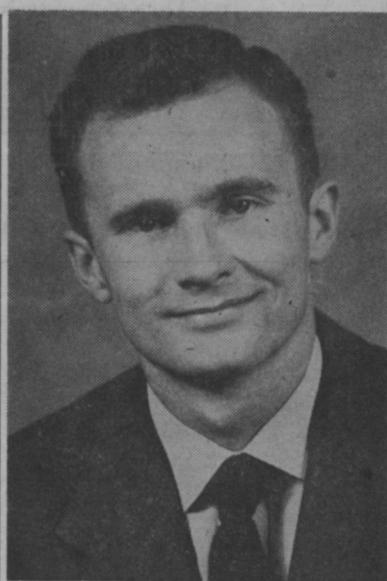

President Of Alpha Psi This Week's Major Major

This week's Major Major is Jack Dunbar, senior from Sumner. Jack is majoring in political science and hopes to go on to law school, probably at the University of Mississippi.

On the campus, Jack is active in boys' intramurals, a 2-year letter man in baseball, a member of the Millsaps Players, and president of Alpha Psi Omega, the national dramatic honorary. He has appeared in the productions "The Hasty Heart", "A Phoenix Too Frequent", "The Death Of A Salesman", and "The Philadelphia Story". He will portray the part of Tiresias in "The Infernal Machine" and direct one of the one-act plays.

A member of Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity, Jack served as president during the summer. He is now pledge trainer.

Last week Jack was tapped into Omicron Delta Kappa, the national men's honorary, in recognition of his leadership and accomplishments.

Case History Tells Story Of Co-ed's Second Offense

This is a true case history taken from the files of Founders Precinct of the Millsaps Police Department concerning one of the inmates of cell thirteen. This is 1301's story told in her own words:

Let me tell you how my life of crime began so that others will not make the same mistakes. I came to the city, a law abiding, respected citizen. But I was just a small town girl; I was drunk on freedom, and adventure. When I returned to the dormitory in my intoxicated state, I could not come down out of the clouds long enough to sign "in" by my name. The first time I forgot to sign "in" I received a reprimand. The next time I was caught, I was booked, fingerprinted, and given a two-day campus.

I began serving my time. The first day I studied, wrote letters, washed all of my clothes (clean and dirty) and took my first lesson in bridge. The second day I began to get slightly stir crazy. I didn't really want to go out, but just knowing that I couldn't have gone out anyway began to play on my nerves. My sentence ended before I cracked up completely.

Sunday, October 11, 1953, 10:00 P.M. I was called down to the Founders Precinct and booked again on the same charge, second offense. I was sentenced to a five-day campus. I am now on the second day of the sentence. I have read five hundred pages of outside reading, cleaned my cell, and studied. I am saving my washing until I really need occupational therapy to save me from a mental breakdown.

Three more days and I will be free. If I am booked again it will be the third offense on the same charge. A three time loser is sent up for life.

Perplexed Feature Writer Wonders If Boys Can Define Ideal Co-ed

"Tall, short, skinny, fat, big smile, tiny smile—heck, I don't know! You just write something and say I said it. After all I can't describe an ideal co-ed in definite terms." Does this puzzle you? It should. It certainly did perplex and give twenty million grey hairs to one reporter, who, because of a trying day, is at present just a "crazy mixed-up kid."

One bright and sunny day the telephone rang three short rings, and a certain reporter was given an assignment which she thought was to be fairly easy and more than a little fun. She was to interview not one, but TEN boys!

You can understand why the next morning at daybreak she eagerly bounded out of bed, (stumped her toe in the process) jumped into her sweater and skirt, dashed for the cafeteria and began her ten interviews. But, wait a minute—it wasn't as easy as all that! Hours later when night came, a weary, discouraged, and heartsick reporter returned to her quarters with "mission unaccomplished."

Oh yes, she had used her freshly-sharpened pencils and brand new pack of notebook paper interviewing boys. Hundreds of them it seemed, and they all had told her the same thing.

"My ideal co-ed? Well, uh, it's like this. Uh, shucks, I—I, well, shucks—who ever heard of such!"

Now this reporter asks you, "Do boys really know what their definition of an ideal co-ed is?"

A little man came into the office of a psychiatrist and said timidly, "I was wondering if you could split my personality for me?"

The doctor looked puzzled. "Split your personality? Why would you want that?"

Tears streamed down the little man's face. "Oh doctor," he wailed, "I'm so lonesome."

MAJORS MEET CHOCS TOMORROW

Follow The Leader

Millsaps halfback Hardy Nall leads a parade of three Sewanee players and fullback Lewis Alexander of Millsaps in scoring the Majors' fourth touchdown in the game with the Tigers two weeks ago. Nall took a pitch-out from quarterback Bill Greenlee and circled left end for the score.

Majors Edge Bulldogs 16-13 In Tight Affair Last Friday

The Millsaps Majors, led by fullback John Lowery, came from behind twice last Friday night to defeat the Howard Bulldogs 16-13 in Birmingham.

Lowery plunged for the first Major touchdown early in the third quarter, and scored again in the last period after running 27 yards to the Howard three. Millsaps added two more points late in the game with a safety.

Howard was the first team to push across a score. The Bulldogs reached paydirt in the second quarter when quarterback Charles Anderson threw a 19-yard touchdown pass to end Bobby Karrh. Tom Upshaw kicked the extra point to put the Majors behind 7-0 at the half.

Millsaps struck early in the third quarter when quarterback Red Powell intercepted a Bulldog pass and ran to the Howard 13. The Majors hammered to the 3 from where Lowery scored. Halfback Glenn Cain made the extra point good to tie the score 7-7.

Halfback Darrel Holmes set up the second Howard tally late in the third quarter with a 31 yard run to the Millsaps 25. The Bulldogs kept rolling and Halfback Ed McCool scored from the one early in the fourth period. This time Upshaw's try for conversion was no good when his kick hit the upright. Had the kick been good, Howard would not have had to take chances late in the ball game, and the game could well have ended in a 14-14 tie.

Millsaps recovered a Howard fumble at the 50 to get their second scoring underway. Lowery sparked the drive with a 27 yard sprint to the 3 and then burst across the goal line on the next play. Cain converted to put the Majors in front to stay, 14-13.

Kappa Sigs Are Speedball Champs In First Round

By George Hunt

The Kappa Sigs captured top honors in the first half of speedball. The Pikes took second.

The Sig team claimed first place honors by dropping the preachers 13-2. The Sigs hit pay dirt for 7 points to take the lead. The preachers struck back with a safety for 2 points which put them back into the game, but the Sig offense rolled for another touchdown assuring them the game and first place.

The Pikes edged the KA's 13-0 in a rugged game which gave them second place in the race. The Pikes pushed across a touchdown in the third quarter and scored again in the fourth quarter while the KA's were held scoreless. Defense was outstanding, with most of the game being played in the middle of the field.

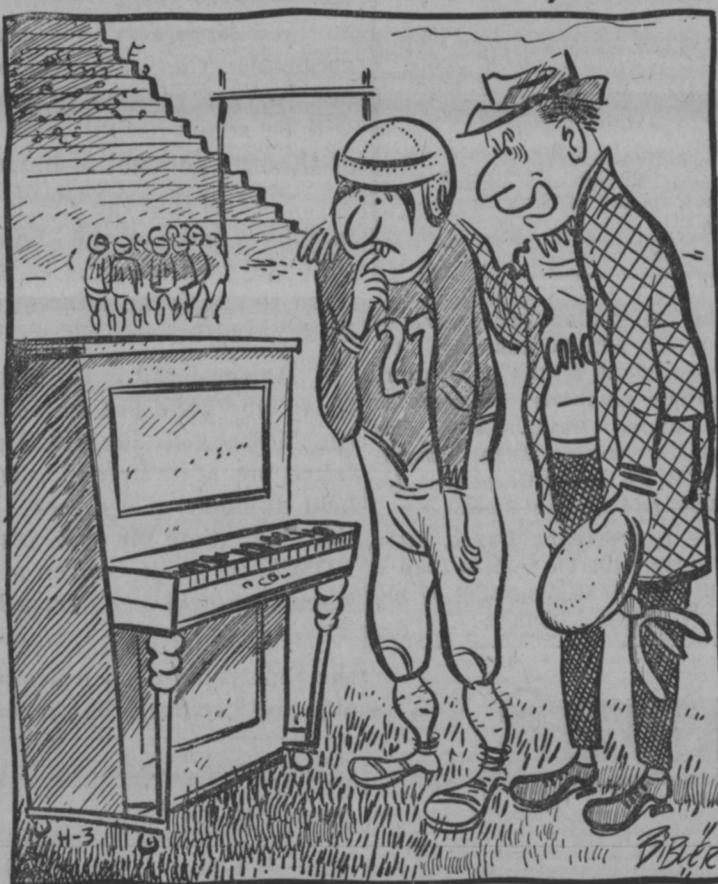

The final first half standings follow:

team	won	lost	tied
Kappa Sigma	3	0	1
Pi Kappa Alpha	3	1	0
Kappa Alpha	1	2	1
Ministers	0	2	2

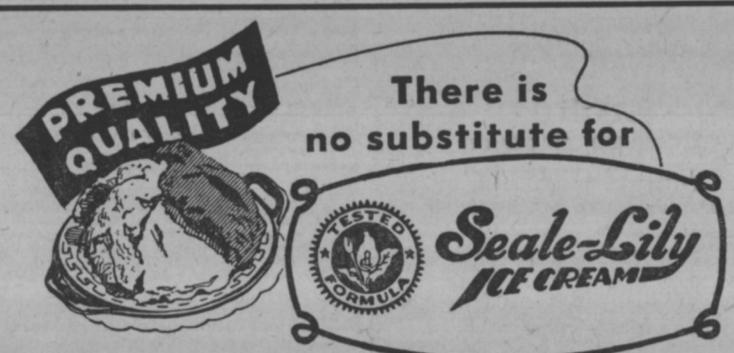

The second half of speedball started this week, pitting the Sigs against the preachers Monday, the Pikes against the KA's Tuesday, the preachers against the Lambda Chi's Wednesday, and the Pikes against the Sigs on Thursday. With that schedule there will be no delay in the fight for first place honors in the second half.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

by Dick Bibler

"I promised you could play during th' last half an' I want you to know I'm a man of my word."

Annual Grudge Bout To Be Homecoming For Both Teams

The Millsaps Majors stage their annual clash with their deadly arch-rivals, the Mississippi College Choctaws, tomorrow night at 8:00 p.m. in Tiger Stadium.

The series of games between the two traditional rivals first opened in 1920, and since then the Majors have been victorious in only eight of the thirty one battles engaged. The Choctaws have handed the Majors twenty four defeats, and four resulted in ties.

This is more than just a grudge battle between the two teams for four reasons:

(1) It is Home-coming for both teams.

(2) The Majors will be seeking three wins in a row, which is something they have never been able to accomplish.

(3) It decides the Dixie Conference Champions.

(4) It determines whether Coach Bartling will be able to keep his undefeated football record over the Choctaws.

In their opener of the season the Choctaws lost to the University of Mexico 34-20. They tied Austin College 19-19, and defeated Southwestern 20-0, Howard 25-6, and Sewanee 14-12.

In 1951 the Majors defeated the Choctaws 12-7, and then last year probably the most exciting game ever played between the two schools ended with the Majors out front by the slim margin of 21-20. Coach Bartling says this game shouldn't be an exception.

No serious injuries to the Majors squad were reported from last week's game with Howard. Only a few minor bruises were incurred, so the Majors are expected to be in top shape for the big game with the boys from the south pasture.

The Choctaws will for the second year use the split T formation. Bill Gore, a freshman from Union, Mississippi and a past player on the North All-Star team, and Jack Bass are expected to do most of the ball carrying for the Choctaws. So far, Bass is the leading scorer for the Braves.

The lineup for the Majors is as follows.

Starting at right end will be Eddie Khayat or John Little, and on left end will be Bennie Kirkland. The tackles will be Jackie Mann and Cecil Trantham. On left guard will be Johnny Awad or Tom Prewitt, and Tom Boone on right guard. At center will be "Art" O'Neil.

In the backfield, it will be Glenn Cain at left halfback, Sammy Glorioso at right halfback, "Red" Powell at quarterback, and John Lowery at fullback.

Sports Views

By John Morris

The big game is set for tomorrow, and the question is which of the two teams will emerge victorious. The game is rated by most forecasters as a toss-up, and those that are choosing a winning team are split between the Majors and the Choctaws.

All the past records and performances can be thrown out of the window tomorrow at Tiger Stadium in the 33rd annual game between the Millsaps Majors and the Mississippi College Choctaws. Past records show that both teams have had good and bad days so far this season, and that the teams are about even on a good day.

Both of these evenly matched teams are expected to be in good physical condition for the game, so it appears to us that the team in the best mental condition will go home with the bacon.

In this battle for the Dixie Conference football championship,

Millsaps will be seeking its third straight win over the Chocs, something the Majors have never accomplished in the long history of the series.

Coach Sammy Bartling of the Majors will be attempting to keep his slate clean against the Chocs. His football squads at the Methodist school have never lost to Mississippi College; however, Coach Stanley Robinson, the cagey old fox of the braves has been preparing his team for a long time in hopes of turning the tide in their favor this year.

Unexpected trouble turned up for both squads last week. The Majors had to get several breaks to eke out a 16-13 win over Howard, a team that the Chocs had beaten decisively earlier in the season. The Choctaws had to depend on extra points to defeat Sewanee 14-12, on the "hill". Two weeks ago, the Majors beat Sewanee 35-6 at Tiger Stadium.

The Editor's Desk

by Eddie Gossard

We received a most intriguing letter the other day. It was from IF magazine, a pocket-size monthly that deals with stories of the future.

The letter ran as follows:

"WHAT WILL AMERICAN LIFE BE LIKE ONE HUNDRED YEARS FROM NOW?"

"Dear Editor:

"That is a prophetic question the editors of IF magazine would like to have answered by the young men of today who will be the industrialists, inventors, scientists, teachers, writers, and doctors of tomorrow.

"To get the answers, we are sponsoring a contest, limited exclusively to university undergraduates in the United States who would like to make their prophecies in a 10,000 word novella based on their own classroom work, their own interpretations of the trends today, and their own imaginations for the resultant effects on life in America in the future.

"In a few days you will receive a news release announcing the whole story, awards and rules. Meanwhile, a sample copy of IF is being mailed to you for your perusal.

"The editors of IF"

The rules have not yet been received. However, the aforementioned sample copy of the magazine did arrive and is in the Purple and White office.

It is a brightly colored little book with a representation of a volcanic eruption on Titan, sixth moon of Saturn, on the front cover.

You may or may not be a science fiction fan. In either case, we recommend to you an article entitled "I Hate Science Fiction" by Fred DeLong, in a past issue of Stylus.

Now for IF. Inside is a "chat with the editor," after which the fiction begins in earnest. It would seem to us that the main content of the book were stories of mystery and horror set in the future without a great deal of scientific prophecy. However, we haven't perused it thoroughly by any means; we haven't been science fiction addicts before.

There may be in the student body a budding writer who is deeply interested in science and who would welcome such a chance to try out his talents in the field. There may be a scientist who thinks he can write better fiction and more science than he has seen thus far.

Any interested people are invited to be on the lookout for the contest rules, which we will print when they reach us.

Also, the copy of the magazine will remain in the office (we aren't going to take it away, believe us) and any one who would like to look it over is welcome to do so.

In a recent editorial in the Purple and White, due to a peculiar lapse of what we consider a usually competent memory, we referred to a speaker on the Millsaps campus as "Mr. Lewis" and said that he was indirectly connected with the National Association of Manufacturers. The speaker's name was Mr. John Stewart. He is, however, connected with the NAM, being an employee of an industrialists organization in Birmingham which holds membership in the NAM. We apologize abjectly for the error in names, which we realize is the loose journalism we have been known to call others down for. We do not

The Millsaps Queen of Homecoming will be crowned between halves of the ball game. The Queen was elected last Tuesday by the Millsaps student body from five Homecoming Maids nominated by the M-Club. The name of the Queen will be announced tomorrow night at the coronation. The other nominees will serve as Homecoming Maids. The girls nominated were: Edna Khayat, Ivy Wallace, Boots Carpenter, Jo-an Lee, and Clarice Black.

The Homecoming Dance, after the game, will be held at Bailey High Gym. It is sponsored by the Inter-Fraternity Council.

Homecoming? . . .

The Millsaps Student Executive Board didn't do it.

The Mississippi College student government didn't do it, either.

In fact, the M.C. students are just as disturbed about it as some of us are.

We're talking about the Millsaps-Mississippi College Homecoming situation. As you probably heard by now, tomorrow will be Homecoming for the Choctaws as well as for us. They will have their parade on Capitol Street immediately after ours, or, rather, we will have our parade before theirs, because they secured authorization first. Theirs will be at 2:30; ours will be at 2:00. They will crown their Queen before the game tomorrow night.

The game is still our game. We are the host school. In the light of certain developments, Mississippi College's student officers asked that they be allowed to crown their Queen before the game, even though it was our game. That consent was given by the SEB president and the Homecoming Committee.

Those developments were that the Mississippi College Alumni Committee decided that Homecoming should be held at the time of the Millsaps-Mississippi College game because more of the alumni would attend the game even if it was not a home game.

We don't presume to question the decisions of the M.C. Alums. We do understand that the M.C. students are somewhat unhappy over the situation, and understandably so. After all, Homecoming is for the students, too, and it seems a bit irregular to have "Homecoming" and not come home. We should have thought that a home game was the first pre-requisite of Homecoming.

Some dissatisfaction has been expressed by Millsaps students as to the state of affairs. The already crowded schedule will have to be juggled a bit, and things will be a bit inconvenient, such as two parades and two coronations. We particularly wanted the Millsaps students to know that the whole thing was not the Mississippi College students' idea.

Other developments have arisen along the same line which perhaps should be commented on at this time.

The Mississippi College Alumni Committee and the Millsaps Alumni Committee have decided, independently of each other, that they would like to have Homecoming at the Mississippi College-Millsaps game every year, no matter where it is held. That would mean that both schools would have their homecoming at the same game and one school would necessarily have its homecoming away from home.

We sincerely hope that both Alum Associations will reconsider the matter before making attempts to carry it out. We feel reasonably certain that students in both schools will be somewhat disgruntled, if not downright rebellious, at the very thought of having homecoming away from home.

We feel that the idea is little short of ridiculous. Besides making a farce of the expression, "Homecoming," it implies that the traditional M.C.-Millsaps rivalry is not enough in itself to supply an interesting evening; something else must be dragged in.

Homecoming is for students at the school as well as for those who have graduated. We feel, in fact, we hope, that the Millsaps students will never permit Homecoming to be taken out of their hands to the extent that it is no longer held at home every year. The Mississippi College game is the ideal game for such festivities WHEN IT IS HELD AT HOME; no game is even acceptable for the same festivities when it is held away from home.

The situation this year is unfortunate, but unavoidable; the repetition of such a situation by either school is avoidable and avoiding that repetition is desirable.

CONFERENCE

Young subsequently specified the importance of a mutually beneficial relationship between industry and education at the annual dinner of the Federation for Railway Progress in Cleveland, on March 26, 1953, in an address entitled "The Railroads and Education."

In announcing the forthcoming conference, Chancellor Heald and Admiral Moreell expressed the belief that further cooperation between industry and education is essential if we are to preserve and further develop the kind of society that will be most conducive to individual and national progress.

Conference participants will discuss industrial scholarship programs, cooperative work-study programs, research program of fundamental significance to industry and education, educational services for industrial employees, and the organized exchange of information and experience between industry and education.

It is anticipated that the conference will lead to a considerable expansion of present cooperative efforts.

The Greenbrier meeting also will be designed to encourage the creation of similar discussion groups in states and regions and hopefully the development of permanent industry-education institutes that would facilitate the greater development of programs of mutual concern and benefit to industry and education.

SEB Favors Reinstatement Of Denominational Groups

S. E. B. voted to reinstate denominational groups on the campus during its October 20th meeting.

The Board set aside two Wednesday nights a month for the meetings of these groups. The Y. W. C. A. will meet on alternate Wednesdays, but no effort will be made by S. E. B. to reactivate Y. M. C. A. Joint meetings will be held every fifth week.

Each religious group will elect a representative to the Christian Council, which will elect a representative to S. E. B.

In addition to members of denominational groups, the Council will also consist of representatives of Y. W. C. A., the Ministerial League, and the Women's Christian workers. One of the Council's responsibilities will be the expenditure of funds set aside by S. E. B. for religious groups.

S. E. B. plans to help the denominational groups to reorganize soon through a special chapel program. A regular chapel period will be shortened to allow the groups to organize.

The board has not set a definite date for this program, but is trying to obtain denominational speakers for the occasion. Groups wishing to organize should see one of the S. E. B. officers for recognition during the program.

The Board's decision to reinstate denominational groups is the result of a petition containing 120 names.

S. E. B. appointed an investigation committee, which polled 280 students. A large majority of the students questioned were in favor of reorganizing the groups.

AED Initiates Nine New Members; Plan Banquet This Week

Alpha Epsilon Delta, pre-med honorary, held its initiation on October 21 in Sullivan-Harrell Hall. The new initiates are: Terry Rees, Bill Lynch, Faye Gaddy, Mollie Lawson, Tommy Spell, Keith Wolverton, Reginald Lowe, Ben McCarty, and Dr. William J. Brett.

A banquet was planned for this week. It was held at Le Fleur's.

Twelve Seniors Named To Appear In 1954 Edition Of 'Who's Who'

Twelve Millsaps seniors have been named to appear in the 1953-54 edition of Who's Who Among Students In American Universities and Colleges, according to a release from H. Pettus Randall, editor of the publication.

Those selected were: Glenn Allen Cain, Howard B. Cheek, Edward Roy Epperson, Minnie Louise Farlow, Dorothy Dee Ford, Edgar Atherton Gossard, Sidney A. Head, Audrey Margaret Jennings, Edna Ruth Khayat, Barbara Layne Myers, Lonetta M. Wells, and Robert Thomas Woodard.

Glenn Cain, Economics major from Durant, is a three-year letterman in football and basketball and has lettered one year in baseball. He is president of the M-Club and a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. He was a member of the student committee on High School Day for 1953, which replaced the old Topper's Club. He was named Most Valuable Player on the Millsaps football squad in 1951.

Howard Cheek, of Grenada, is a pre-med student and a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity. He has been rush chairman and treasurer of his fraternity and was alternate delegate to Inter-fraternity Council. He is now Vice-President of the Student Executive Board.

Edward Roy Epperson, Chemistry major from Caledonia, is national president of Eta Sigma Phi, classical language honorary. He has been president of the Norsemen and of his local Eta Sigma Phi chapter, and is a member of Theta Nu Sigma. Last spring he was tapped into Omicron Delta Kappa.

Minnie Farlow, from Jackson, is a Mathematics major and a member of Sigma Lambda. She is a member of the Majorette Club; president of Chi Omega sorority; member of the Bobashela staff; treasurer of Pan Hellenic Council; Dean's List.

Dee Ford, Magnolia, is a pre-med student; president of Kappa Delta sorority; president of the Majorette Club; vice-president of AED; Secretary of Theta Nu Sigma; Dean's List.

Eddie Gossard, English major from Meridian, is Editor of the Purple and White; member of Omicron Delta Kappa; member of the International Relations Club; member of Kit Kat; officer in the Mississippi Conference MYF; and Dean's List.

Sidney Head, ministerial student from Columbia, is Business Manager of the Purple and White; member of the Millsaps Singers; member of Alpha Psi Omega; a former cheerleader; former representative for Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity on the Inter-fraternity Council; president of Omicron Delta Kappa.

Tommy Woodard Is Master Major; Edna Khayat Is Miss Millsaps

Robert Thomas Woodard and Edna Ruth Khayat were named Master Major and Miss Millsaps in the election sponsored by the Bobashela last Tuesday.

Polls opened at 8:00 and closed at 2:00 p. m. The ballot box was located in Murrah Hall. The election was announced the Friday before the election in the Purple and White.

Master Major and Miss Millsaps, two of the highest honors to which a Millsaps student can be elected, are featured on special pages in the feature section of the Bobashela.

Miss Khayat, a senior English major from Moss Point, is Mississippi's Miss Hospitality. She has been a beauty in past annuals. She was recently named to Who's Who Among Students In American Universities and Colleges, and this fall was tapped into Sigma Lambda, women's leadership honorary on the campus. She is secretary-treasurer of the Student Executive Board, and vice president of Kappa Delta sorority. She is a member of the Singers, and was a soloist last year. She is a past majorette for the Band and has appeared with the Players. She is a member of Chi Delta, and has been on the Dean's List.

Woodard, a senior Sociology mayor from Greenville and a ministerial student, is president of the Millsaps Student Executive Board. He is president of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity and, like Miss Khayat, has recently been selected for Who's Who Among Students In American Universities and Colleges.

He has been active in the Millsaps Players, Wesleyan, and the YMCA. He was a member of the old Alpha Phi Omega, national service honorary. He is a past president of the North Mississippi Conference Methodist Youth Fellowship, and has been on the Dean's List.

Runners-up in the Master Major election were Glenn Cain, Howard Cheek, Sid Head, and Jack Dunbar.

Running behind Miss Khayat were Minnie Farlow, Dee Ford, Audrey Jennings, and Lonetta Wells.

Elections for favorites were held at the same time as the Master Major and Miss Millsaps elections, but the results are being withheld until the publication of the annual this spring.

Edna Khayat was crowned Homecoming Queen during half-time ceremonies at the Millsaps-Mississippi College football game last Saturday night.

The Queen was chosen by the student body from a group of five girls nominated by the M-Club. The four runners-up served as Homecoming Maids. They were Clarice Black, Boots Carpenter, Joan Lee, and Ivy Wallace. The Maids took part in the crowning ceremony. President Ellis Finger crowned the Queen.

The trophy for the best float in the parade Saturday afternoon went to Chi Omega Sorority, for their float which "kept the Chocs at zero." No runners-up were named said Jack Dunbar, chairman of the sub-committee for the judging of the floats. The trophy was awarded yesterday in chapel.

Each social organization sponsored a float in the parade. The Vikings and Norsemen, aided by the unaffiliated independents, decorated the campus.

Present plans are to continue the practices begun this year for Homecomings in years to follow.

From all reports, this year's Homecoming was the most successful in recent years, both from the standpoint of the Alumni and that of the student body.

Maid Of Cotton Tour Plans Made; Entry Rules Told

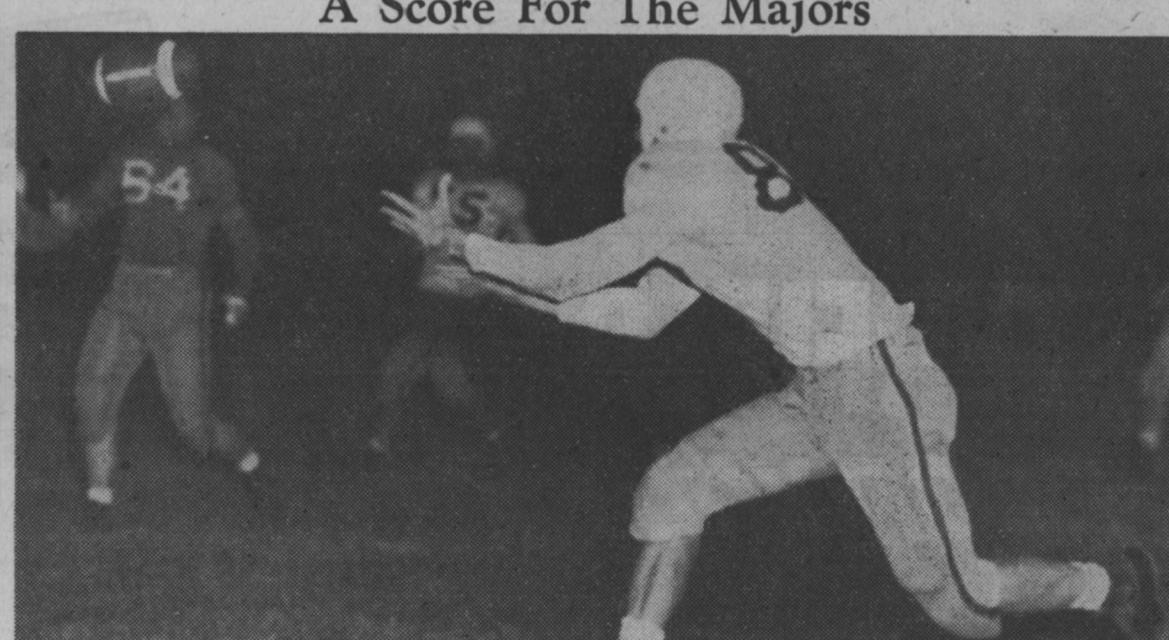

The 1954 Maid of Cotton will visit at least 32 major United States and Canadian cities on the North American phase of her international tour, the National Cotton Council announced today. She will visit Jackson on February 22-23.

Any girl born in a cotton state who is between the ages of 19-25, has never been married, and is at least five feet five inches tall is eligible to enter the Maid of Cotton Contest. Deadline for contest entries is midnight Dec. 1. All entries must be postmarked before that date. Complete information and entry forms are available from the National Cotton Council, Box 10, Memphis, Tennessee.

On her tour as the American Cotton industry's goodwill and fashion ambassador the 1954 maid will go first to New York City for nearly a month's training, January 8-31, before beginning her journey officially. There she

Requests Create Good Response To Alumni Dues

Request for dues sent out to alumni last week by the public relations department have received a very good response. 3500 letters were sent out to alumni all over the United States.

This is the first time in approximately 20 years that dues have been requested. Regular dues, paid now and expiring May 31, 1954, are $3, and will include a subscription to the alumni publication Major Notes. A year's sustained membership is $12, and will include the alumni publication and a pass to all Millsaps College functions such as the athletic programs and dramatic productions.

Eddie Khayat, Graduate In '32 Is Alum Of Year

Mr. Eddie Khayat, 1932 graduate of Millsaps College, was introduced as Alumni of the Year and presented a Key to the Campus Saturday at the Homecoming Variety Show.

Mr. Khayat was selected by a student-faculty-alumni committee on the basis of his work in church, community, and school. He has been a Sunday school teacher and steward in the Moss Point Methodist church for a number of years. In his community life he is an executive in the Moss Point-Pascagoula Bank and has served as principal and coach for the high school. Among other things he is a Colonel for Governor Hugh White, a Mason, a Rotarian, and a member of the Chamber of Commerce.

He is on the finance committee for the "Million for Millsaps" drive and has been the contact representative for Millsaps. Mr. Khayat is the father of our homecoming queen, Edna Khayat, and freshman Eddie Khayat.

While at Millsaps he was Master Major, played football and tennis,

Dr. C. B. Mueller To Talk At AED Meeting; Campus Is Invited

On November 4th at 7:30 p.m. Alpha Epsilon Delta pre-med honorary is sponsoring a meeting at which Dr. C. B. Mueller will speak. Everyone who is interested in pre-med, pre-dental, or pre-technician work is invited to attend. The meeting will be held in SH-14.

Dr. Mueller, Assistant Dean of the Washington University Medical School, is on a goodwill tour visiting various colleges in the nation. This is the third such occasion on which a representative from Washington University has visited Millsaps.

A banquet at Le Fleur's with Dr. Mueller as guest of honor will be given for the members of A. E. D. prior to the meeting.

Audrey's Annex

By Audrey Jennings

Sooner or later there comes a time in everyone's life when events come to a standstill—allow me to make a brief announcement. That time, in my life, has come. Every Tuesday afternoon (the last time for copy to be whisked away to the printers) this moment comes—the column must be written.

Confusion rules its customary roost, and inspiration will not come. Entombed in the Purple and White Office which is kept at a comfortable zero degree temperature, I find that the only thought which breaks through my weary brain concerns the weather. No, that won't do—I've already written a column on that subject. Homecoming is over—nuff said—and Thanksgiving is still four weeks away. Fantastic though it may seem, nine weeks tests are on their way, which only provide another note of gloom. By the way, just for the benefit of freshmen and in case you upperclassmen may have forgotten, I shall give a short description of these monsters.

Watch Out

You think you have arranged your schedule cleverly, all your classes are spread out, a few breaks here and there, not too many classes on one day, etc. Then bang, it happens. According to the laws of chance it is impossible, but nevertheless it happens. One after another the tests are assigned all on one day. That happens on Monday, but on Tuesday, double bang—the same thing. Sounds ridiculous but it's true. They're all together, too. This is only a note to warn you that the event is inevitable. Prepare yourselves fellow students, the days are arriving.

SEB Dates

To brighten up our spirits, I have prepared a list of social dates as they are set thus far. The first SEB date of the semester comes next Friday which belongs to the Ministerial League and the next day is for the KA's. The next weekend has the final night of "The Infernal Machine" (plug) on Friday and the Phi Mu social date on Saturday. November 20 is the day for the Independents to shine and the 21st the Chi O's take over. In December the Pikes have the 4th and the KD's the 5th. The last dates claimed at this writing are the Beta Sig's on December 11, and the Kappa Sig's, December 12th. Feel better?

Names

It has been brought to my attention that certain people hereabouts feel neglected because their names go unmentioned in this epic week after week. From now on I shall mention these unmentioned and begin this week

Social Groups Build Floats; Chi Omega's Win Trophy

Rolls of crepe paper, many thumb tacks, scotch tape, and pins were assembled Saturday by the social organizations to construct eight clever and very attractive floats that were exhibited in the Homecoming parade down Capitol Street.

For the Phi Mu's Anna Gallo-way and Peggye Falkner reigned as King and Queen, respectively, over a court of Indian maidens and Major guards. A mystery to us all is how they ever managed to get that pretty ruffled crepe paper around the sides of that "small" truck which they used.

Even though the score of the BIG GAME didn't exactly prove to our favor, The Kappa Sigs, nonetheless, very successfully portrayed the burial of the lads from the South Pasture. "Little Jug" Hathorn, we must admit, looks most distinguished as a gray-haired gentleman.

According to the catching idea put forth by the Kappa Delta's, the poor Choctaw was literally ground beef by the time he was run through their meat grinder. Nancy Peacock and Robin Smith surely make "cute" football players; I'll bet they could stop a Choctaw line with little effort.

The Pikes very skillfully put forth their idea with the S. S. Choctaw sinking below the waters.

STUDENTS DREAM

We have openings for four young men with religious background, who can and will work four hours per day, five days per week after 4 P.M. Must be capable enough to earn $13.00 per day and dependable enough to work each day.

Also want one Student with Car who has had Sales experience, to plan and direct this work. His earnings will likely exceed $100.00 per week.

We train you thoroughly at no cost to you. If you can't work these hours consistently, please don't apply. This work can be continued permanently if you desire. Many famous Americans worked their way through college doing this type of work. Please reply in writing, giving age, permanent home address and also when and where you can be interviewed and phone number.

Fabulous Costumes Of Greek Origin To Be Used In Play

In the 28 years of Millsaps Players, the costumes of The Infernal Machine are to be the most magnificent yet. These costumes are of the Greek type at the time of Julius Caesar and are very much like those used in The Robe and Quo Vadis. Lance Goss is going Christian Dior one better in the fabulous designs he is creating. The total cost of the costumes is over $200 and all are to be made by Mr. Goss' mother.

The men are going to wear tunics, skirts, and long cloaks made out of rich stains in fine colors.

One of the costumes of Oedipus, played by Hardy Nall, consists of a short white tunic trimmed with gold braid and sequin design and a royal red corduroy cape more than twelve square yards lined with antique gold satin and trimmed with gold braid. The wedding dress for Jocasta, played by Karen Gilfoy, is made from red satin trimmed with flesh-colored lace. She also has a scarf that is eight yards long. Arubis, played by Fred DeLong, is dressed in a long black leotard (ballet tights), a green Egyptian skirt, and a black dog's head.

This is just a small preview of what you will see in the Christian Center Auditorium on November 11, 12, and 13 at 8:15.

Old, New Faces Seen In Cornet Section Of Band

This is the first of a series of articles to be published that the student body may become better acquainted with the Millsaps Band and its members. The band is an indispensable part of the school spirit, and each member is a vital part of the band. Congratulations to the band on its half-time performances, parades, and concerts. Thanks to the members for their undying efforts and faithfulness.

Before the band comes on the football field, the cornet section hails the entrance with a fanfare. The members of this section are five in number.

MAJOR MAJOR

Sigma Lambda President Honored As Major Major

Barbara Myers, senior English major from Greenwood, is this week's Major Major. Barbara, who graduates in January, plans to teach high school English somewhere in Florida next year.

Here at Millsaps, Barbara has been active in the one act plays and the Millsaps Players, a member of the Women's Council, and feature editor and managing editor of the Purple and White.

Barbara is past president of Chi Delta, the women's creative writing honorary, a member of Kappa Delta Epsilon, and is now president of Sigma Lambda, the leadership honorary for women. She is a member of the Kappa Delta social sorority on the campus.

A fitting honor was Barbara's inclusion in this year's Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

"After three and a half years, I feel there's no better school anywhere. I'm sure I'll miss everything about it."

BARBARA MYERS

Public Relations Office Congratulated For Booklet

"Congratulations on the first number of 'Major Notes.' (It evoked such pleasant memories!) Guin Kolb, University of Chicago.

"Major Notes" is a magazine put out by the Public Relations office here at Millsaps to keep the alumni up to date regarding their ex-classmates and the present Millsaps doings. It contains many pictures, news of alums, news of present students, and news of the college in general.

Congratulations poured into the Public Relations office by the dozen after the first edition of "Major Notes" was mailed. These many letters are a tribute, not only to the publication itself, but also to the excellent work Jim Livesay and his staff have been doing.

Here are some excerpts from some of the letters:

Alpha fraternity and is active in the Singers. This is his fourth year with the band.

Albert Williamson, Greenwood, is a sophomore Pike. Albert also works on the Bobashela staff.

Newt Harrison, freshman, is president of the Kappa Sigma pledge class. He is from New Albany and this is his first year with the band.

Another freshman, Jimmy McCormick, is a Lambda Chi from Jackson. He is active in the Singers.

Larry Tynes, freshman from Webb, finds time to work with the Singers and Players as well as with the band.

Saturday you noticed that cornet section; let's show them we appreciated their performance and also that of the entire band.

"I congratulate you on the first edition of the alumni magazine, 'Major Notes.' It will certainly aid in the development of a strong and active alumni association at Millsaps." Inman Moore, Jr., pastor of Pelahatchie Methodist Church.

"After receiving my copy of 'Major Notes,' I couldn't resist writing to say it is about the best publication of its kind that I have seen." J. F. Blakeney, administrative resident, Methodist Hospital, Memphis, Tenn.

"Just a note to congratulate you on the splendid manner in which you are presenting the booklet entitled 'Major Notes.' I have read it from cover to cover." Wirt A. Beard, Jacksonville, Florida.

We join T. K. Holyfield, graduate who is practicing law in Jackson, in saying, "You are doing a swell public relations job for Millsaps. More power to you."

Majorette Club Chooses Eleven New Members

Eleven girls have been chosen to be members of the Majorette Club. They are Mary Lynn Graves, Barbara Walker, Bettye Jo Powell, Molly Lawson, Lucy Robinson, Virginia Hewitt, Ann McInvale, Ann Orsborn, Jo Nall, Peggye Falkner, and Norma Norton.

The informal initiation was the decorating of the queen's stand for the Homecoming game. The formal initiation took place Tuesday after which the new members were honored with a picnic.

Officers of the Majorette Club are; Dee Ford, president; Fredda Shelton, vice president; Jo Anne Cooper, secretary-treasurer; and Minnie Farlow, reporter.

Meet Me At Brent's

Sports Views

By John Morris

The Chocs avenged themselves for the 21-20 licking we gave them last year by holding their same 20 points, and by taking two points off of the Majors total. The game was, as usual between the teams, hard-fought; however, the many breaks that the Majors gave the Chocs gave them the edge for the win.

Until this game, the Major backs had done a good job of holding onto the ball, but the glue must have turned to grease, as the nervous Major backs fumbled thirteen times, losing the ball on seven of these occasions. These were not the only breaks.

The Chocs intercepted one of the many passes thrown by quarterback Powell, and they tackled Majors on two different joke punt plays, to take the ball over on downs. These above mentioned breaks set up all of the Choc touchdowns, and kept the Majors bottled up for most of the game.

However, the Majors were not without outstanding players. Fullback John Lowery and end John Little, strictly team men, probably played their best games to date. The rest of the team played well, but they were outcharged and out-scraped by the Chocs.

The Majors, as a team, did have more spirit than the Majors, as a cheering section. The Millsaps side of the field was practically noiseless compared to the fewer, but louder cheering rooters on the Mississippi College side of the field.

The only time Major rooters could muster the energy for a yell was when the team was about to score and this is the time when support does the least good.

This could easily have been the difference in the two teams last Saturday.

The Majors are playing Southwestern in Memphis tomorrow, and should be able to win the game easily. The Lynx, on the other hand, will be trying for their second win in a row, and their second victory since the season of '49. The Lynxmen defeated the Hendrix Warriors 7-6 last week. Millsaps defeated Hendrix 20-0 earlier in the season.

Millsaps Fails In Attempt To Win Third From Chocs

Last Saturday night at Tiger Stadium the Mississippi College Choctaws and the Millsaps Majors both scored three touchdowns, but the Chocs made two extra points to the Majors' one and that point was enough for the margin of victory for the Baptist squad.

The Majors were never ahead during the game, but they had a chance to pull a victory out of the fire on several different occasions. However, seven lost fumbles and one pass interception kept the Majors pretty well bottled up during the entire game.

Mississippi College scored early in the first period when safety man Glenn Cain of the Majors dropped a punt on his 23 yard line. The Chocs took the ball, and big fullback Jack Bass made a touchdown on the first try from scrimmage. Earnest Albritton kicked the extra point and it looked as if the Chocs might run away with the game.

However, the Majors struck back in the second period. Cain returned a punt to the Choc 35-yardline, and eight plays later he threw a 15 yard pass to end John Little for the first Major touchdown. The extra point was wide and the Majors trailed 6-7.

Neither team threatened during the remainder of the first half and the Chocs left the field with a one-point lead.

Both teams came out of the half-time chalk-talks determined to win. As a result, the second half was one of the most hard-fought and brilliantly played in the long series of games between the two teams.

Both teams scored in the third period. The Chocs scored first with Freddie Morris dashing 25

Majors Meet Southwestern In Afternoon Grid Battle

The Millsaps Majors journey to the Southwestern Lynx today seeking their fourth win of the season.

The game will be played on Fargason field in Memphis, Tenn., tomorrow at 2 p. m. Student and adult tickets will be on sale at the game. The student tickets will sell for fifty cents, and the adult for $1.00.

Coached by Glenn Johnson, the winless Lynx have won only one game since the 1949 season. This lone victory was over Hendrix in a hard fought 7-6 battle last week. The Lynx team will continue the use of the split "T" formation this year as they have in the past.

This week's game is Homecoming for the Southwesterners so the Majors can expect top performance from them.

Jackson's 145 lb. "Jip" Walters is listed as one of the quarterbacks for the Lynx team. Other probable backfield starters for the Southwesterners are Don Wilson, George Russell, T. N. Street, and George Harmon.

The Majors won their last game of the 1952 season by defeating the Lynx team 34-7 in Memorial Stadium, but tomorrow's game should be different from that of last year due to the heavy list of injuries reported from last week's game.

"Red" Powell suffers from a sprained ankle, Sammy Joe Glorioso pulled a leg muscle, and Glenn Cain has a badly bruised shoulder.

Coach Bartling stated that the boys are in high spirits and are looking forward to the game this week end. He said, "our team made mistakes in last week's game and had to suffer from them."

Starting at end for the Majors are Bennie Kirkland and John Little. The tackles will be Jackie Mann and Cecil Trantham. Tom Boone and Johnny Awad will handle the guard positions, and "Art" O'Neil will start at center.

In the backfield, it will be Glenn Cain at left halfback, Sammy Joe Glorioso at right halfback, "Red" Powell at quarterback, and John Lowery at fullback.

INTRAMURAL

Pikes Take Lead In Intramurals; Down Sigs, 13-6

By George Hunt

The Pikes took over leadership of the Intramural speedball by dropping the Kappa Sigs by a 13-6 count. The Pikes rolled for two touchdowns to lead 13-0 at half-time. The interception late in the fourth period gave the Sigs their only score. Both teams played a very spirited game and the outcome was very uncertain until the final whistle blew.

The Lambda Chi's pushed across a touchdown but failed on the extra point to give them a 6-0 victory over the Preachers. This gave Lambda Chi second place in the struggle for second half honors. It also marks their first win of the season.

The Sigs marched to a 25-0 triumph over the Preachers to keep them very much in the race. The game was never in doubt as the Sigs scored in the first quarter and kept piling up points. The Preachers offense was unable to gather steam and was held in its own territory most of the game.

The K. A.'s and Pikes had a rugged game in which the Pikes gained a 29-0 victory. The Pikes defense accounted for a safety as the offense rolled up 27 more points to assure the win. The KA's came within striking distance many times, but never managed to reach pay dirt.

The standings are as follows:

Team	Won	Lost
Pikes	2	0
Sigs	1	1
KA	0	1
Preachers	0	2

by Eddie Gossard

Last Saturday the Millsaps Majors played a football game. In addition, they celebrated Homecoming in the traditional Millsaps fashion with all the trimmings.

At the end of the ball game the score read: Mississippi College 20, Millsaps 19. It was an exciting, hard-fought contest. Unfortunately, we were on the wrong end of the score. That's about all the complaint we can make, however.

The Millsaps stands were noisy and enthusiastic throughout the game, even exhorting the cheerleaders to yell on one occasion. They stood as one man when John Little caught the pass that led to the first Major touchdown. They stood on numerous other occasions and remained on their feet until the tense moments on the field were past. They kept a never-say-die spirit right up until the final gun, even when it was evident that nothing short of a miracle would save the game.

It was a subdued crowd that left the game, true. That is as it should be. Any school that likes to win (and Millsaps likes to win just as much as the school with the money and inclination to pay their athletes to win) is unhappy when they don't win.

The real index of the spirit of a school in such a situation is how quickly it can bounce back; how badly it can want to win the next game. We're not talking to the players; they want to win every time they go on the field. We're talking to the students, who need to brace up what might be understandably low spirits and move on to take the rest of the athletic schedule with the same enthusiasm that they took the first part.

We lost a game that we wanted very much to win. We lost to a good team; a team that, for the sixty minutes on Saturday night that we played them, was the better of the two teams. Now we have other games to win. We'll get another crack at the Choctaws; and as long as we, as a student body, can bounce back from the losses and keep our spirit at the peak level that we have been maintaining, we'll win our share of contests from the Choctaws and from the other schools, too.

We seem to be stuck on the Choctaws this week, but we ran across a column in the Mississippi Collegian this past week that is of some interest to the average Millsaps student.

The column is that of Ralph Atkinson, the managing editor, and is one that we have enjoyed perusing all semester. This week, editor Atkinson admits to having read a Purple and White which he seems to have enjoyed except for one phrase on the sports page. The phrase was "... our friends in the west pasture . . .", which is a friendly epithet long used in reference to our brethren from Clinton.

Atkinson's blood boiled, to parahase him and he replied as follows:

"The average Millsaps student is led to believe that the students who inhabit the tradition-steeped halls of Mississippi College are just a bunch of uncouth, ill-mannered folks who chew tobacco in class and go bare-footed until the week before Christmas . . . and live in the 'west pasture'.

"Look, Majors, you can stop that stuff. We Chocs can not only equal you, but top you in any enterprise you want to undertake—game, parade, team support, you name it . . . we'll beat you every time."

ACP COLLEGE EDITORIAL

Start Thinking, Freshmen . . .

(From the Minnesota Daily, University of Minnesota)

This year's freshmen are part of an age group that does not by any means subscribe to constitutional concepts of human dignity and freedom.

That doesn't sound like a very cordial way to begin a welcome to new students. We are glad to add our sincere welcome to all those extended freshmen so far. But it's not too early for the class of '57 to begin some serious thinking along with the fun . . .

Somewhere in our high schools, this year's freshmen and the high school students in the classes have been either misinformed, or not informed at all, about the basic concepts of our way of life.

Proof of this comes in a poll Purdue University recently took of the high school age group. . . . The results are startling. For instance:

Fifty-eight per cent of the high school students polled think police are justified in giving a man the third degree to make him talk.

Only 45 said newspapers should be permitted to print the news freely except for military secrets.

Thirty-three per cent said that persons who refuse to testify against themselves should either be made to talk or severely punished.

Twenty-five per cent . . . would prohibit the right of people to assemble peacefully.

Twenty-six per cent believe that police should be allowed to search a person or his home without a warrant.

It's not a healthy situation to have young people rejecting constitutional guarantees of freedom at a time when these liberties are threatened by demagogues and dictators.

Freshmen who hold these beliefs should examine them carefully during their next four years. . . .

We hope that during your intellectual and social development here you will come to be an ardent defender of the civil liberties some of you now disapprove.

"Just for the record, you can put this in the Purple and White.

"1. We brush our teeth thrice daily.

"2. We wear shoes on Sundays and holidays.

"3. We're game for any type contest with the Majors—from literary to athletic.

"4. We're going to beat the socks off Millsaps Saturday night.

"Now that the record has been cleared and the Chocs have had a chance to speak, you friends can banish that ethnocentric galosh about the 'west pasture' from your tearsheet."

We admit to the fact that we got beat; whether or not our socks are off is a moot question.

As far as ethnocentrism goes, we have that, too. But we detected a couple of remarks in the Choctaw column that would indicate that ethnocentrism is not completely overcome at MC, either.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Homecoming A Success

Congratulations to the Millsaps students on a very excellent Homecoming weekend.

The Student Homecoming committee deserves real recognition for the organization and planning that went into Homecoming.

The organizations who contributed in one way or another (and each organization contributed something) deserve recognition for a very excellent job.

The student body as a whole deserves recognition for the maintaining of a spirit of co-operation and enthusiasm throughout the week leading up to the big day.

Homecoming was well-planned, with many elaborate ideas set forth to be carried out which made it the most successful Homecoming student-wise in years. The floats were a welcome addition to the parade, and the campus decorations called for more work than in years past.

The fraternity and sorority floats were all well-done and novel. They all showed the result of considerable work, which can be traced to that school spirit we accuse ourselves of not having enough of. The parade in itself was one exhibiting the afore-mentioned spirit of co-operation and enthusiasm, and was full of more automobiles and students and faculty and alumni in addition to the floats than those in the immediate past.

The independent students, led by the Vikings and Norsemen, made the decorations on the campus one of the high points of the week-end. They were original and well-done and were the object of considerable interest to the whole campus.

The Alumni committee worked hard, as well, and was rewarded by having the best Homecoming turn-out in history, as well as one of the best programs ever presented for the Alumni.

All in all, it was a most successful week-end and Millsaps may justly feel proud of the effort and spirit displayed. It was another fine job.

Organization Of Denominational Religious Groups Begun Thursday

The first step toward re-establishment of denominational religious groups was taken in chapel last Thursday when members of the various denominations were given an opportunity to meet and select a nominating committee for the purpose of nominating officers.

Taking the first steps in re-organization were the Wesleyan Group, the Baptist Student Union, the Westminster Fellowship, the Canterbury Club, and the Newman Club.

The chapel program was devoted to denominational religious groups, with President Ellis Finger speaking on the benefits of such a program to a college.

Plans for the chapel program were made by a faculty-student committee composed of the regular faculty committee for religious affairs, and the student SEB committee which has been working on the problem for some time and which made the recommendation to SEB that denominational groups be re-established.

Plans are underway to enlist

Proficiency Test Will Be Given On November 17

The English Proficiency Tests will be given this year on November 17 at 4:00 in the Physics Lecture room in Sullivan-Harrell Hall.

A list of the names of students who are to take this exam has already been posted. This list should contain the names of all seniors who have not taken the test, and all juniors. Any student who has passed the exam and finds his name on the list should consult Dr. White or Professor Hardin.

The test will consist of writing a theme on one of a given number of subjects. Spelling, capitalization, sentence structure, punctuation, and the organization of paragraphs of the theme will be of importance in judging the test.

In the past three years in which the test has been given, several of the themes have been selected for publication in Stylus.

CC Classrooms To Be Closed After Midnight

Rooms on the south side of the Christian Center will be closed and locked at 9:30, according to an announcement by the Dean of Students.

All rooms in the building will be closed after 12:00 at midnight except for Fitzhugh Chapel.

The rooms are being closed in compliance with complaints by the faculty members who live on faculty row as to the noise that continues until late at night, and to protect against damage from weather through open windows. Saving electricity is another reason given for the action.

Students whose studying is hindered by the new policy are requested to see the Dean of Students to make arrangements for studying.

the aid of resource people to aid the individual groups in their organization, such as the state Methodist Student Movement Director for the Wesleyan Group.

Plans were made at the pre-organizational meeting for regular meetings in compliance with the Activities Calendar beginning last Wednesday night. Officers and representatives to Christian Council were to be elected at that time.

Christian Council will be formed from representatives of the various denominational groups after the groups have organized.

District Convention Of KDE Held In Jackson Oct. 30-31

The Mississippi-Alabama district convention of KDE, national honorary and professional society for women in education, was held in Jackson last Friday and Saturday.

Students and alumnae represented Belhaven, Millsaps, Mississippi State College for Women, and Birmingham-Southern College.

An informal social Friday night was followed by a business session Saturday morning at Belhaven.

The featured address of the morning was given by Dr. Eoline Moore, national director of KDE. Dr. Moore pointed out that teaching is the only vocation to which everyone must come.

"As teachers have vast contact with our youth we must be dedicated to a purpose wider than that of community support," she emphasized.

"We don't want everyone to teach. We must encourage the best in intellect, leadership and personality to undertake the teaching of our youth."

Students reporting on their chapters were: Dot Beckman, Bel-haven; Elinor Moore, Millsaps; Frankie Harpo, MSCW; Marilyn Scofield, Birmingham-Southern; Mrs. Pauline Peake, Birmingham-Southern alumnae.

Miss Evelyn Wiley, national vice-president of KDE and sponsor of the Birmingham-Southern chapter, discussed many points of business, including plans by which the national Junior Council can be coordinated. Mrs. Mary Hanes Smith, regional chairman, presided.

Chapter sponsors introduced by Mrs. Smith were: Dr. Ruby Bliss, Belhaven; Professor and Mrs. R. R. Haynes, Millsaps; Dr. C. O. Nelson, MSCW; Miss Evelyn Wiley, BSC; Dr. Eoline Moore, BS alumnae.

Dean Wilson of Belhaven welcomed the group to the college, after which the national KDE song was presented.

After a luncheon at Millsaps College, at which Dr. H. Ellis Finger, President of Millsaps, delivered the invocation and Dr. Guy Tillman Gillespie, President of Belhaven, addressed the group.

'The Infernal Machine' Presented Next Week

The Millsaps Players' first 1953-54 production, "The Infernal Machine," will be presented next Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday nights in the Christian Center Auditorium at 8:15.

Hardy Nall and Karen Gilfoy, both Jackson sophomores, will take the lead roles of Oedipus and Queen Jocasta in the modern treatment of the Oedipus legend.

Other members of the cast are: Keith Dix, the soldier; Jack Dunbar, Tiresias; Fred Delong, Anubis; Ed Sturdivant, the phantom; Jimmy Jones, the young soldier; Joe Ebersole, messenger; Mary Huntley, Antigone, Walter Roberts, Creon; Sandra Weir, the Sphinx; Larry Tynes, the Shepherd; and Lowell Jones, the captain.

The play is directed by Lance Goss, professor of speech and dramatics. Assistant to the director is Wally James of Newton.

John R. Howell and Janie Haining are the stage managers.

Admission will be 50c for students and $1.00 for adults.

Deadline Set For Stylus

November 16 has been set as the copy deadline for contributions to Stylus, the school literary magazine.

Material for Stylus may be submitted to editor Frank Mangum, business manager Mary Grantham, or any member of the English department. Miss Thomasina Blisard, instructor in freshman English, is the faculty advisor.

Previous issues of Stylus have contained formal and informal essays, poems, and short stories. In the past a substantial number of the magazine's articles were products of freshmen.

Stylus is published twice a year. This semester its publication date is December 1.

Staff Heads For 'Bobashela' Announced; Ely Asst. Editor

Staff heads and associate editors for the 1953-54 Bobashela have been chosen, according to editor Fred Delong.

The assistant editor for the Bobashela is Walter Ely.

Feature editor for this year's annual is Barbara Walker. Working with Barbara will be Anne McInvale.

Art editor and chief artist for the annual is Leslie Page.

Sports will be handled by Powers Moore and Ike Musslewhite.

Ann Anderson and Dick Johnson will have charge of the pages for the social organizations.

Other organizations and honoraries will be taken care of by Mary Grantham and Carolyn Lammon.

Norma Neill and Clara Parks Booth are in charge of the activities pages.

Classes will be handled by Reginald Lowe and Fredda Shelton.

Women's Groups Submit Pictures Of 15 Beauties

The five women's social organizations on the campus each submitted pictures of three girls to be judged for Bobashela Beauties. From this group of 15 candidates five will be chosen as Beauties.

An impartial out of town judge will be selected. The name of the judge and the names of the Beauties will not be released until the Bobashela is published.

This method of selecting Beauties is a change from the practice used several years ago of submitting the names to the student body for a vote.

Majors Play Final Game; Five Seniors End Career

The Millsaps Majors will close out their 1953 season tomorrow, seeking their fifth win of the season when they meet the Ouachita Tigers of Arkadelphia, Arkansas, in Tiger Stadium at 2:00 p.m.

Five seniors will play their last game for the Purple and White, four of them playing out their fourth season. They are: Glenn Cain, halfback; Sammy Joe Glorioso, halfback; "Art" O'Neal, center; John Little, end; and Tommy Parker, halfback.

Coached by R. D. Rodgers, the Ouachita Tigers are one of the thirty-five undefeated colleges in America. They have scored a total of 149 points while their opponents have only been able to score a measly total of 44 points.

The Majors played this Arkansas Baptist college last year for its first time and defeated them 27-0. The game was much closer than the score indicates.

Three years ago the Ouachita Tigers were members of the Arkansas Intercollegiate Athletic Conference. They withdrew from the conference and have cut out athletic scholarships altogether, but they still have many of the outstanding players around the college.

The long list of injuries reported from the Mississippi College game have recovered, so the Majors are expected to be in full swing tomorrow against these highly rated Ouachita Tigers.

Starting at end for the Majors are Bennie Kirkland and John Little or Eddie Khayat. The tackles will be Jackie Mann and Cecil Trantham. Tom Boone and Johnny Awad will handle the guard positions, and "Art" O'Neal will start at center.

In the backfield, it will be Glenn Cain at left halfback, Sammy Glorioso at right halfback, "Red" Powell at quarterback, and John Lowery at fullback.

It's too bad they've abolished the poorhouse; we've found it useful in threatening our family when expenses were too high.

Pictured above are the five Millsaps seniors who will play their last game for the Majors tomorrow against Ouachita. They are halfback Tommy Parker of McComb, halfback Glenn Cain of Durant, end John Little of Jackson, center Arthur O'Neal of Jackson, and halfback Sammy Joe Glorioso of Itta Bena. All but Parker are regular starters for the Purple. Parker, a regular in 1951, has been plagued with injuries throughout his last two seasons. He is expected to see plenty of action tomorrow, however, along with the other seniors. (Daily News staff photo by Ralph Hutto)

SEB Committee Works To Clear Social Calendar

A Social committee was set up by SEB to study the method for clearing campus activities and the forms to be filled out by social organizations having parties with an eye to improving the methods and forms and forming a regular SEB committee to take over from the Dean of Students' Office the function of scheduling parties.

The purpose of the committee is to formulate some more efficient method of scheduling small social functions for the organizations.

SEB hopes also, to set up a permanent student committee to do the work formerly done by faculty committees and, lately, the Office of the Dean of Students.

A method of correlating the Social Calendar with the Activities Calendar is also being sought.

Audrey's Annex

By Audrey Jennings

"A penny saved is a penny earned" according to Poor Richard and also my mother. After a brief yet revealing survey of my expenses at school last year, Mother came to the startling conclusion that a bit of economy was in order.

As an incentive to follow the new program, she purchased two banks for me as a going-away gift. One is a simple style, a round container easily opened, to hold pennies. The other is for larger bits of change—nickels, dimes, etc., and is foolishly named a calendar bank. One coin must be inserted to change the date—every day—and a quarter alone will change the month. I say it is foolishly named because I can never tell the date by merely looking at it. I go for days at a time with no money to contribute—then, when I have some run it up for a week ahead.

Redeeming Features

In spite of its defects, the system does have some redeeming features. Old C. B. now contains about eight dollars (I count it when I'm in a sorrowful mood, to lift my spirits) and P. B. has something like 150 pennies. With little practice anyone can learn how to trap innocent people into putting loose change into these monsters. The value of such phrases as "Wouldn't you like to see how to make tomorrow come early?" and "Let's see if two pennies will go in at once" is incalculable. It's truly a revelation to see how delighted you become when you receive four pennies in change. Throws a new light on the subject, doesn't it?

More Names

It seems the innovation of mentioning names begun last week has caught on. Applicants for this week are Freddie Shelton, George Hunt and Johnny Turner. Come one, come all—surely there are more of you who yearn to see your name in print. Simply notify me and I shall be delighted to oblige.

An unusual number of romantic news items are available this week.

BSO Pledges Entertain With Informal Party For Pledge Class Of KA

Pledges of Beta Sigma Omicron entertained the KA pledges with a Halloween Sock Social on October 29 at the Beta Sig house.

Refreshments were make-your-own ice cream sundaes and chocolate cake. The guests played cards and watched television. Carolyn Allen played the piano for the group.

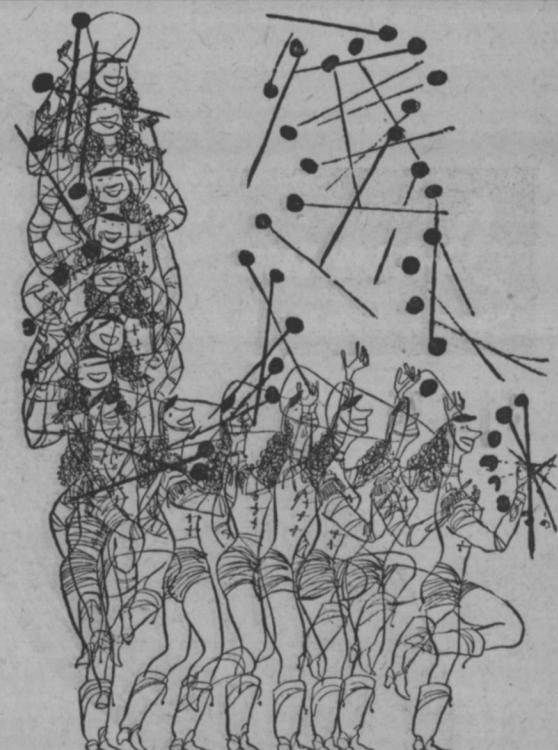

Chaperones for the informal party were Dean and Mrs. W. E. Riecken.

This is the first in a series of parties honoring each of the fraternity pledge groups.

MAJOR MAJORPresident Of Eta Sigma Phi
Major Major Of The Week

Roy Epperson, senior chemistry major from Caledonia, is featured as this week's major major. After graduation he plans to go on to graduate school, "The University of North Carolina, I hope!" Outside school, his favorite pastimes are folk games and square dances. He belongs to the Mississippi Conference Youth Council.

His freshman year, Roy appeared in the title role of the Players' production of "The Winslow Boy." He has been a student assistant in chemistry for two years and Latin for two years; he has been on the Dean's List every semester.

Active in social and service groups on the campus, Roy is a member and former president of the Norsemen, the national independent men's organization, and a member of Theta Nu Sigma, the science honorary.

He has been active in Eta Sigma Phi, the classical language honorary, serving as president of the local chapter for two years and the national organization for the Roy is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, the national leadership honorary for men and was recently selected for inclusion in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

Majorettes Add Color And Flash To Marching Band

Have you ever seen a marching band without a drum major or drum majorette? MARY LYNN GRAVES, a sophomore from Jackson, holds this position in our band for the second year. In the past she has been the first drum major for Enochs Junior High School; the first girl drum major for Central High School, for two years; and drum major of the Lions All-State Band on its trips to Atlantic City and Mexico City where for two years they won the International Championship. Mary Lynn is secretary of the band and plays the oboe in the concert band. She is a member of Chi Omega social sorority.

Appearing for her first year with the Millsaps Band is PAT LADNIER. She is a freshman from Jackson and joins the clarinet section while she is not busy "majoring." Pat was active in the high school band at Central.

JOAN LEE's last home performance was as a maid in the Homecoming court. This sophomore from Columbus is, however, one of our twirlers. She is a member of the Chi Omega sorority. Joan plays the trombone and was drum majorette at Greenwood before coming to Millsaps.

Not The Depths Of Africa;
It's A Geology Field Trip

The day was hot—the sun beat down unmercifully on our heads—but we couldn't give up—not now—our motto was, "Bring 'em back permineralized!" We were not going on an African Safari nor a Klondike Gold Hunt—but a geology field trip. I had looked forward to this day with fear and anticipation. Now we were standing in front of Sullivan Harrell ready to start our adventure—well, almost all of us were ready to start. Having been placed in the cars and issued final instructions about jockeying for positions, we are finally underway.

Through the maze of North State Street, on and on we go until we reach Moody's Branch—I can hardly constrain myself—what great geological find will I make today? Dashing out of the car, for the Choctaw game, you couldn't have missed the fire-baton routine that WANDA WADDELL flashed before your eyes. Wanda is president of the Phi Mu pledge class, a Jacksonian, and a sophomore. She plays the string bass in concerts.

MARGARET WHITFIELD is another newcomer to the Millsaps Band. This freshman co-ed is president of the Beta Sigma Omicron pledge class. Her home is in Jackson and she plays a clarinet in the concert band. Margaret is a very active member of the Purple & White staff.

HELEN BREWER freshman from Jackson, was appointed majorette at try-outs earlier this year for the band. She was formerly a majorette at Central and is active in intra-murals.

Come to the football game Saturday and see the last performance of the marching band. The majorettes will put on one more half-time show before they take their places in the band for the concert season.

Take a look back just one year to the half-time shows. The band is certainly on its way upward. They've come a long way and will continue to grow and to improve with our support... don't let them down.

sissippi—like a city set upon a hill. I hope that both faculty members and students feel the privilege of responsibility," he added. "Certainly the college has its faults; still there is no other like it."

I'm the first one to go down the hill (head first, at that) only to find I'm on the wrong side! I have to crawl all the way up that nasty old hill, cross the highway and go down another hill. Dr. Priddy and his great team of non-smokers (he kept saying, "no smokes") formed a chain (just like in the movies) and helped us helpless females down. After all that exertion, I go to work like a fiend. I dig madly for hours (the way my back felt, it had to be hours) trying to discover a new fossil. I mean a hitherto undiscovered fossil. Later I give up my back breaking labor in vain. I guess all the fossils have been discovered. From Moody's Branch we go on and on, and where we stopped—I surely don't know!

Somewhere along the way we stopped for some refreshments—carbonated drinks and that other indigestible material! At the next stop of our journey, we begin our search for shark's teeth. Dr. Priddy offers a nickel to everyone finding a shark's tooth. While my "partner in dirt" is digging away I sit on a rock and play with the acid bottle—what happens—I don't spill the acid in my pocket like Dr. Priddy warned us against, I spill it on my hands. A few screams later, I perceive that the acid is harmless so I sit back down on my rock and watch my partner dig. Opening my eyes, I gaze wearily upon the ground and what do I see—no, it couldn't be—not a shark's tooth! Jumping over my partner, I race madly to Dr. Priddy and collect the first nickel. Now I feel that I am truly a great geologist—not because I have "rox" in the head either!

After visiting three more places, we return to the most beautiful campus I have ever seen—on this beautiful campus. I found the loveliest room in the whole wide world, and in this room—me, my dirt, and beggar lice discovered the loveliest, most beautiful bed ever built.

Conclusion of field trip and me! (Well, almost!)

Public Relations Director
Civic And College Leader

Millsaps is indeed fortunate to have had as its Director of Public Relations since 1952, Jim Livesay of Jackson.

Livesay is a 1941 graduate of the College. While he was a student here, he served on the annual staff as sports editor, as business manager for the Singers and an officer in the Kappa Alpha fraternity. He worked in debating and dramatics, and was a member of "Y" and S. E. B. He spent one summer as a member of a Methodist Youth Caravan team in Georgia.

After college he attended Midshipmen's School at Cornell University, and upon receiving a commission in August, 1943, returned to marry a Millsaps co-ed. They now have a young son who already owns a Millsaps sweater and cap.

Following his time in the service, Livesay worked with Jitney Jungle Inc. in advertising and in-

Guest Column by James Burnette

First of all, I want to express my thanks to Johnny Morris for giving me a chance to write a guest column. My congratulations to him on doing a very fine job as sports editor for the paper.

Well, the Choctaw game has come and gone. The Majors dropped a close, tough one to the South Pasture boys. However, they really bounced back from that defeat to whitewash Southwestern of Memphis 40-0.

This Saturday afternoon the Majors meet Ouachita in Tiger Stadium for the last game of the 1953 season. Certainly we all want the team to win, but let's show them we do by backing them all the way again with the best spirit we've shown yet. If we really get the spirit and show it in our cheering, the team will play a better game that they will if we sit like so many bumps on a log.

Here is a suggestion I want to pass along to the cheerleaders after having heard several persons comment on it. If you would cover a longer distance in front of the cheering section, I believe the cheering would be improved some. During the Choctaw game, you all stayed in one closely knit group—so close, in fact, that those who were sitting beyond the forty yard line in either direction were unable to hear what the yells were to be in time to do much yelling. I believe that if you would cover the front of the cheering section, even if it means all the distance between the thirty yard lines or more, that the cheering would be materially improved. However, you are doing a swell job leading the yells. Just keep up the good work. We're proud of you.

Basketball practice will be getting into full swing in the next week or two and the season will be on us almost before we realize it. Although I've heard only a few rumors about the prospects, I understand that prospects are good for our team. Let's really get behind the team this season and turn out for home games even they're not against Mississippi College.

If you can drink a glass of milk every morning for 1,200 months, you will live to be a hundred years old.

Cage Workouts Underway; Seven Lettermen Return

Last Tuesday the Major basketball squad started workouts for the coming season. Until the end of the football season, the Majors will work out every night at 7:30 in Buie Gym. Beginning next week, the Majors will work out every afternoon from 3:00 until 4:30 or 5:00.

Although most of the teams on the Majors' schedule are reported to be improved, the squad is looking forward to improving their won-lost record of last year.

Returning lettermen include Oscar and N. R. Walley, Harry Woods, Read Jones, Jack Speights, Red Powell, and Johnny Morris. Five of the men are sophomores from the "rebuilding" team of 1952.

Coach Sam M. Bartling is expecting help from several newcomers, both freshmen and junior college transfers. Names of the bright prospects will not be known until after formal practice begins next week.

all the teams to play their entire schedule or else inform the other team of a forfeit.

The standings in the second half are as follows:

	W	L
Pikes	3	0
Sigs	2	1
K.A.	1	1
Lambda Chi	1	1
Preachers	0	4

The schedule for the remaining games are Lambda Chi and Pike on Monday. The Sigs and K.A.'s have a battle Tuesday while the Lambda Chi's and K.A.'s play a game that was previously rained out.

It was announced that the play-off for the speedball championship will be held Tuesday, November 10. Unless there is an upset in the present standing the Sigs and Pikes will be the opposing teams.

The K.A.'s likewise waited for their opponents but finally another forfeit had to enter the records.

I am sure the Preachers knew of these encounters well ahead of time and I am also sure the Pikes and K.A.'s would have appreciated knowing that their opponents would not arrive for the games. I think it would be a good idea for

Majors Whip Southwestern 40-0 To Spoil Homecoming

Last Saturday the Millsaps Majors, led by quarterback Red Powell and fullback John Lowery, passed and ran their way to a smashing 40-0 win over the Lynx of Southwestern at the Southwestern Homecoming in Memphis.

The Lynxmen never threatened another score. On the following kickoff, a Lynx back fumbled the ball, and was tackled in his own end zone while trying to skirt three tacklers, for a Major safety and two points.

The Majors scored one touchdown in the first quarter. After recovering a Lynx fumble on the Southwestern 38 yard line, the Majors marched the distance for the touchdown, with Lowery going over from the one. Powell's conversion was good, and the Majors were ahead to stay.

The offenses of both teams sputtered until late in the second period. Halfback Walter Waldrop of the Majors intercepted a pass on the Southwestern 36 and ran it back to the 20. With one minute to go in the half, Powell passed to Waldrop for the 20 yards and a touchdown. The conversion was good, and the half ended with the Majors ahead 14-0.

After the half the Majors really opened up, scoring three touchdowns in the third period. Powell's passing put the Majors on the Lynx 17, and he scored from there after taking a lateral from fullback Lowery.

The Majors scored again minutes later, as Powell passed 33 yards to end John Little. The Millsaps reserves took over at this point and gave a good account of themselves during the remainder of the game.

Still in the third period, Tommy Parker, who had been sidelined by injuries since the first of the season, broke loose for 23 yards and another score. On the following kickoff, a Lynx back fumbled the ball, and was tackled in his own end zone while trying to skirt three tacklers, for a Major safety and two points.

The Majors scored their last six-pointer in the fourth quarter when reserve quarterback Billy Greenlee connected with end Eddie Khayat on a 28 yard pass play. The closest the Lynx came to scoring was in the fourth quarter when they penetrated to the Majors' 30 yard line.

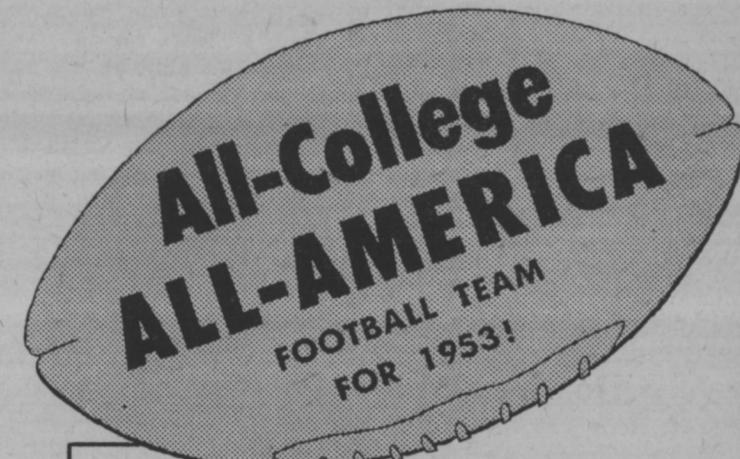

Ford And Whitam Chosen To Apply For Fulbright

The Awards Committee has selected Dee Ford of Magnolia and Fred Whitam of Natchez as the two students from Millsaps who may apply for Fulbright scholarships.

They were selected from the group of people who applied, and will now be eligible to submit applications to Dr. E. R. Jobe, executive secretary of the Board of Trustees, Institutions of Higher Learning, Jackson, Mississippi.

The scholarship provides for one year of study in a foreign country in the field that the applicant request. Past winners of the Fulbright scholarship from Millsaps have been Gaston Hall and Margurite Denny, both of Jackson.

Nine weeks test have arrived (and passed, for most of us) and the week has been a hectic one for most Millsaps students. Those new-comers who have been wondering what was meant by a "full load" have no doubt been enlightened. Five tests in two days with labs to cut into study hours may be reasonable called a load. Not that everyone has such a situation to contend with . . . only one person that we know of is so afflicted . . . but it could happen to you.

Now that we have reached the halfway point in a semester, it might be well to take out a bit of time to look back on the events of the past nine weeks and then look forward in the light of those weeks past.

The first half of the semester have meant many things to many people and the reaching of the halfway point means many different things to many people, too.

To some it means that some of that studying will have to be caught up with and the playing around will have to stop. Others are glad to see the end of another period of studying, no matter how small that period may be. For some students, it means they are entering the last nine weeks of their college career. For others, it means the end of the first nine weeks of college. For part of the staff of this paper, it means that there are only six more issues of the paper to put out until there will be a break. For others it means that there are only six issues more which will bear the mark of their work, no matter how insignificant or important that work may be.

To the sports-minded, it means the end of the football season and the beginning of basketball (and, incidentally, a chance to whip the Choctaws again).

There are specific events that stick in the minds of all . . . The first assembly for the freshmen . . . all a bit green and not knowing just what to expect . . . the pep

Dean of Students J. E. McCracken announces that he is stumped with the problem of what to do about recreational facilities.

"Our main problem is space and location," the Dean stated. "We are having trouble finding places to put such things as ping-pong tables."

about to finish or have just begun our college work, take a good look at what is immediately behind us in an effort, without being moralizing about it, to do those things which will make this half of the semester even more successful in every way than the first half has been.

An Earnest Appeal— Make Exams Harder— For Profs, That Is!

Fellow students—have you ever stopped to consider how unfair we are to our hard-working professors during exam week? They spend weeks looking into obscure corners, digging out dusty journals, and reading through ancient literature trying their best to conjure up questions that will dumbfound students.

They spend days trying to put the questions together in such a way that as to confuse even themselves and possibly us. They try their best not to touch subjects in class that might possibly be an exam question.

After the test is taken they spend months reading through the volumes of material written by students trying to find a misspelled word, an incomplete sentence, or even a misstatement of fact.

Stop and consider—Do you think it is actually fair of us to play all the weeks before tests and, without even glancing at our text-books, come up and dash off an A paper in 30 minutes or less? At the time of the next nine-weeks

Support Stylus

Millsaps' literary magazine, Stylus, has announced its deadline for submitting articles as November 16. That is next Monday. Through an unintended oversight, this date was not announced in last week's P&W as intended.

By way of apology, we herewith announce the date and urge each budding writer on the campus to contribute a selection.

We feel that Stylus is of considerable value to the school and to the student body. It provides recognition for those who attain a degree of excellence in the field of creative writing and moreover gives an index of the quality of work done at Millsaps in that field. The quality of work in the past has been high and will continue so by all probability.

Stylus is worthy of more support than it has hitherto received from the student body. Neither the number of contributions written expressly for that publication or the number of copies bought have reached the total that they should have since the publication began.

Support became so weak that last year, in the second semester, it was necessary to discontinue the publication because of debts that could not be wiped out by the editor and business manager of the magazine. Because of these debts, which the school paid, there was considerable doubt as to whether or not a Stylus would be published this semester. There was even the possibility of dropping publication of the magazine altogether.

Stylus has been allotted more money by SEB with which to operate, and the decision was made to continue publication. There will be an issue of Stylus this semester.

However, Stylus cannot continue without support from the student body, both in writing for the magazine, and in buying it after it is published.

The money allotted to Stylus will not pay for the publication, by any means. Advertising is not the answer. The Purple and White and the Bobashela sell advertising to Jackson firms. When the Stylus staff begins to sell adds, they find the bones pretty well picked clean. They are under instructions not to high-pressure any reluctant advertisers.

The only way for them to break even in their publication is to sell subscriptions. When insufficient subscriptions are sold, the magazine is placed on an insecure financial basis from which there is little means of escape, and threatened with extinction.

If Stylus is not supported by the students, it will cease to exist.

The student will have to decide for himself as to whether or not Stylus is important enough to subscribe to or whether he will contribute to its downfall by ignoring it. What each student does in respect to STYLUS, either as to writing or subscribing, will have an effect on the publication.

We feel that it is worthy of increased and continued support.

Church Groups Reorganize, Elect Officers for Year

Christian inter-denominational groups to be reorganized this year held their meeting the first Wednesday of this month to elect officers and discuss initial organizational plans.

At this printing all the groups had not completed their elections of officers and faculty advisors, but they will be published as soon as possible.

At the Baptist Student Union meeting a program, "BSU on the Campus," was presented by Odean Puckett. They decided to meet at the Christian Center the first and third Wednesdays of each month to study what Baptists believe. Officers Odean Puckett, president; Wally James, vice president; and Helen Fay Head, secretary, were elected. Other officers will be chosen next meeting.

The Canterbury Club, for the Episcopal students of Millsaps and Belhaven, elected Nona Kinchloe president, Betty Deweese, from Belhaven, vice president; Reynolds Cheney, corresponding secretary; Priscilla Mohr secretary-treasurer; and Frank Mangum, representative to the Christian Council.

They will meet the first Sunday of the month at St. Andrews church at 6:00 p.m. for supper and the third Wednesday at the Christian Center at 6:15 for a regular meeting.

Ann Orsborn, president; Reggie Lowe, vice president and supper chairman; Ivey Wallace, secretary-treasurer; and Gail Fielder, program chairman, were elected by the Presbyterians for the Westminster Fellowship officers.

Ann Orsborn will be the Christian Council representative, and Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Haynes will be the advisors. The group is to meet the first and third Wednesdays either at the Christian Center or at one of the Presbyterian churches. Notice will be posted on the bulletin board.

The Methodist's Wesleyan group met with Dr. James Ferguson as advisor and elected the following officers: Jerry Williamson, president and Christian Council representative; Bettye Jo Powell, vice president; Harry Hawkins, secretary-treasurer; Julia Allen, Christian Faith Chairman; Arthur O'Neal, Christian Outreach Chairman; Sara Jo Smith, Christian Fellowship Chairman; Bubba Lee, Christian Citizenship Chairman; Christian Witness, Chairman, Charles Hollaway and Teresa Terry, Publicity Chairman.

The next meeting of the group will be announced on the bulletin board.

Matthews Committee To Give $500 Award For Original Essay

A cash award of $500 for the best essay on "Communism and Academic Freedom," written by an undergraduate student of an American college or university will be made by the J. B. Matthews Testimonial Dinner Committee.

Essays must be limited to two thousand words or less and submitted not later than February 1, 1954. All manuscripts must be typewritten. Only original essays will be considered.

The winner of the award will be announced on March 1, 1954. Judges will be George E. Sokolsky, Eugene Lyons, Ralph de Tolledo, and E. Merrill Root.

Manuscripts should be mailed to the Matthews Award Editor, The American Mercury, 11 East 36th Street, New York 16, New York.

WUS Emphasis At Millsaps To Begin Next Thursday

Next Thursday will mark the beginning of the emphasis of the World University Service at Millsaps College for the 1953-54 year.

The World University Service is the former World Student Service Fund. It is sponsored internationally by the World's Student Christian Federation, Pax Romana IMCS, and the World Union of Jewish Students. It is administered by a headquarters staff in Geneva, Switzerland. WUS works closely with agencies of the United Nations, non-governmental university organizations, and national unions of students.

The World University Service annually conducts fund-raising and educational campaigns on more than seven hundred American campuses in support of the WUS program.

Funds administered by the WUS to various organizations such as CARE and UNESCO are used to help provide food, clothing, shelter, medical care, funds to pay university fees, books, and laboratory equipment for students in Europe, Asia, and the Middle East.

The drive for funds at Millsaps will be headed by Teresa Terry. Faculty waiters will again be used in the cafeteria. They will accept "tips" which will go to the fund.

Regular contributions will be taken up in the dormitories as before. A special chapel program will be devoted to the work of the WUS and to bringing the needs of students the world over before the student body.

The members of the circle held a regular business meeting. A banquet after the initiation welcomed the new members.

Theta Nu Sigma Initiates Nine Members Tuesday

Theta Nu Sigma, science honorary on the Millsaps campus, initiated nine new members last Tuesday night at a banquet held at Primos Restaurant.

The new members were those tapped in the Tap day exercises October 15, and are Sarah Dennis, Minnie Farlow, Molly Lawson, Fay Gaddy, Tommy Spell, Terry Rees, Ben McCarty, Bill Lynch, and Harry Carter.

Tonight Marks Final Performance of Play

"The Infernal Machine," the Millsaps Players' first production of the 1953-54 session, will be presented for the last time tonight at 8:15 in the Christian Center Auditorium.

The play began production Wednesday night and continues through tonight, which will be its third presentation. Players' productions have previously run only two nights, but the run of all the productions this year is being planned for three nights.

Taking the lead roles in the modern version of the Oedipus legend are Hardy Nall and Karen Gilfoyle, both Jackson sophomores. Nall is playing the role of Oedipus and Miss Gilfoyle appears as Jocasta.

Other cast members who will appear in tonight's production are Keith Dix, Jack Dunbar, Fred DeLong, Ed Sturdivant, Jimmy Jones, Joe Ebersole, Mary Huntley, Walter Roberts, Sandra Weir, Larry Tynes, and Lowell Jones.

Assistant to the director will be Wally James of Newton. The play is being directed by Lance Goss, professor of speech and dramatics.

The stage managers for this production are John R. Howell and Janie Haining.

The public is invited to the production. Admission will be 50c for students and $1.00 for adults.

Eta Sigma Phi At Millsaps Host To Latin Convention

The South Mississippi Latin Convention will meet on the Millsaps College campus on Saturday, December 12. The Alpha Phi chapter of Eta Sigma Phi, national classical languages honorary, will be the host.

The theme for skits which will be presented at the convention this year is "Stories from Early Roman History," e.g., the Horatii at the Bridge, the Rape of the Sabines, etc. The trophy now held by Natchez, will be awarded to the group that presents the most original skit.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday morning in the foyer of the Christian Center. The morning session will be devoted to the presentation of the skits. Lunch will be served by the cafeteria.

ODK Initiates Whitam, Woodard, Mincy, Dunbar

Pi Circle of Omicron Delta Kappa, national men's leadership honorary fraternity, initiated four men into the society Tuesday, November 3, in Fitzhugh Chapel in the Christian Center at 6:30.

Those initiated were Fred Whitman, Tommy Woodard, Ernest Mincy, and Jack Dunbar. They were tapped in the recent Tap Day exercises.

The members of the circle held a regular business meeting. A banquet after the initiation welcomed the new members.

There will be a special display of costumes and photographs of scenes from the drama, "The Infernal Machine," a modern version of the Oedipus legend. This drama is currently being presented by Alpha Psi Omega and the Millsaps Players.

Opera Highlights Given Tuesday By Opera Guild

An invitation is extended to all Millsaps students and faculty members, by the Jackson Opera Guild, to attend a campus program featuring music from the forthcoming opera Madam Butterfly, the production dates of which are November 23 and 24 at Bailey Auditorium.

The program will be given in the Christian Center Auditorium next Tuesday at the chapel hour by the members of the Jackson Opera Guild. Mrs. John T. Caldwell, Jr., president of the Guild and part-time mathematics teacher here at Millsaps, will be in charge of the program.

Miss Ann Davis, a member of the chorus, who was recently chosen Southern Radio Queen at Miami, will impersonate Madame Butterfly in costume and will present an "operologue" consisting of the story and musical highlights of the opera.

Mrs. Stephen Meisburg, well-known Jackson pianist, will assist at the piano.

Dr. C. B. Mueller, Assistant Dean of Washington University Medical School, spoke at the regular meeting of Alpha Epsilon Delta on November 4th.

Dr. Mueller gave those attending an idea of how most medical schools elect their students from the applications submitted to them. He classified all medical schools according to their general purpose. Dr. Mueller stated that the way to select a medical school was to choose it according to the purpose it served, such as those for general practitioners or those which specialize in obstetrics. He stressed the liberal arts or varied education prior to medical school, because, as he stated, there is no opportunity for learning about people in medical school.

Dr. Mueller also stressed the fact that anyone who wishes to enter medical school must be in top physical and emotional condition. Dr. Mueller went on to say that the first two years of medical school are often discouraging because most students feel that they are not accomplishing much in a clinical way.

President Finger expressed the feelings of all those who heard Dr. Mueller in a single statement: "It was very stimulating to have such a man on our campus."

Nine-Weeks Grades Mailed This Week, Registrar Announces

Prof. Paul D. Hardin, registrar, announced early this week that, in spite of two illnesses on his staff, the grades for the first term will be sent out by this weekend.

Mr. Hardin's staff has been working hard to get the grades out early, and the other faculty members have co-operated well in turning their grades in on time.

All the completed grade sheets will be mailed Friday afternoon or Saturday morning.

Above are eleven of the twelve Millsaps students selected for the publication, "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. Major Roster Shows Many Returnees For Next Season

This write up is to give you a close-up on members of the 1953 football team, and to give you some idea about what to expect of the Millsaps Majors next fall.

Glenn Cain, a 163 lb. quarterback, has captured 10 letters in his four years stay at Millsaps. He is considered one of our best all-around athletes. His great running ability was an invaluable asset to the Majors.

Billy Greenlee, a 150 lb. quarterback, saw action in practically all the games this year. Greenlee is a sophomore and should surpass all expectations next year.

"Red" Powell, a 170 lb. sophomore who did an excellent job at quarterback this year, will be ready for action next year. Powell gained that experience which he lacked last year and proved to be a valuable asset to the Majors.

Roy Wolf, a 160 lb. right half-back, saw little action this year, but since he is only a freshman his chances for the coming years are very good.

Walter Waldrop, a 180 lb. right half-back, also gained that experience which he lacked his freshman year. He shows promises of being one of the Majors main-liners next fall. Waldrop is a junior.

Sammy Joe Glorioso, a 175 lb.

right half-back, has played his fourth and last year for the Majors. Glorioso is one of our most powerful runners. He received All-Dixie honors his junior year.

Louis Alexander, the 200 lb. freshman fullback, saw little action this year compared to what he is expected to see next year.

Hardy Nall, a 155 lb. sophomore, put his good speed to use as a halfback. Nall is expected to be a very valuable ball-carrier for the Majors next fall.

Don McPherson, 156 lb. part-time center for the Majors, will probably see much more action next year. McPherson is now a junior.

Charles Catledge, a 190 lb. sophomore saw action at center this year. Catledge was a member of the Mississippi All-Star team.

Arthur O'Neil, a 185 lb. senior, was the starter at center this year for the Majors.

Stanley Turpin, a 140 lb. back, who is a little shy in experience and weight, has shown on the practice field that little men can be mighty.

Terry Moore, a 170 lb. fullback, should do great things his sophomore year. He was a little inexperienced this year, but has shown great possibilities for next year.

John Lowery, the 195 lb. sophomore, who has done an undesirable job at fullback for the past two years, possesses a great running ability, and has done a remarkable job punting this year.

Harold Dunaway, a 160 lb. sophomore, should prove to be a hard running left half back for the Majors in the near future. Dunaway is a sophomore.

Tommy Parker, a 155 lb. senior halfback, has played his last season for the Majors. Parker was held to the side line most of the season due to injuries, but was able to prove his worth to the Majors in several games.

Mit Roby, a powerful 160 lb. guard, saw action this year, but still shows greater promises his junior year.

Johnny Awad, a 150 lb. sophomore, has shown that little men can hold down a guard position. Awad has been one of the Majors starters this year, and the thing about him is that he has two more years of ball playing for the Majors.

Jack Phillips, a 180 lb. guard, lacked experience this year, but is expected to see action next year. Phillips is a freshman.

Bill Rose, a 175 lb. freshman, guard, will probably be one of the leading guards next year. Rose has great possibilities.

Laverne Smith, a 180 lb. guard, who suffered from lack of experience this year, still has three more years to go. Smith is a freshman.

Tom Boone, a 165 lb. sophomore who is one of the Majors hardest hitting guards won a place on the starting line up of every game. Boone is a great asset to the team and his value will more than likely increase since he still has two more years.

Tom Prewitt, a 180 lb. guard, saw action in all the games. Prewitt started off for the team in many games. He is a sophomore.

Bobby Joe Smith, a 190 lb. junior has shown his ability as a tackle for the team many times. The future for him as a ball player is very bright.

Jackie Mann, a 175 lb. tackle, found a place on the starting line up of every game. He is to be commended for his smooth playing. Mann is a junior.

Paul Murphy, a 180 lb. end, saw action this year and was considered one of the chief substitutes. Murphy is now a junior.

Bennie Kirkland, a 190 lb. sophomore, acquired himself a position on the starting lineup. Kirkland added strength to the team by displaying great qualities as an end.

John Little, a 185 lb. senior, spent his last year with the Majors as one of their starting ends. Little is also known for his great kicking ability which has often placed the Majors out in front.

Eddie Khayat, a 185 lb. freshman, served the team well as substitute end. He saw action in all the games and should prove to be a leading end for the Majors for the next three years.

Cecil Trantham, a 190 lb. sophomore, did a fine job at tackle this year. Trantham was a sure starter for the Majors in every game.

Jimmy Jones, a 175 lb. sophomore fought hard and saw action with the Majors as a guard. If the hard fighting continues, Jones will probably occupy a place on the starting line up next fall.

Scott Kimball, a 190 lb. junior, saw action in practically all the games as a tackle. Kimball is considered one of their leading reserves.

Robert Ricord, a 200 lb. tackle, was forced to the side line by an ankle injury earlier in the season, but he proved to be an outstanding (See FOOTBALL TEAM, page 5)

"Watch that flat, it's falling!" "We'll have to use 'dutchman' over there." "I've been flecking all day." If these phrases are Greek to you, you are displaying a definite lack in your life—you've never worked backstage.

For fun and frolic, it is highly recommended by all. Of course it also is exhausting, wearing, tiring, and most frantic. If you've never seen the grand spectacle of a cast of thousands (the stage crew) running furiously in all directions at once, you have been vegetating all your life—you've never lived.

The apex of chaos is reached the night before the play. At this time not only does the scenery committee remember approximately 10,000 things it forgot to do the night before, but the cast, make-up group, lighting experts, etc., are added to the confusion. Rehearsals start anywhere from three to six hours after they were planned, and no one can find what they are looking for. When things finally get underway, everyone keeps mumbling something about "Bad rehearsal, good performance." Eventually everyone decides things are ready, until they remember 15 minutes before time on opening night.

A Good Time To Be Had By All

As I said before, it all adds up to a jolly good time for all. It's my belief that no one can ever properly enjoy a play until we see what goes into one back stage. So if you are eager to get out of your rut, and anxious to see how the other half lives, do sign up to work on the next play—it's the greatest.

By the way, if you haven't seen The Infernal Machine, tonight is its closing—don't miss it.

An Explanation

I'd like to take this opportunity to explain an error that occurred last week on my page, and extend my apologies. Honestly, it wasn't my fault. I'm speaking, of course, of the KA pledge picture that was erroneously identified as the Kappa Sig group. Both cuts were at the printers and they printed the wrong one. I'm really sorry it happened, and hope that you will note the correctly identified group this week and not hold it against me.

Faculty Advisor For Stylus Is Former Belhaven Student

Miss Thomasina Blissard, new faculty advisor for Stylus, is one of the newest additions to the Millsaps faculty.

Miss Blissard is assistant librarian; most students have seen her going about her job quietly, as all people should do in the library. But what a lot of people don't know is that Miss Blissard is a part-time freshman English teacher.

This versatile young teacher is a graduate of Belhaven College. She received her M. A. in English from Vanderbilt University in 1948. Upon completion of her education, she taught school for three years. While teaching, she admits that she grew weary of theme reading, but being out of the teaching profession for a few years made Miss Blissard realize that theme reading wasn't so bad after all.

When she took her leave from the desk, she joined the State Board of Health as journalist. Miss Blissard worked there until she came to Millsaps in the spring of 1953 as assistant librarian.

Among her varied hobbies are music, books, golf, and tennis. She very modestly says she enjoys trying to play the piano. The love of

We have openings for four young men with religious background, who can and will work four hours per day, five days per week after 4 P.M. Must be capable enough to earn $13.00 per day and dependable enough to work each day.

Also want one Student with Car who has had Sales experience, to plan and direct this work. His earnings will likely exceed $100.00 per week.

We train you thoroughly at no cost to you. If you can't work these hours consistently, please don't apply. This work can be continued permanently if you desire. Many famous Americans worked their way through college doing this type of work. Drums, Cymbals Singled Out For Special Notice

Now that football season is over, the band will settle down to concert music. The rehearsals and the hard work will continue. Vital in the marching band and the concert orchestra is the percussion section.

WILLARD LEGGETT, a Lambda Chi from Meridian, is one of our fine snare drummers. He is the drummer for the Lambda Chi Alpha Combo.

Equally good on concert and drums is JIMMY PICKENS who is a freshman from Jackson. During the football season Jimmy played the snare drums.

SARA JO SMITH, sophomore from Tupelo, also plays the drums. In addition, she is a valuable member of the Millsaps Singers.

Our cymbal player this year is BETTY ROBBINS. She is a sophomore from Kosciusko and is a member of the Beta Sigma Omicron social sorority.

BILL FULLER is a new member of the Millsaps band. Bill had never played with a band before, but his rhythm and enthusiasm made him a natural as our bass drum player. He is a Jacksonian, a freshman, and a pledge of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity.

books seems natural, of course, in view of her English teaching background and her job. The sports add to a well-rounded life.

One of her main interests is and has been writing. During her college career she worked on the paper and in her senior year was editor of that publication. This would account partly for her interest in Stylus. She believes the magazine is on the road up this year, if the student body shows co-operation. Stylus is definitely looking up in comparison to last year.

Miss Blissard thinks it very nice to be back on the college campus after having been away for a few years. She says it is especially nice to be on the Millsaps campus, and the campus is especially glad to have her here.

MAJOR MAJOR

Millsaps' Head Cheerleader Personality of the Week

This week's Major Major spotlight falls on Jackson senior Loretta Wells. Loretta is majoring in elementary education and plans to graduate in January. "I want to teach then; possibly in Melbourne, Florida. If I don't do that, I may take training as an airline reservationist and then teach the following September."

Practice teaching the first grade last year and senior English now. Loretta said it would be hard to tell which she enjoyed most.

Outside Millsaps, Loretta is active in Jackson's "Little Theatre" productions, vice-president of the Girl's Dinner Club, and a member of the Order of the Eastern Star. Her favorite hobbies are ballet, she's taken several years from Lamon Goings, travel, and designing.

On the campus Loretta is a member of the Phi Mu sorority and serves as vice-president of that organization. She is a member of Kappa Delta Epsilon, the national teaching honorary sorority, was a maid in last year's "Homecoming Court," and has been in the Boba-shela as a favorite and a beauty.

LORETTA WELLS

Last year Loretta was a student assistant in psychology and she is on the Dean's List. A cheerleader for three years, she is now head cheerleader.

Loretta was recently selected as one of the twelve students from Millsaps to be included in the 1954 Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

English Proficiency Tests Threaten Peace Of Mind

Here ye—Hear ye all juniors and some less-fortunate seniors. Another hour of crisis is upon our poor burdened bodies. One such hour has just passed leaving its mark either high or low upon us all. (This being, if you haven't guessed, the nine week's test.) With this 'eventual' week falling into the paths of our fond memories, another such event looms in the near future, to be exact November 17. On this date, all juniors and seniors (who for some reason have failed to take this test) will gather in the Physics Lecture Room at 4:00 to indulge in two hours of original thinking that will be put down on paper.

A list consisting of some thirty-odd subject titles will be given and from this list one title will be selected and developed into an essay of 300-350 words which is to follow all rules regarding grammar which we have or supposed to have consumed in these years here on the Millsaps Campus.

In the two hours allotted, an essay will be written that should have coherence (if you question coherence, may I suggest you "scan" Brightman's discussion in his Introduction of Philosophy), consistency, organization of thought, form, and last but far from least, no essay could be complete, or rather, accurate without punctuation and spelling that is correct to the last of the word. No letter grade will be given on these tests, but if someone has the misfortune to fail, he or she, as the case may be, will surely be notified by the proper authorities.

Those who have taken the proficiency test advise, "Take your time, think out your thoughts and just do your best in putting your thoughts on paper."

Sounds like good advice, doesn't it? I guess all we can do is to hope and pray that we will be among the fortunate who get that coveted mark 'Pass' on our paper.

"Best of luck to you all" is our last phrase on this subject.

4-H Clubs Hold Regional Meeting On Campus Today

Today regional meeting of the 4-H club will be held here. About 1:30 the members will have lunch in the cafeteria. After lunch a brief program consisting of greeting by President Finger and the showing of the film, "A Day in the Life of a Millsaps Student."

Millsaps is co-operating with Jackson Chamber of Commerce in having the meeting on the campus.

By defeating Ouachita College last week, the Majors closed their campaign for this football season with an overall record of five wins and two losses, a very good percentage of wins in these days of one-platoon football.

After opening the season by bowing to the favored Delta Statesmen, Millsaps came back to get victories over Hendrix 20-0, Sewanee 36-6, and Howard 16-13, before dropping a very close game to the arch-rivals from Mississippi College 19-20. However, the Majors rebounded strong to down Southwestern 40-0. Two weeks ago, and closed out a great season with the decision over the previously unbeaten and untied Tigers of Ouachita.

The Majors and Coach Sammie Bartling all deserve credit in some part for this good season. Some of them did so well as to deserve special praise.

Coach Bartling should be complimented for revising the team from the two-platoon squad of last year into one very effective offensive and defensive unit. Bartling also made several important shifts of his men during the year, many of which definitely improved the team.

ing player before the injury occurred. Ricard is a sophomore.

Bobby Belcher, a 200 lb. end, filled in vacancies left by the starting ends and did a fine job. His junior and senior year should both be filled with plenty of action.

Bill McConkey, a 200 lb. sophomore put his weight to use at one of the end positions. He wasn't a starter but did get to see plenty of action in all of the games.

Robert Sartin, a 198 lb. sophomore, was refused an end position on the starting line up because he lacked experience. He will more than likely see plenty of action in the next two years.

Phi Mu Pledges Are Entertained At Party By Lambda Chi Pledges

The Phi Mu Pledges were guests of the pledges of Lambda Chi on November 5 for an informal supper party. Sandwiches, potato chips, punch, ice cream and cupcakes were served. A theme of rose and white, the Phi Mu colors, was carried out in the decorations.

The Lambda Chi Combo played for the group and the guests joined in singing various fraternity, sorority, and popular songs. Mr. and Mrs. James Livesay and Mr. John T. Zumbro chaperoned the party.

The Lambda Chi pledges plan to entertain the other sorority pledge groups with similar parties.

Season Closes; Pikes And Sigs Meet In Playoff

by George Hunt

Backs deserving special recognition include explosive fullback John Lowery, quarterback Red Powell, and Halfbacks Glenn Cain and Sammy Joe Glorioso. Lowery, easily the most outstanding man on the squad, did most of the ground gaining for the Majors, keeping the defense of opposing teams drawn in so that Powell could throw passes to his ends and to Cain and Glorioso.

Leading linemen for the Majors were guards Tom Boone and John Awad, and end John Little, a fast man who gained a lot of ground on end-rounds and pass completions. Other Major linemen were guards, Tom Prewitt and Mit Roby, tackles Jackie Mann, Cecil Trantham, and Robert Ricard, and ends Bennie Kirkland, Bobby Joe Smith, and Eddie Khayat, Art O'Neal, Don McPherson, and Charles Catledge split the duties at center, with O'Neal usually the starter.

Tuesday, the Kappa Sigs won over the KA's 19-0. The Sigs scored early and added two more touchdowns later for the victory. This gave the Sigs, first half champions, a firm grip on second place in the standings.

The KA's and Lambda Chi's were to have played their rained out game Wednesday, but the KA's failed to appear, so the game was forfeited to the Lambda Chi's, giving them third place in the standings.

Ground Gainer

Leading ground-gainer for the Millsaps Majors again in his sophomore year, freshman sensation John Lowery has continued his pile-driving in his second season of college football. Suffering not at all from the "sophomore jinx," Lowery has been instrumental in the Majors' successful season. He failed to score in the Ouachita game, but picked up considerable yardage in the 21-13 win. (Daily News Staff photo by Ralph Hutto).

The Editor's Desk

by Eddie Gossard

The Purple and White is in the news in Starkville, Miss., State's student newspaper, The Reflector, ran a feature recently combining a story of the Gulfport negro who applied for entrance to graduate school at Ole Miss with an account of the comments in this paper about the double Homecoming held here recently.

No conclusions were drawn; the facts were simply set down as recorded in the P&W. Apparently someone reads the Purple and White, whether anybody close by does or not.

There are two items of interest that should be mentioned. One has already been dwelt on at some length . . . This is the support of Stylus, Millsaps' literary magazine. Editor Mangum has approached us about writing a selection for Stylus. We are not bragging. The point is to show how terribly hard up he must be for material of any kind, not to mention good material. It seems that everybody is far too busy to devote any of their time to create some deathless for the magazine. Now we know that all and sundry are very, very busy, and that for most people writing does not come easy and is not something one does overnight on order. Just the same, it would be real nice if some of the talent on this campus would take out a bit of time and turn in an article to the editor. Mangum is going to do just as good a job with the publication as the efforts of the students of Millsaps will allow him to do. Plenty of material to choose from: a good, interesting magazine. Little material of consequence: a publication that will not interest any students, even the most avid fans of literature.

As we have said before, Stylus seems to us to meet a very definite need of this school; and whether or not you recognize that need, it is there, be you writer or reader. Stylus is always enjoyable after it appears; it might be well to try to generate a little steam about it beforehand this time.

Another item worthy of mention is the coming up of the annual World University Service drive which will begin on this campus November 19. The WUS functions all year, but the drive for funds will be concentrated during a period of about a week.

The WUS is the former World Student Service Fund, with which most Millsaps students are familiar.

The World University Service is the channel through which the students of the world unite to help each other help themselves. Thirty-two national branches are at work in Asia, the Middle East, Western Europe, and North America.

The WUS works without prejudice to race and nationality, religious background, political, conviction, and social and economic background. It encourages and supports all efforts on the part of students, professors, and others to meet the basic needs of the universities throughout the world. The WUS program of mutual assistance through the sharing of resources, knowledge, and experience brings together students and teachers in mutual service.

More information about the WUS will be found elsewhere in this paper.

This is a project that all the students and faculty can share in, and one that is of utmost importance to the well-being of the

We Can Help, Too

Next Thursday marks the emphasis of the World University Service at Millsaps College.

Little needs to be said concerning the need of students the world over for the help that we can, through such organizations as the World University Service, give them.

They lack food, clothing, shelter, medical care, money to pay university fees, books and laboratory equipment. They also lack the security that comes from friendship and the knowledge that, somewhere, there is someone that cares what happens to them and is willing to do something about it.

These students are doing what they can to help themselves. They are holding jobs along with the full-time job of being students. They are building huts or hostels to live in; they are starting health services and rest centers. They are mimeographing textbooks and lecture notes and are appealing to their own government for aid; they are raising money in their own communities to help meet their needs.

The WUS is not helping someone who won't help himself; it is helping someone who cannot, without aid, meet his own needs completely.

The WUS is one way in which we can express the Christian principles we profess. It is one way in which we can stick out a helping hand to our brothers across the waters.

Enough trite sayings have been made about giving to help the needy; we'll not add any more. We wish simply to state that we, with all our advantages and opportunities, which we take for granted, more or less, should certainly, by all that is right and Christian, be able to see the needs of those who were not fortunate enough to be born in a free, prosperous country. And, seeing the needs, there should be no question about whether or not we will help, but how much we can help.

Mississippi Football Teams All Victorious Last Week

Mississippi's major football teams are on the beam once more. State, Ole Miss, and Southern, all were victorious last Saturday. In addition, Millsaps College, Delta State, and Mississippi College all picked up wins, giving the state virtually a non-defeated weekend.

All-American candidate Jackie Parker scored one touchdown, passed for another, and engineered a grinding ground attack in State's 21-0 blanking of Tulane.

Parker scored on a 7 yard keep play and passed to end John Katusa for 7 yards and another score. Fullback Charles Evans picked up 60 yards in the drive for the first touchdown and scored on the last of three carries, this one for 37 yards and the score. Tulane was not the team that tied Army 0-0 the week before, and penetrated to the State 16 only once and was unable to score.

Ole Miss's sophomore backs ran roughshod over North Texas State in a wild 40-7 victory. The Texans drew first blood on a passing combination featuring quarterback Bobby Hughes and end Norman Ingebrigsten. The score came on

Ralph Reynolds' 13 yard touchdown sweep. Ole Miss scored twice in the first period with Houston

Patton galloping 82 yards and McCool going 6; two more in the third quarter on Patton's pass to Dave Dickerson and McCool's plunge from the one; and two in the last stanza on a 14 yard dash by Harold Lofton and a 5 yard run by Blair. The Texans' only bright spot of the day was Hughes' passing, with 15 completions in 21 tries. Ole Miss sharpened its teeth for the battle with Maryland next week.

Mississippi Southern coupled the fine running of halfback Jimmie Mason with an aerial attack by quarterback Billy Jarrell and end Hub Waters, to down Florida State 21-0. Mason scored twice, on a 33 yard run, and the other on a four yard buck. Bucky McElroy scored and other marker, bulging over from the one, and kicked all of the extra points. A 26 yard Jarrell to Waters pass and a 36 yard run by Mason set up Mason's second score, while a 46 yard Jarrell-Waters pass set up McElroy's score. Southern's Laurin Pepper saw only limited duty because of a bad ankle that has kept him out of most of three games. End Dick Caldwell of Southern led the Black and Gold defense, which stiffened inside the Southern 30 to hold the Seminoles scoreless.

Eight Millsaps Chemistry Majors Visit Industry At Baton Rouge

Eight Millsaps Chemistry majors traveled to Baton Rouge, Louisiana last Friday and Saturday with Dr. J. B. Price and Dr. Frank James of the Millsaps chemistry department.

The group visited the industrial plants at the Ethyl Corporation and the Esso Refineries and the Kaiser Aluminum Works. At Ethyl, their guide was Mitchell Baird, a graduate of Millsaps; and at Esso, they were guided by Lester Addison, another Millsaps graduate.

Making the trip were Roy Parker, Roy Arnold, Roy Epperson, Hugh Burford, Granville Sykes, Joe Lee, Robert Kelly, Harry Dowling, Dr. Price and Dr. James.

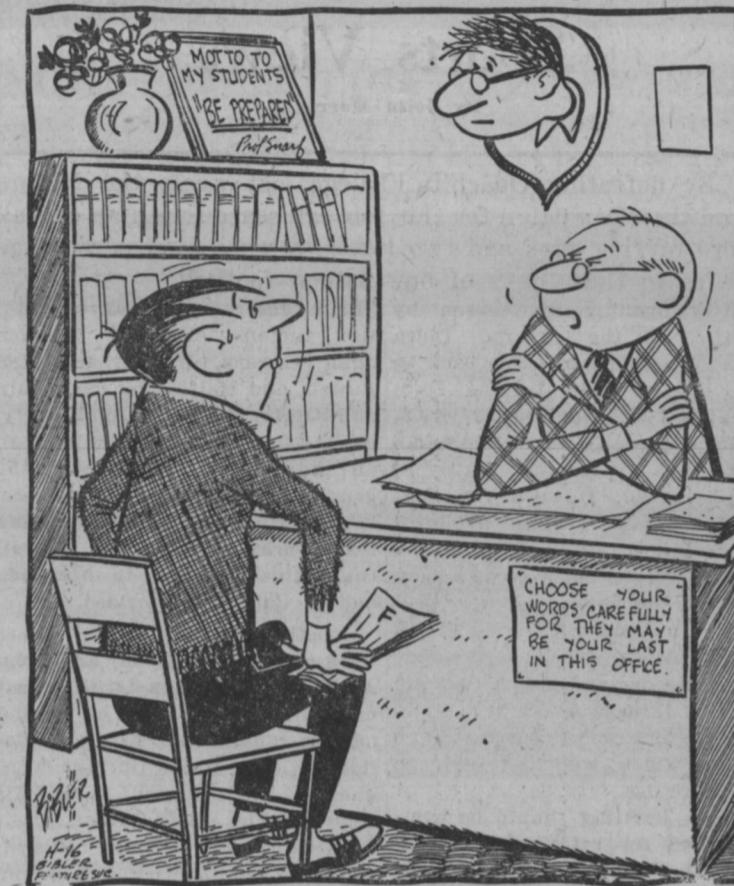

In addition to touring the industrial plants, the group toured the chemistry and physics departments at L. S. U.

The purpose of the trip was to observe industrial methods and particularly to see the research laboratories of the various plants. All of the students making the trip plan to go into industrial research.

Trips to other industrial areas are being planned by the chemistry department for observations in other fields.

A.I.M. Prepares Management Audit Of Private College

The American Institute of Management, New York, a non-profit organization to which more than 12,000 business leaders contribute as associate members, is preparing a management audit of Whitman College, Walla Walla, Washington.

The report, the first public document of its kind ever issued about any higher institute of learning, will be released in the near future. It will cover in detail all aspects of the college administration, in much the same way that previous A.I.M. audits have analyzed and evaluated the managements of selected American corporations, such as The Proctor & Gamble Company, American Telephone & Telegraph Company, The Statler Hotels Company, and others.

According to one eminent jurist, Associate Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme Court, a trustee of the college, this unique undertaking will touch "one of the most important aspects of the American way of life." Commenting on the audit, then in progress, Justice Douglas recently said, "It will herald a hard-headed approach to one of our most pressing problems—how to keep academic freedom alive; how to keep him who pays the piper from calling the educational tune; how to make sacred the precincts of the college campus so that men's minds will always be free. To many of us alumni, these are the considerations that make this project the most crucial one in Whitman's illustrious history.

Jackson Martindell, President of the American Institute of Management, whose ability and integrity have brought him high honors in American business, will in time give a full and frank report on Whitman. What he will say we do not know. But certain it is his analysis and proposals will be important not only to Whitman, but to all private colleges."

C. Canby Balderston, dean of Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania, and William C. DeVane, dean of Yale College are directors of the Institute. Others on the board, in addition to Mr. Martindell, include Alfons B. Landa, partner in the Washington firm of Davies, Richberg, Tydings, Beebe & Landa; Wheeler Sammons, publisher, "Who's Who In America," and Ordway Tead, editor, and director, Harper & Brothers.

The Institute is a non-profit foundation devoted to the study and improvement of management practices and policies. Its headquarters are at 125 East 38th Street, New York 16, New York.

SEB Committee Appointed To Study Student Set-Up

A committee of the Student Executive Board was appointed at the regular meeting of SEB Tuesday, November 9, to investigate the student government set-up at Millsaps with an eye to possible improvements.

The committee was composed of Eddie Gossard, Minnie Farlow, and Fred Blumer, with SEB President Tommy Woodard serving as an ex-officio member and with an additional member, as yet unnamed, from outside SEB.

The committee was set up as a long-range committee to make a thorough study into student government at Millsaps and to report at the end of its study. No report is expected for several weeks.

The committee on Religious Activities was renamed to set up the duties for Christian Council, which a recent action of SEB brought back into being.

A special meeting of SEB was called by President Woodard for last Tuesday night to receive committee reports.

NO CUTS BEFORE OR AFTER HOLIDAYS

The office of the Dean calls the attention of Millsaps students to the regulations concerning cuts in classes on the two days immediately preceding and the two days immediately following a regularly scheduled holiday. Any cuts without approbation of the academic dean will result in probation for the offender for the rest of the semester.

Chapel, Faculty Waiters Initiate Campus WUS Drive

The drive for the WORLD UNIVERSITY SERVICE fund began yesterday morning in chapel.

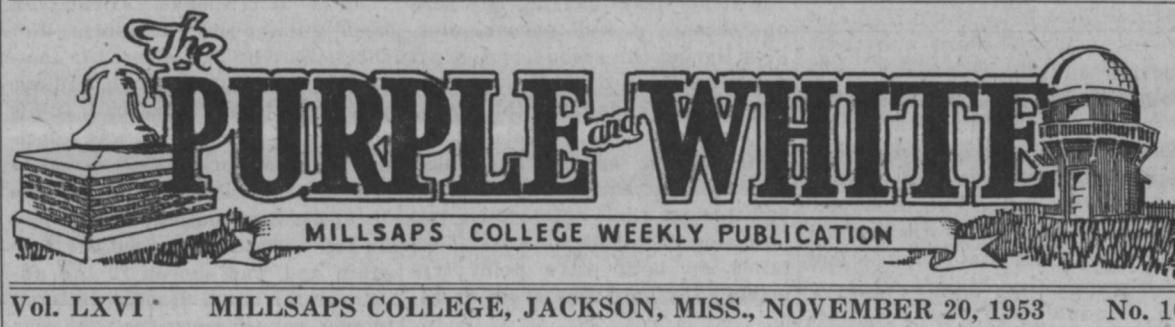

Dr. M. I. Ting, of Tougaloo College, a distinguished doctor from China, pointed out some of the outstanding facts pertaining to the WORLD UNIVERSITY SERVICE.

Pledges to the fund were also made during the chapel period.

The faculty waiters and waitresses generously donated the tips which they collected last night in the cafeteria to the WUS FUND.

"Their Future Is Our Future" will be presented in the projection room in Sullivan-Harrell. Teresa Terry, chairman of the World Relatedness Commission of YWCA, stated that the film would be shown free of charge at the regular chapel time Tuesday morning.

Sara Johnson, publicity chairman, disclosed the presentation of student talent under the direction of Roy Epperson at 8:00 o'clock Tuesday night in the auditorium. Admission to the program will be twenty-five cents. The receipts will also be turned over to the WUS fund.

University-Millsaps Center Has Fall Enrollment Of 250

The University of Mississippi-Millsaps Center has an enrollment of 250 students for evening classes in the fall semester.

Under the directorship of Mr. J. B. Brown graduate and undergraduate courses are made available at Millsaps at night.

Courses offered this semester include: accounting, biology, business law, chemistry, economics, education, English, mathematics, psychology, Spanish, office administration, physics, sociology, engineering, French, geology, nursing, philosophy, history, political science, religion, speech, and business theory for secretaries.

The Center is a joint effort to provide public service education on a non-profit basis. A curriculum is offered in business, engineering, nursing, the liberal arts, and the fine arts. Studies are applicable to degrees and residence credit is allowed. A selective program of graduate studies is in effect and residence credit is allowed within limits which vary from course to course.

Students desiring credit must submit transcripts of credits earned in college or high school, with applications for admission to either the University of Mississippi or Millsaps College. Graduate students desiring credit must apply to the Graduate School at the University of Mississippi. Application forms may be secured in the Center Office and all transcripts should be submitted through the Center Office.

The usual course fee is $30.00 ($10.00 per semester hour). Certain science and chemistry courses require payment of an additional lab fee.

Center Offices are located in Murrah Hall on the Millsaps campus.

NOTICE

This will be the last issue of the PURPLE AND WHITE until Friday, December 11. School will be out during Thanksgiving weekend and due to insufficient working time, there will be no issue on the week following the holidays.

There will be three more issues of the paper this semester, two before Christmas and one after the Christmas holidays.

Eight Debaters From Millsaps To Visit Clinton

The Deep South Conference Debate Tournament will be held at Mississippi College in Clinton on Friday and Saturday, November 20 and 21.

There will be three divisions of the tournament: Senior Women, Senior Men, and Novice.

Representing Millsaps in the Senior Women's Division will be Sylvia Sanford and Lois Boakle. Fred Whitam and James Williams will represent Millsaps in the Senior Men's Division. Taking part in the Novice Division will be Lowell Jones, Walter Roberts, Robert Harris, and Joe Ebersole.

Tryouts For One-Act Plays Held By Student Directors

Tryouts were held Wednesday night for the three one act plays to be presented by the Millsaps Players and Alpha Psi Omega on December 15.

The three plays this year will be Act One of Light Up The Sky by Moss Hart, The Valiant by Middlemass, and Act two of Torch-Bearers by George Kelly.

Each of these plays will have a student director. Bobby Myers, a senior from Jackson will direct Light up the Sky. Fred Delong, also a senior from Jackson will direct The Valiant, and Torch-Bearers will be directed by Jack Dunbar, a senior from Sumner.

Two of these plays are comedies and the third, The Valiant, a Drama. These three plays will take a total of twenty four characters.

Each year a Junior Acting award is presented by Alpha Psi Omega for the best performance in these plays.

Last year, the plays were Sor-ry, Wrong Number, A Phoenix Too Frequent, and Happy Journey.

Names of the casts and committee head for the plays will be printed in a later edition of this paper, after they are chosen.

'Stylus' To Be Distributed Soon After Thanksgiving

Stylus, Millsaps' literary magazine, will be distributed in the first week in December, immediately after the Thanksgiving holidays, according to an announcement by Frank Mangum, editor.

Mangum met with members of the English department to make final selections for the fall issue of the magazine early this week. Selections are plentiful for a good issue, according to editor Mangum and Miss Thomasina Blissard, faculty advisor.

Selections from the themes written by those taking the English Proficiency Test are also being considered for publication.

Students have been asked to sign up for copies of Stylus during the past two weeks, and will receive them in Murrah Hall. The price of the magazine will again be twenty-five cents per copy.

Final selections for the publication had not been made at this writing, but all the copy will be turned over to the printers by the end of this week.

Members of the English Department aiding in making selections include Dr. M. C. White, Mrs. W. F. Goodman, Miss Blissard, Miss Mildred Morehead, Professor Paul Hardin, Mrs. Mary Stone, editor Mangum, and Ed Sturdvant, member of Kit Kat.

First County Group Of Millsaps Alumna Meet In Greenwood

On November 23 the organizational meeting of the first county group of Millsaps Alumna will be held in Greenwood. Rev. Bailey of Itta Bena is the one who has promoted the movement for the formation of the Leflore County Millsaps Alumna group. President Finger and Mr. Jim Livesay plan to attend this meeting. As a part of this meeting a dutch treat dinner is planned. After which the movie "A Day in the Life of a Millsaps Student" will be shown. It is thought that officers will be elected also during the time.

The Alumna association is hoping that other groups will form. Mrs. Catherine Lindsay of the class of 1947 is working on the organization of a group in the Baltimore, Maryland, area. This would be the first out of state organization.

'Madame Butterfly' Given By Jackson Opera Guild

The opera, Madame Butterfly, will be presented next Monday and Tuesday nights in the auditorium of Bailey Junior High by the Jackson Opera Guild.

The opera will be given in Italian and will star Uta Graf, European soprano, Richard King, Jackson tenor and the son of Alvin J. King, director of the Millsaps Singers. Also in lead roles will be Betty Monette of Jackson and Belhaven and Ben Trotter of Jackson. Miss Monette is the contralto, and Mr. Trotter is the baritone.

The conductor for the opera will be John Anello of Milwaukee. The Musical Director will be Harold Avery of Millsaps and Jackson. Director of stage and costumes will be Harold Tesmer of Chicago.

Mrs. John T. Caldwell, president of the Jackson Opera Guild and part-time mathematics teacher at Millsaps, presided at a program to present highlights of the opera to interested students at Millsaps College last Tuesday in the Christian Center Auditorium. Miss Ann Davis, member of the chorus of the opera, impersonated Madame Butterfly in costume and gave an "operologue" consisting of the story and highlights of the opera. Mrs. Stephen Meisburg of Jackson assisted at the piano.

The opera will be presented at 8 p.m. on both nights. Admission (Continued on page 2)

Annual Debate Tournament To Be Held At Millsaps

One hundred colleges and universities in 12 states have been invited to the Fourteenth Annual Debate Tournament to be held at Millsaps College on December 4th and 5th.

The debate tournament will be arranged in three divisions: Men's Division open to all college men, Women's Division open to all college women, and Junior Division open to freshmen and sophomores. A maximum of two teams will be permitted from each school in each division. An attendance of about sixty teams is expected.

The official inter-collegiate question will be: "Resolved: That the United States should adopt a policy of free trade." Each team will be expected to debate both sides of this question.

In addition to the official question, there will be contests in Oratory and Extemporaneous Speech. The general subject of the contest in Extemporaneous Speech will be Domestic Affairs.

Trophies will be presented to the first and second place winners in each division of debate. Medals will be awarded to the first and second place winners in Oratory and Extemporaneous Speech.

Professor E. S. Wallace will direct the debate tournament. He will be assisted by Professor Frank M. Laney. Professor Raymond McIlvanna will designate the Millsaps teams.

Lowery Is Most Valuable Powell Is Most Improved

John Lowery was named Most Valuable Player of the Year, and "Red" Powell The Most Improved Player at the annual banquet held in the school cafeteria last Tuesday night.

Lowery has been a first string fullback for the Majors for two years. His rushing has been an invaluable asset to the Majors.

Powell took over the quarterback position earlier in the season and has been partly responsible for such victories as the 40-0 win over Southwestern.

Doby Bartling, former coach of the Majors, was the toastmaster for the occasion.

Johnny Awad, John Little, and Tommy Parker were in charge of the arrangements for the banquet. Coach Bartling has stated that the football letters are to be awarded at a later date, however, those receiving letters have been announced. They are: Glenn Cain, Hardy Nall, William Powell, Roy Wolfe, Walter Waldrop, Sammy Joe Glorioso, Lewis Alexander, Terry Moore, John Lowery, Harold Dunaway, Tommy Parker, Billy Greenlee, Don McPherson, Charles Catledge, Arthur O'Neil, Johnny Awad, Tom Prewitt, Tom Boone, Jackie Mann, Cecil Trantham, Jimmy Jones, Paul Murphy, Bobby Jo Smith, Bennie Kirkland, John Little, Eddie Khayat, and Bobby Belcher.

Major Basketball Schedule For 1953-54 Is Announced

The basketball schedule for the 1953-54 season has been announced by Head Coach Sammy Bartling.

The Majors' first home game will not be until after Christmas, on January 11, against Mercer University. The Majors will take on Mississippi College's Choctaws at the City Auditorium in a home game for the Chocs on January 7.

The Majors open the season with a four-game road trip December 8-11. The opponents for the games are Lambuth on the 8th, Bethel on the 9th and 10th, and Southwestern on the 11th.

Afternoon practice under the supervision of Coach Bartling will not begin until Monday. Men interested in the squad are holding informal workouts in Buie Gym. The lettermen from last year have been working hard to prepare themselves for the rough schedule, and particularly to get ready for the vastly improved Choctaws.

After meeting M. C. for the second time on January 14 and taking time out for exams, the Majors stage a two-day home stand against Howard and Oglethorpe, and then leave on the second four-day road trip of the season to face Birmingham Southern, Sewanee, and Howard. They return to Jackson to meet Mississippi College in the Choctaws' second home game at the Armory and then visit Delta State for the last road game. The Majors wind up the schedule with games against Mississippi College and Delta State.

Kappa Sigs Win Speedball Crown, Whip Pikes 14-0

It was a cool but sunny Tuesday afternoon when the speedball champs of each half finally took to the gridiron in quest of first place honors.

The first quarter passed without either team causing any serious threat. A well placed quick-kick during the second period put the Pikes deep in their own territory and seconds later the Kappa Sigs scored a safety. This started their scoring spree. The Pikes appeared helpless as the Sigs ripped through their defenses for two lightning fast touchdowns. They failed on both extra point tries leaving the half time score at 14-0.

The second half proved scoreless as the Pikes managed to bog down several touchdown drives by the Kappa Sigs, but never managed to muster up a scoring threat of their own. It was after dusk when the whistle blew that made the Kappa Sigs the speedball champions of 1953.

Basketball

According to intramural chairman, Billy Greenlee, the intramural basketball will probably begin within the next two weeks.

The game time will more than likely be 7:00 p.m. and 8:00 p.m. as it has in the past.

Greenlee has announced that he will meet with the team's captains later in the week to discuss the rules and regulations for this year.

Glenn Cain, M-Club Prexy, Major Major Of The Week

The Major Major personality of the week is Glenn Cain, political science major from Durant. Glenn will graduate in January and hopes to work with the Federal Bureau of Investigation after serving a stint in Uncle Sam's army.

Here at Millsaps, Glenn has been outstanding in sports. For three years he has lettered in football, basketball, and track, and one year he lettered in baseball. In his sophomore year, Glenn was selected by the Major football squad as the Most Valuable Player. He spent his first football season here in the intramural speedball program and was chosen to the all-intramural team. He has lettered in each varsity sport the first year that he has participated in it. Glenn was selected All-Dixie in 1951 and 1952.

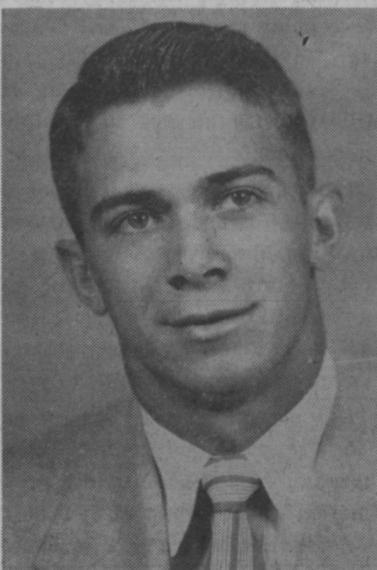

Glenn is now president of the M-Club, the athletic organization recognizing ability in the fields of sports.

Falkner's Team Are Champions In Volleyball

Girls' intramural volleyball came to an end several weeks ago with the team captained by Peggy Falkner going through undefeated to win the championship easily. The games were held in Buie Gym in the afternoon from 3:00 until 5:00. Many girls took an active interest in the games and enjoyed the intramural competition.

Players on the winning team besides Miss Falkner were: Mary Lynn Graves, Shirley Brown, Janie Haining, Yvonne Moss, Nell Marie Vaughan, Marian Swayne, Mary Elizabeth Burton, Jane Wiggins, Francis Jerrigan, Mary Sidney Johnson, and Jo Glyn Hughes. The six teams were not com-

He is a member of Kappa Sigma social fraternity, and was recently selected by the faculty for inclusion in the publication, Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

Glenn has participated in three football games, twelve basketball games, and four baseball games against the Choctaws. Millsaps won two of the football games, with Glenn leading the team in both victories, scoring in one contest. This was the year of the Most Valuable Player Award. He started eight of the basketball games, only two of which we have lost, not including the games we won from the Chocs in the Dixie Tournaments.

The teams played a round-robin schedule, with each getting a chance to play every other team in the tournament twice.

The other five captains were Minnie Farlow, Aspasia Athas, Joan Wilson, Ivy Wallace, and Lucy Robinson.

Just three more school days! Who would have believed at the beginning of the semester that time would have passed with the speed of light—186,000 miles per second if I remember correctly. There's no doubt about it, that's fast.

Thanksgiving brings with it a variety of events including, quite probably, family reunions of one sort or another. At times it is difficult to listen as Aunt Mary tells of her club's latest doings or Uncle Joe describes his most significant financial transactions. The worst, though, are the scores of children that descend with clock-like regularity. Someone must play with them, someone must read to them, someone must watch them, someone must help them eat, and so on ad nauseam. See, just for kicks, if you can figure out who "someone" is.

Don't Get Confused

Please, no misinterpretations. I love children—wild about them in fact, but somehow the hordes that I find in my home at holidays remind me of Gengis Khan's little group. I haven't verified the fact psychologically, but it seems to me that children in groups of more than three at holidays revert to the most primitive stages of development—something like Java man, I think. Time and scientific experimentation may prove this true or false, but for now I cling to it with all the self-righteousness my past experience can muster.

More Names

Through a clumsy mental lapse last week I neglected to mention names of those who had requested it. They were Karen Gilfoyle, John R. Howell (little Johnny to those not in the know), and Ike Musselwhite. To any who may be interested in this service allow me to make a suggestion. Write your name on a piece of paper and give it to me by Tuesday morning. I didn't realize the demand would be so great.

GREYHOUND

The Editor's Desk

by Eddie Gossard

One of the most delightful experiences that we have had had at Millsaps with respect to dramatics was watching "the Infernal Machine" unwind in The Players' production last week.

Nothing need be said about the quality of the play itself. With a dramatics department capable of doing things like "The Death of a Salesman," there can be little doubt about the merit of the material used. "The Machine" is no exception.

So much for that. The staging of the play was exceptional. The departure of one George Reid, stage manager first class, brought on many cries of "what will we do for a stage manager?" It would appear that one, or rather two, have been found. Scenery, lights, and all the trimmings added to the finished product (and as always it was finished). The costuming left nothing to be desired—from Oedipus' first simple costume to the priests' pontifical magnificence they were all very realistic and very eye-pleasing.

Direction, as usual, was nothing short of professional. We don't claim to begin to know enough about staging, direction, or acting to be a real critic. We do know what we like. And of the things we liked about "The Infernal Machine," the acting takes first place.

Hardy Nall was the perfect brash young Oedipus, running headlong into that very thing from which he wishes most to escape, and being perfectly confident of everything that he does. Karen Gilfoy did an excellent job with the part of Queen Jocasta and Jack Dunbar was his usual professional self, becoming a priest with the same facility that he has been a Roman soldier or a newspaper writer.

The play may not have been the most important production ever performed on our stage. It may not have been the best play we have ever seen The Players present. It may not have had in it the role that will bring its actors the Alpha Psi award for the year. But, though it may not have been any of these things, it was two very important things.

First, it was the first production of the year. The importance of starting off with a good one is obvious. Second, it was enjoyable. We don't recall seeing a single person after the play who had not enjoyed it. Everyone who saw it was impressed with the whole of the performance. They each picked out that which they liked best. And, in many cases, it was different. The play was a well-rounded production which leaves one with a favorable impression of The Players and of what they can do. It leaves one with the feeling that the rest of the year's productions will be well-worth seeing.

Speaking of seeing, it might be well to say that we saw a goodly number of students at the play each night, but no great crowd on any one night. The three performances made it a bit harder to tell whether there was any great deficiency in attendance on the part of the student body or not. If you missed the play, you missed something that you would, by all odds, have enjoyed very much. We suggest that you take in the rest of the year's productions. You owe it to yourself to take advantage of this particular phase of a liberal arts education.

We made some mention of a contest in science fiction being run by IF magazine. We said we would print the rules when they came. They're here. We have become skeptical about just how interested the typical Millsaps student is in entering a science fic-

Denominational Groups Need Cooperation Of Student Body

Denominational religious groups have been re-established on the Millsaps campus by SEB. They are not new to the campus. Denominational groups met on the campus traditionally until two years ago, when SEB set up a Student Christian Association which was to be inter-denominational.

The students of the college desired the return to denominational groups. They petitioned for such a change and indicated further that they wanted to return to the denominational groups when SEB's committee made further investigation into the matter.

On the basis of the committee report, SEB established the denominational groups again, and set up a Christian Council to regulate the activities of the groups and to undertake specific campus religious projects such as Religious Emphasis Week.

Now, whether or not the decision was the best that could have been made, it was what the students desired. It is now the duty of each individual student, as a part of the college, to cooperate in the religious program as it is set up. The students' will has been adhered to; it is up to the students in their work in their particular groups to make the change significant and effective.

Without the whole-hearted cooperation on the part of the students in the religious program, both in the programs of the individual groups and in the total campus program, the change will not make any difference in the religious activities of the college; with the cooperation and enthusiasm, any program can be made effective, and this particular one even more effective.

SPEEDBALL FINAL STANDINGS

The final standings for both halves of speedball in the 1953 season are: First place, Kappa Sigma; second place, Pi Kappa Alpha; third place, Kappa Alpha; fourth place, Lambda Chi Alpha; fifth place, Ministers.

The Sigs were first half champions, and the Pikes won the second half for the right to meet the Sigs in the sudden death playoff.

Latin Convention To Meet On This Campus Tomorrow

The Alpha Phi chapter of Eta Sigma Phi, national classical languages honorary, will be the host to the South Mississippi Latin Convention, which will meet on the Millsaps Campus tomorrow.

Registration for the convention will begin tomorrow at 9 a. m. in the foyer of the Christian Center. The morning session will be devoted to the presentation of skits by the attending groups.

The theme for the skits which will be presented this year is "Stories from Early Roman History," e. g. the Horatii at the Bridge, the Rape of the Sabines, etc. The trophy, now held by Natchez, will be awarded to the group that presents the most original skit.

Lunch will be served by the Millsaps cafeteria.

There will be a special display of costumes and photographs of scenes from the drama. "The In-

A tea will be held for the delegates in the lounge at Whitworth Hall late in the afternoon.

Roy Epperson, Eta Sigma Phi national president and president of the Millsaps chapter, is in charge of all arrangements.

'Million For Millsaps' Program Is Presented To Student Body

In chapel last Thursday President H. E. Finger, Jr., of Millsaps College presented to the student body tentative plans in the "Million for Millsaps" program which are to be approved by members of the Mississippi and North Mississippi Annual Conferences of the Methodist Church on January 7, 1954.

"A college needs three things — students, instructors, and a place for the students and instructors to get together," said President Finger and added that the program would be for the purpose of improving the latter two items.

There are two major phases in the program, which will be extended over the next three years. It is hoped by the administration that the goal of a million dollars for Millsaps will be realized in the next three years and that some of the work can be begun before the three-year period has passed.

Half of the million dollars will be used for the strengthening of the instructional staff of the college, there being two phases to (See MILLION, page 5)

One Act Plays To Be Presented Monday; Casts, Staff Announced

Monday, December 14, at 8:15 the one-act plays will be presented by the Millsaps Players. The plays to be given are act one of Light Up the Sky by Moss Hart, The Valiant by Middlemess, and act two of Torch-Bearers by George Kelley.

The cast of Light Up the Sky includes: Wally James as June Livingston, Ed Sturdivant, Carlton; Tarver Butler, Owen Turner; Ann Butler, Stella; Carl Welch, Sidney Black; Kay Fort, Frances Black; Peggye Falkner, Miss Livingston; and Cliff Rigby, Peter Sloan. Bobby Myers is the director and Pip Thompson is assistant.

The Valiant, a drama directed by Fred DeLong, has in the cast Keith Dix as James Dyke; Cecil Trantham, Warden Holt; Fred Whitam, Father Daly; Ann Hand, Josephine Paris; George Hunt, Dan, a jailer; Jack Loflin, an attendant.

Jack Dunbar will direct Torch-Bearers. The cast includes: Audrey Jennings as Mrs. Pampielli; Jeanelle Howell, Mrs. Fell; John Little, Mr. Hossefrosse; Walter Ely, Mr. Twiller; Jane Wiggins, Mrs. Ritter; Powers Moore, Mr. Spindler; Jo Glyn Hughes, Florence; Kathryn Hook, Mrs. Sheppard; and George Hawks, Teddy.

The production staff for the one-act plays is made up of the following students:

Scenery: Janie Haning and John R. Howell, co-chairmen; Alice Smith, Winnifred Hargrove, Jane Wiggins, Cecilia Ridgway, (See PLAYS, page 6)

Twenty-two selections appeared in the fall edition of Stylus which came out this week. Approximately one fourth of the articles were written by freshmen. Frank Mangum served as editor; Mary Grantham, business manager; and Miss Thomasina Blissard, faculty advisor.

The following selections appeared in this issue of Stylus:

"By the Grace of Nothing," J. V. McCrory; "Premium Quality," Ralph J. Ellis; "Turn Back, My Brethren," Ralph J. Ellis; "The Cycle," Peggye Falkner; "It Happened in Church," Mary Ann McCormack; "Black and White," Kay Fort, "My Fancy," George Hawks; "On Progressive Education," Fran Buttross; "Autumnal Reflections," Edna K. Hayat; "Dream Girl," Walter Ely; "Looking at Water," Joe Ebersole; "Goodbye, Dear House," Kay Fort.

More

McCarter; "How to Make an A," Mary Alice Shields; "Steps Toward Maturity," Joanne Henderson; "Strictly a Family Affair," Clarice Black; "Bull Sessions," Albert Lee; and "How to Make a Meal Book Last," Fred Whitam.

Included in this list are formal and informal essays, poems, and short stories. Copies may be purchased for twenty-five cents.

MSM To Hold Conference In Kansas Over Holidays

More than 2,300 college students and adult counselors have been named delegates to the fifth quadrennial conference of the Methodist Student Movement to open December 28 at the University of Kansas, Lawrence, and run through January 2.

Delegates will represent every state and include 200 foreign students.

"Christ Transforming Culture" will be the program theme as students seek to come to grips with problems and issues of Christian faith and action.

Eminent platform speakers, who will discuss theological and educational aspects of modern culture, include Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, pastor of Christ Methodist Church, New York City; Dr. Nels F. S. Ferre of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn.; Dr. Albert Outer of Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Tex.; Dr. Glenn Olds, University of Denver; Dr. Harold Ehrensparger, Boston University; Dr. John O. Gross of the Methodist Board of Education, Nashville; Bishop Donald H. Tippett, San Francisco; Bishop Newell S. Booth, Elizabethville, Africa, and Philippe Maury, Geneva, Switzerland, general secretary of the World Student Christian Federation.

Between platform hours the students will have ample opportunity (See MSM, page 5)

Forty-five Teams Compete In Millsaps Debate Tourney

The fourteenth annual Millsaps Debate Tournament was held on the Millsaps Campus Friday and Saturday, December 4th and 5th. Forty-five teams representing sixteen colleges and universities in five southern states entered the tournament.

Twenty-nine of these teams survived the preliminary rounds on Friday and entered the elimination rounds on Saturday, debating on the question "Resolved: That the United States should adopt a policy of free trade," which is the official inter-collegiate debate question.

The Men's division was won by John Shouin and Don McWorter of David Lipscomb College, who defeated the representatives of Southeastern Louisiana College.

P&W Officers To Be Selected In Near Future

Applications for editor and business manager of the Purple and White for the term beginning in February, 1954, are now being taken by Dr. M. C. White, advisor for the Purple and White.

Elections for the posts will be held in the near future, possibly before the Christmas holidays.

Any student, either a sophomore or a junior, may apply. Applications may be made by turning in a letter of application to Dr. White before the elections are held.

No qualifications are required of applicants, though they should have a good scholastic average and should be either a junior or a sophomore. The term of office begins in February, extending through two semesters, and ending at the end of the first term next year.

Letters should contain the name of the applicant, all previous experience, and any ideas, views, or opinions as to policies in connection with the Purple and White.

The Women's division was won by Marilyn Mitchell and Sara Latham of L. S. U. who defeated the representatives of Vanderbilt in the finals. It is interesting to note that the Vanderbilt team was coached by Harmon Tillman, a Millsaps graduate and former championship debater.

In the Junior division, Martha Ann Smith and Willa May of Mississippi College defeated the rep (See DEBATE, page 6)

Temporary Scheduling Procedure For Campus Social Groups Given

At a recent meeting the Student Executive Board appointed a committee on social affairs which was assigned responsibility for studying the social program on the campus handling the scheduling of specific social functions.

Until that committee announces the procedure to be followed, the following procedure, which has been set up by the Office of the Dean of Students, will be in effect. It is approximately the same as the procedure set up for 1952-53.

1. Social functions attended by both men and women must be approved in advance by the Dean of Women and Dean of Students.

2. Any events to be approved must be scheduled at least 5 days prior to the particular event. Off-campus groups may schedule our facilities any time up to 10 days preceding the event.

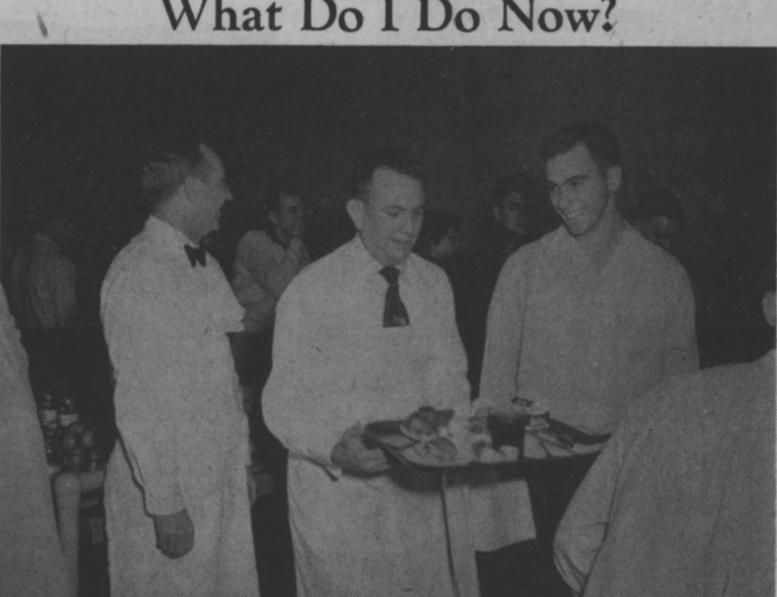

3. Any function at which women

Tommy Wilson Receives Youth Congress Award

The annual Mississippi Youth Congress was held last Friday and Saturday, December 4 and 5, at the State Capitol for the sixth consecutive year. Tommy Wilson, Jeanette Windham, Jane Wiggins, Alva Dalton, and Powers Moore represented Millsaps College at the two day session.

Of the nine bills that were passed by both houses of the congress, five of them originated in the Senate and four originated in the House.

Prior to adjournment, awards were made for outstanding campaign speeches, acceptance speeches, bills, debating from the floor, speaking, and parliamentarianism. The judges listed Tommy Wilson among award winners for "outstanding bills" in the Senate. Tommy's bill sought to extend the state medical bill to include aid for dental students as well as medical students.

Youth Congress is an important event on the programs of Mississippi high schools, junior colleges, and senior colleges; and is sponsored annually by the Mississippi Speech Association in Jackson.

College Students Advised To Seek Commissions Now

NEW ORLEANS, La. Nov. 19—Graduating seniors faced with military service at the end of this school year should choose the program of their choice and begin work for Navy, Marine Corps, Army or Air Force commissions as early as regulations allow.

This was the advice of CDR J. E. Halter, Jr., officer in charge of Naval Officer Procurement, to students this week. "Our visits on campuses throughout the New Orleans area reveal that seniors are prone to procrastinate," Haltner said, "and delays can be detrimental when seeking selection to the various officer candidate programs."

Navy OCS at Newport, Rhode Island can be applied for when the prospect is within 180 days of graduation. Opportunities for qualified men and women to earn commissions with the Armed Forces are unparalleled now, Haltner said. Mid-year graduates will find themselves in a more favorable position for consideration of applications.

Millsaps Delegate Attends Conference Of NSA In Atlanta

Millsaps College was represented at a meeting of the Great Southern Region of the National Student Association in Atlanta, Ga., November 20, by Eddie Gossard who attended as an observer.

Millsaps is not a member of the NSA, but received publicity and an invitation to observe the meeting.

The National Student Association is an organization of college student bodies, represented through their student governments. Its purpose is to provide a representative intercollegiate organization designed to serve the American student community, and to promote student interest and welfare.

Gossard was sent to the meeting by the Student Executive Board to make a critical observation of the organization and report back to SEB.

LIBRARY

Students Urged To Clear Record Before Holidays

For a happier—and less expensive—holiday, the Library urges students to clear their library records. Following are the regulations regarding books and holidays.

Two-Week Books

All regular two-week books in circulation from now on until the beginning of the Christmas holidays will be due on Thursday, December 17.

Two-week books may be checked out for the holidays or renewed for that period, but the checking out or the renewing must be done on December 17 and 18.

A fine will be charged for the holiday period on all books which were due on or before December 17.

Reserve Books

Reserve books will also be available for holiday circulation on December 17 and 18.

A fine will also be charged for the holiday period on all reserve books which were due on or before December 17.

Baptists Complete Slate Of Officers At Recent Meeting

At the last meeting of the Baptist Student Union the election of officers was completed.

Wally James was chosen first vice president; Mary Lynn Graves, second vice-president; Betty Jo Smith, third vice-president; Shirley Anderson, publicity director; Olive Coker, Christian Council representative; and Dr. Frank James, faculty advisor.

A trip to the Old Men's Home Sunday afternoon has been planned as the group's Christmas project.

All Baptist Students on the campus are invited to attend the meetings on the first and third Wednesdays of each month at 6:15 in the Christian Center.

Remember December 17

December 17 is the day to see your Library. Take advantage of this offer. The library will close at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, December 18, for the duration of the Christmas holidays.

Audrey's Annex

"Back to bedlam" or "we're rocking again" seems to be the motto of the week. If it was a shock to you to return to school after Thanksgiving just try to imagine what an experience you will undergo on January 4.

Sounds far away? Don't be fooled my friend, it will be here 'ere you take a breath. Let's take a look at the brighter side of life for a moment, anyhow. What is jolly old St. Nick bringing you? Oh come now, the old gentleman usually comes through with something, doesn't he? In that case you might try mending your ways. I seem to remember something about his visiting only good girls and boys. He keeps records, I understand, equaled only by the U. S. Government.

What's My Name?

While we're on the subject of Christmas Eve visitors I would like to ask a brief question. It has been making the rounds of the campus so I suppose it is pertinent. Do you know what Santa Claus' wife's name is? No? It's Merry Christmas! I had always assumed that everyone knew this bit of information but if you didn't, I hope you will profit by it. Maybe a bit of apple polishing in the form of a note "give my love to Merry" might help the cause on Christmas Eve. It was only a passing thought, you understand.

And Yours?

The old ball for names in the news is still rolling. The lucky people this week are Jerry Eskridge, Herbert Dyer, Dick Berry (thoughtfully mentioned to me by John M. Howell) Johnny Morris, and Martha New. If I left out anyone who requested the honor I beg their forgiveness. I lost the list I made and had to rely on my memory which proved unequal to the situation. Please bring it to my attention for next week. We have only two more editions this se-

MAJOR MAJOR

Women's Council President Featured As Major Major

This week the major major spotlight shines on Greenwood senior, Joan Cooper. Joan is an education major will graduate at the end of the fall semester.

Joan picked Millsaps because she wanted to attend a small co-ed college and she says she's never been sorry because, "it's meant more to me than anything in my life and I hate to leave."

Active in extra-curricular activities, Joan has been on the Dean's List, a member of the Players, on the Purple & White Staff, and a member of the Student Executive Board. She is secretary-treasurer of the Majorette Club, vice-president of Chi Delta, woman's literary honorary, and president of Woman's Council. This fall she received the merited honor of being tapped for membership in Sigma Lambda, the honorary recognizing outstanding leadership and scholarship among the women students. Joan is a member of the Kappa Delta social sorority.

Joan is practice teaching the tenth grade at Central this year and she "just loves it." In addition to all this, for the past two years she has found time to work during the afternoon at the A & I Board.

After graduation, Joan is going to Fort Walton, Florida to teach the fourth grade. "I'm thrilled to death," she said, "but we talk about it in the dorm at night and I just hate to think of leaving Millsaps."

"Carry your tray, please?"
"Don't you need some water?"

These and similar words rang throughout the cafeteria one Thursday night not "too" many eons back when the faculty members served as waiters and waitresses on behalf of the World University Service, a fund which the Y. W. C. A. is sponsoring on our campus. The night's activity proved that once again both student and faculty members came forth with generous donations of time and money on behalf of this Fund which serves less-fortunate students all over the world.

To say who had the better time would be difficult, however it is no difficulty to declare who had the better "laugh." I need not pen the name of this good sport who not only enjoyed herself but with every third laugh, which was often,

Tribute Given To Clarinets In Concert Band

The band has finally begun its concert rehearsals and is looking forward to the spring, when it will make several tours.

Faithful through the football season and on into the concert season have been our fine clarinet players. Newcomers to our band this year are Janis Edgar, R. W. McCarley, W. H. Merrill, Charles Planch, Pat Ladnier, and Margaret Whitfield. All are freshmen.

Janis is a member of Chi Omega and is active in the Singers. She is from Jackson.

R. W. is a freshman from Ruleville.

W. H. is another Jackson member. He is a Kappa Sig.

Charles is a freshman from Jackson and was a member of the Central High Band for several years.

Pat and Margaret have already been introduced as majorettes with the marching band.

Faye Allen is in the band for her second year. She is a sophomore from Vancleave.

Jo Booth, a Kappa Delta, is a senior from Drew.

Carleen Durham is a Phi Mu, a sophomore, and is from Collins.

contributed a tip to our noble Dean of Students.

To our way of thinking one would have to go far in order to find a faculty staff to compare or surpass ours in the way of co-operation and just plain fun. For if their generous smiles, clever wise cracks, and 'lovely' quartet had not instigated the generous tips, we would have fallen far below our assumed goal of this fund.

The 'race' (and we almost mean it literally) for tips to see just who would be the lucky winner resulted in an almost tie by Mrs. Hederi and Professor Maddox, the latter proving the recipient of the 'darling' prize apron, which he accepted graciously. Dare we ask

'Machine's' Cast, Stage Crew Will Long Remember Trials

The lines have been spoken for the last time, faces are left raw from scrubbing off grease paint, flats are taken apart waiting to become a new room, the money has been counted and the profit (or loss) figured. The play has gone and with it endless rehearsals, memorizing lines, and fitting costumes. Characters have been created but are now living only in the memory of those who watched their growth.

But those who watched and worked with The Infernal Machine will remember many things that happened both on and off the stage. It took time and trouble to make the wall for the phantom to be seen through—to make sure he would not be seen too soon. It was tricky to get Karen's nine yard scarf draped around her effectively. The whole cast would have starved if Squeaky and McInvale hadn't made endless trips to the "Juke" for food. The "Max Factor blood" had to be washed out of Hardy's costume at 1:00 in the morning to be ready for the next night's performance. Several different shades of grease paint had to be blended in just the right proportions to get the desired effect and then the color obtained had to be duplicated in all performances. The whole cast and crew stayed on stage till 2:00 Thursday night to take pictures in color and in black and white of almost every scene. The only place to get out of the confusion was on top of the monster. The cast was almost minus a messenger on Friday night when Tommy Garrott, thinking it was Saturday, went to bed and slept till 9:00 when he realized that he was supposed to be getting made up.

The Infernal Machine is finished but "Time Marches On" and the three one-act plays are in the process of being cast and rehearsed. Jack Dunbar is directing the second act of "The Torchbearer," Fred Delong "The Valiant," and Bobby Myers the first act of "Light Up The Sky." These plays will be presented sometime in December.

Federal Civil War Trenches Are Now Park For Millsaps

Have you seen those drainage ditches on each side of the cannon which supposedly came from the Spanish-American War? Well, cat, that was what this reporter thought, too, until she had talks with Dr. Moore, Professor Harrell, and most especially Dr. Sullivan.

Those drainage ditches are really rifle pits which were used by the Federal Army in the third and last battle for Jackson in the Civil War. The Confederates were lined up along Fortification Street. There are some controversy as to who was in command of the Federal Army, but it was either Sherman or Grant. It may well have been that the Federal force was a combination of the armies of the two generals. The Federals approached Jackson from Port Gibson and Vicksburg, and the fighting in their last battle for Jackson lasted only a day.

As the years went by, trees and shrubbery grew up around the rifle pits and erosion gradually wore them away. In fact if it hadn't been for Dr. Sullivan, we might never have noticed the trenches. Dr. Sullivan took a petition to Dr. Watkins, then president of the college, asking to have a park made of those trenches as a historic relic of the Civil War. The petition was granted, and a small park was made around the trenches even though there were some hard feelings about the matter. Some people believed that Dr. Sullivan was sympathizing with the Federal cause.

Later Dr. Sullivan wrote to Senator John Sharpe Williams, asking him to secure a Civil War cannon to be placed on the campus beside the trenches. Senator Williams put a rider on one of his bills and it was passed immediately with no trouble. The cannon, which had been held in storage waiting for distribution along with other Civil War Relics, was then sent here with cannon balls and instructions telling how to mount it. The cannon was not used in the Spanish-American War at all, but was used by a Federal Division in New York during the Civil War.

The graduating class of 1917, as a present to the college, had the cannon and the cannon balls mounted. The balls were placed in pyramids, one on each side of the cannon. Each lower layer was sunk and anchored in cement; consequently they are still there. The loose top balls have disappeared through the years.

Majors Open Cage Season With Four-Day Road Trip

The Millsaps Majors Basketball team left last Monday on a four-game road trip. The Majors will return sometime tomorrow, after playing the Southwestern Lynx in Memphis tonight.

Other games on the road trip are one with Lambuth College, and two against Bethel. Last year the Majors split even with Southwestern in a two-game set, and lost two straight to Bethel in the season openers. The Majors did not play Lambuth last year, but they are reported to have a very good squad.

Those making the trip are: forwards; Oscar Wally, Denvil Salters, N. R. Walley; guards: Jack Speights, Sonny Bailey, Glenn Cain, and Tommy Carey; Centers: John Morris, James "Luke" Watson, and Eddie Khayat.

Coach Sammy Bartling hasn't announced who will start the games, but the probable starting lineup is as follows: Oscar Wally and Salters will play the forwards, with Cain and Speights holding the guard positions, and Morris at center.

This lineup is by no means definite, because Coach Bartling will be trying to find a winning combination, and he will probably substitute freely in the games.

The Majors have not been plagued so far this year with injuries and illnesses, and the boys will be out to improve their early-season record of last year when they lost five straight before winning one.

Gym Is Scene Of Four Girl Teams At Play

After a week of muscle-pulling and ankle-turning practice, the girls intramural basketball season opened last Monday.

The captains of the recently organized teams are: Jo Nall, Joan Wilson, Norma Norton, and Mary Alice Shields.

Each team will get a chance to play the other teams twice. This should make the schedule last about three weeks.

The game time will be from 5:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. on Monday through Thursday.

Miss Sain with the assistance of others will officiate all the games.

Small basketballs will probably be awarded to the members of the winning team.

The girls intramural basketball program is being sponsored by the Majorette Club this year as it has been in the past.

Heavy Schedule Gets Underway In Basketball

By George Hunt

Boys' intramural basketball got underway Monday of this week. Games were scheduled for Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

There will be six participating teams: Lambda Chi Alpha, Kappa Alpha, Kappa Sigma, Pi Kappa Alpha, the Preachers and the Independents. All signs indicate that the squads will be evenly matched. It is very likely that every team will taste the bitter fruit of defeat at least once, and probably twice.

The gym will be used for intramural contests whenever the varsity does not have a home game. The schedule is very long and it will be sometime in March before playoff time rolls around.

The games next week are as follows:

Monday—KA vs. Pikes (7:00); Ministers vs. Sigs (8:00).

Tuesday—Independents vs. Lambda Chi (7:00).

Wednesday—Sigs vs. Pikes (7:00); KA vs. Ministers (8:00).

All teams are requested to be ready to play at the assigned times, or notify the Intramural director in case of a forfeit. The cooperation of all teams will be greatly appreciated.

In the strengthening of the instructional staff, plans are being laid first for increase in salaries for the instructors presently on the staff, and second, for additions to the staff in the way of personnel needed in the program of the college but not now provided for.

Of primary interest to the student body was information pertaining to the improvement of the physical facilities of the college. Included in the Millions for Millsaps program is a building program for which the second half of the million will be used.

Plans are underway, and have progressed as far as the drawing board, for remodeling and adding to the library; for the building of a new men's dormitory; and for the construction of a student union cafeteria building.

No dates have been set for the completion of any of these build-

I.R.C.'s First Forum Held Last Tuesday; Features Dr. Hannak

Tuesday, December 1, during the chapel period, the International Relations Club sponsored a forum on the United Nations featuring Dr. P. L. Hannak of Tougaloo College.

Dr. Hannak was introduced by Louis Hodges, after which she described the different phases of the U. N. Following the description, she opened the floor for discussion.

This was the first in a series of forums to be sponsored by the International Relations Club during the current year.

President Finger ended the presentation of the program by urging the students to take the information to their homes and to aid the college in presenting the needs which the administration feels must be met, and presenting the fact that to meet them the college must be successful in its drive for funds with which to work.

Student Board Meets Jointly With Faculty

The Millsaps Student Executive Board met last Tuesday night in a joint meeting with the faculty administrative committee to discuss student affairs.

The meeting is another in the effort to provide better relations and working conditions between faculty and student committees.

Among the items discussed were reports from SEB committees on religious activities, the student calendar, the band and singers, and a report on the NSA conference at which Millsaps was represented.

The signatures of the official chaperones must be obtained on the application forms which are submitted for approval of the function.

5. The application form must be filed in the office of the Dean of Students. This form will contain the following information: Date of the application; name of the sponsoring organization; date of the function; place at which the function is to be held; the hours at which the event will begin and end; the nature of the party; the signatures of the official chaperones; and the signature of the representative of the requesting organization.

7. In the event that the approved chaperones find it impossible to attend the social activity because of illness or other unavoidable circumstances, it will be the responsibility of the requesting organization to secure substitute chaperones and to clear these with the office of the Dean of Students.

The city of Atlanta is an interesting place, outside of the fact that it is the home of the 1953 Sugar Bowl champions. Other advantages offered by that city are Emory University, Agnes Scott (nearby in Decatur), and Morehouse College (a Negro school.)

Recently, it was the site of a regional meeting of the United States National Student Association. The official name of the region that we are in is the Great Southern Region. Millsaps is not a member of NSA, but literature was sent to the student body president inviting observer delegates from Millsaps.

The president and vice-president of SEB were unable to attend, and the lot fell on us, as chairman of a committee on student government within SEB.

NSA is an interesting organization, with certain definite advantages attached to membership therein. It was set up to provide a representative student association through the student governments of the various universities and colleges in the country, and to benefit and aid the national student community, both by calling attention to the existence of such a community and by providing aid to student governments of member schools in carrying out their programs on the campus.

The organization is set up in such a way that it would not exist without the existence of the individual university or college or of the national student community. That is the reason for its existence, and the means through which much of the aid to the colleges is given, that is, by bringing together representatives of various student governments and giving them the opportunity to swap information and ideas, with the result that member schools can

Science Fiction Contest Rules Given By Magazine

IF magazine announces the first college science fiction story contest with $2,000 in prizes. For the best 10,000-word novelette written by college students depicting life in America 100 years from now will be given as first prize $1,000, as second prize $500 and for third to seventh prizes $100 each.

This contest is open only to undergraduates in colleges in the United States and Canada. Professional writers attending college are not eligible.

The objective is to stimulate interest in science fiction among young men and women, who will be the America of tomorrow, and get their ideas and opinions on what they think life in America will be like 100 years from now.

Writing ability will be considered, but of primary concern are originality, ideas and imagination. Any subject, theme or theory may be used as a premise. Politics, science, literature, economics, semantics, sports, medicine — any classroom subject, or personal ones, may be used as a basis for projecting the story. The scene can be a city, village or farm. The plot may be concerned with a group of people or a single character. There are no taboos. The only limit is the author's own imagination.

If students wish to acquaint themselves with the stories in IF, they may consult a copy in their local library. If a copy isn't available, they may send a post card to If Magazine, Kingston, New York, and a sample copy will be sent to them without charge.

Rules

1. Closing date is midnight, May 15, 1954.

2. All stories shall be novelette length (10,000 to 12,000 words), typed on white paper and double spaced. One side of paper only shall be used, with full inch margins.

3. All manuscripts must be accompanied by a self addressed envelope with sufficient postage for its return.

4. All winning manuscripts become property of If Magazine.

5. Judges shall be the editors of If Magazine and their decisions shall be final.

6. The author's full name, address, name of college and class must appear in upper left hand corner of first page of manuscript.

7. Manuscripts will be accepted only from fully registered students in colleges and universities in the United States and Canada who are not professional writers. No other persons are eligible.

8. Winners will be announced the first week in September following the close of the contest.

9. All manuscripts must be addressed to College Science Fiction Contest, If Magazine, Kingston, New York.

More About The Million

Last Thursday in chapel, President Finger presented certain goals in the "Million for Millsaps" program and outlined for the students some of the objectives and some of the plans for achieving those objectives.

On the front page of this paper is a story giving the same facts.

It seems to be necessary to add something to the information already given to the student body which has no place in a news story and which needs to be emphasized.

First, this is still a tentative program. There is every reason to believe that it will materialize; offices have been set up for the handling of the program and detailed plans have been made. However, the Annual Conferences of the Methodist Church for both North Mississippi and Mississippi must approve the program. They are expected to do this at a meeting on this campus on January 7, 1954. Until they do, plans are tentative and no one can say, "This is what we are going to do." They can say and Millsaps is saying, "This is what we are planning to do and what we must do, with the approval of the necessary parties."

Second, the program will extend over a period of at least three years. It is hoped that the million dollar goal will be realized within that time. At no one time in the program will the school have a million dollars which can be pointed out as the Million for Millsaps which was collected. However, work in both the building program and in the program for strengthening the instructional staff will be begun before the three-year period has expired.

The program, then, is not yet an actuality, though it is confidently expected that it will become so on the seventh of January. The million dollars will not be collected in a day or even a year, but will be realized in a three-year period and as funds accumulate they will be used for the most important phases of the program until it is completed.

The contest in oratory was won by Carol McQueen of Vanderbilt and Bobby Hamm of Louisiana College was second. The Extemporaneous speech contest was won by Tom Hall of Louisiana College and Stan Clark of Louisiana College was second.

Millsaps faculty members and visiting coaches served as judges and awards were made to first and second place winners in each event. Dr. E. S. Wallace was tournament director and Professor Frank Laney assisted.

The Y. W. C. A. assisted materially in the conducting of the tournament by providing girls to act as chairmen and timekeepers and to serve refreshments to the visitors. Betty Jo Powell and Ann Orsborn were in charge of these arrangements.

JOHNNY HOWELL

MARY GRANTHAM

Puckett, Howell, Grantham Elected Senior Class Heads

Odean Puckett, John R. Howell, and Mary Grantham were elected president, vice president, and secretary of the senior class at the class meeting held on November 19.

Puckett is from Jackson. He is president of the Baptist Student Union and past vice president of Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity. He is a member of the Millsaps Singers Tour Choir and has been a member of the band. He is a political science major.

Howell, sociology major from Durant, is secretary of Kappa Alpha Order. He is a member of Alpha Psi Omega and has been very active in this organization. He serves as stage manager of the productions. He has appeared in "Happy Journey", and "Our Town" on the Millsaps stage and the little theater production of "The Winslow Boy."

Miss Grantham is president of Beta Sigma Omicron and secretary of Pan-Hellenic. She is an economics major from Jackson. She served as business manager of the fall issue of Stylus, and she is on the Bobashela staff. She is former president of the Canterbury Club.

Student Executive Board Meets With Faculty Group

Members of the Student Executive Board met with the faculty administrative committee December 8 at a supper to discuss mutual problems.

Present at the meeting were Student Body President Tommy Woodard, Vice-president Howard Cheek, Secretary Edna Khayat, Peggy Falkner, Julia Allen, Sarah Dennis, Fred Delong, Fred Blumer, Lowell Jones, Eddie Gossard, President H. Ellis Finger, Dean J. E. McCracken, Mr. J. W. Wood, Professor Paul Hardin.

Reports were heard from various committees of SEB including the committee on student government, and some discussion took place on the subject of student government.

The set-up of the college from the administrative stand-point was presented by President Finger and tentative plans were made for faculty student cooperation on the Million for Millsaps campaign.

The meeting was the first in a proposed series of get-togethers for student government officers and faculty administrative committee members in order that the program of the college be better coordinated as to faculty-student relations.

NO CUTS BEFORE OR AFTER HOLIDAYS

The Office of the Dean calls the attention of Millsaps students to the regulations regarding cuts in classes on the two days immediately preceding and the two days immediately following a regularly scheduled holiday. Any cuts without approval of the academic dean will result in probation for the offender for the rest of the semester.

Education Majors Receive Comprehensives This Week

Fourteen Millsaps education majors took their comprehensive examination early this week. The written examination was given by Professor R. R. Haynes Monday afternoon, and the orals were held on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons.

The students taking the examinations are: Aspasia Athas, Greenwood; Jo Ward Booth, Drew; Magdalene Cunningham, Jackson; Louise Hight, Pine Bluff, Ark.; Ruth Hudson, Florence;

'Y' Holds Forum On Educational Issue In State

Mr. James Kendall, Assistant Attorney General of Mississippi, spoke to the YWCA of Millsaps College on the current school bill before the legislature in a forum

Lynn McGrath, Canton; Mary Elinor Moore, Morton; Bettye Russell, Monticello; Peggy Jean Suthoff, Moss Point; Anne Turner, Greenwood; Lonetta Wells, Jackson; Joan Wilson, Richton; Emily Costigan, Greenwood; and Mrs. Howard Calhoun, Jackson.

The education comprehensives are the only ones being given before Christmas this semester. This was done at the request of the majors who were to take the tests.

Tentative Campaign Plans Set For Approval On Jan. 7

Tentative plans for the Million for Millsaps campaign to be presented to delegates from both the North Mississippi and the Mississippi Conferences of the Methodist Church have been laid and campaign chairmen have been appointed.

The campaign plans will be presented to the meeting of the two Annual Conferences on January 7 for final approval and the campaign as a whole is expected to be approved at that meeting.

The campaign is set up to work through existing conference channels to the local churches in the conferences with the pastors and a corresponding layman for each pastor in charge of the drive.

Bishop Marvin A. Franklin, Bishop of the Jackson Area, has been named honorary chairman of the campaign. The rest of the general campaign committee is composed of Mr. Ben M. Stevens, Sr., General Chairman of the campaign; Mr. A. Boyd Campbell, Treasurer of the campaign; Mr. Ellis M. Wright, Special Gifts Chairman; Mr. Ralph Hayes, Public Relations Chairman; and Rev. H. Ellis Finger, Jr., President of Millsaps College.

In the Mississippi Conference, Mr. Virgil Youngblood, Lay Chairman, will work with Rev. G. Eliot Jones, Pastoral Chairman. In the North Mississippi Conference, Mr. Fred B. Smith is Lay Chairman, Rev. Felix Sutphin is Pastoral Chairman, and Mr. Clyde Hall is Special Gifts Chairman.

The same organization of the campaign continues through the districts in the two conferences, with the district Superintendents and the District Lay Leaders taking the lead, while a third specially elected layman handles the special gift department.

In the local churches, the pastor and the Charge Lay Leader will be in charge of the operation of the campaign.

The local churches will be further organized with an Executive Committee to direct activities, a Special Gifts Committee, a local treasurer, and soliciting teams made up of members of the local church.

The program will be put into effect in January after final approval has been given at the special meeting of the conferences.

Publicity for the campaign will be handled through local newspapers, the Mississippi Methodist Advocate, church bulletins, radio and television programs and announcements, special posters and leaflets, the brochure containing the building plans and information as to all the proposed improvements, and the Purple and White.

One Act Plays Presented By Players Monday Night

On Monday night, December 14th, three one act plays were presented by Alpha Psi Omega, national honorary dramatic fraternity, and the Millsaps Players in the Christian Center Auditorium. The plays, directed by three members of Alpha Psi Omega were: The Valiant, directed by Fred Delong; Act one of Light Up The Sky, directed by Robert Myers; and Act two of The Torch-Bearers, directed by Jack Dunbar.

The Valiant

The Valiant is the story of a man condemned to be hanged. The action takes place in the office of Warden Holt of the Connecticut State Penitentiary just a few minutes before the execution is scheduled to take place, and the entire play evolves around a young girl who visits him, thinking that he might be her brother whom she has not seen in years.

Those acting in this production included Cecil Trantham, Fred Whitam, George Hunt, Keith Dix, Jack Lofton, and Anne Hand.

Light Up The Sky

This play is about a group of professional theater people in Boston for the tryout of their play just a few hours before the curopen to the whole campus on December 9.

He described the bill, telling what has happened to lead up to it, what the bill includes, and what has been done in the legislature. He made some predictions as to the outcome of the present situation.

Mr. Kendall gave the group facts on education in Mississippi and on its educational status. He stated the proposed plan to equalize educational opportunities in Mississippi and on the district problem.

The program was sponsored by the Social Responsibility commission of the YWCA. Sara Jo Smith, chairman of the commission, introduced the speaker.

tain goes up. The scene is the living room of Irene Livingston's suite in the Ritz Carlton Hotel about 5:30 on a December afternoon.

The cast of characters for this play included Peggy Falkner, Edwin Sturdivant, Kay Fort, Taryn Butler, Ann Butler, Cliff Rigby, Carl Welch, and Wally James.

The Torch-Bearers

The Torch-Bearers is the story of the trials and tribulations of all amateur production of plays—those of scenery falling, mustaches falling off, telephones failing to ring on time, etc. The scene is backstage at an amateur production of a play.

The cast included Jane Wiggins, Jo Glyn Hughes, Walter Ely, Jeanelle Howell, John Little, Powers Moore, Spiro Cora, Audrey Jennings, George Hawks, and Kathryn Hook.

Future productions of the Millsaps Players include The Rivals, by Richard B. Sheridan on March 17, 18, and 19, 1954, and Affairs of State, by Lewis Verneuil on May 12, 13, and 14, 1954. The Millsaps Players are ably directed by Mr. Lance Goss, a graduate of the Northwestern University Department of Speech.

Schools Plan Career Days; Millsaps Asked For Representatives

Many Mississippi high schools are making plans for their annual career day. Millsaps has received invitations from Forest and Gulfport to take part in their career days, and other schools are expected to ask for representatives to take part in their programs.

The public relations office is the group to contact for more information. Students should inform the school authorities of their home towns of this fact, if they have the chance during the holidays.

U. S. Overestimates Russia Says Former Correspondent

Americans are overestimating Russia's war potential, according to Eddy Gilmore, just returned from 12 years as Associated Press correspondent in Moscow.

Speaking to more than 500 college newsmen at the Associated Press conference in Chicago, Gilmore predicted "crumbling from within" and foresaw no immediate danger of war with the Soviets. Asked about the hydrogen bomb, he replied, "I may be the greatest optimist in the world, but I think we're overestimating that, too."

Gilmore described the Moscow theater, the clothing the people wear, and the feeling of being spied upon constantly. "Don't underestimate the melodrama about telephones being tapped and people being followed," he said. Whenever he went, there was always a carload of "little men in blue suits" close behind.

He marveled at Malenkov's "very penetrating black eyes" and said, "He looks to me to be the man in charge." "Still," he added, "the government of Malenkov is not a strong one."

He said he didn't know for sure, because he is not an expert. "There is no such thing as an expert on Russia—just varying degrees of ignorance."

As for Russia's inward crumbling, Gilmore pointed to a decadent factory and farm system. "Joseph Stalin was an evil genius," he said, "I doubt if Malenkov has the talent that man had."

The Pulitzer Prize winner will never forget the day Stalin died. "I knew I had one of the great news stories of the world."

"One evening I noticed not a car going into or coming out of the Kremlin," he recalled, and I said to my wife 'I think Uncle Joe's had it.'

Stalin was hated, not idolized, said Gilmore, and many of his mourners "just came down to make sure he was dead."

Gilmore said he doesn't think the Russians would keep their

Beta Sigs Celebrate Founders' Day With A Buffet Supper And Dance

Members of Beta Sigma Omicron celebrated their Founders Day on December 11 with a buffet supper and dance.

At 7:30 they enjoyed a buffet supper served at the home of Dean and Mrs. William Riecken. The menu included turkey, dressing, cranberry salad, open face sandwiches, fruit cake, candy, cookies, coffee, and tea. The home was decorated with a Christmas theme. Members of the Mothers' Club assisted Mrs. Riecken with the serving.

After the supper there was a formal dance at the Colonial Country Club which was for that night "Club 65" denoting the celebration of BSO's 65th year. The entertainment included songs by the Debs—Joan Wheless, Jane Spencer, and Maxine Cater who had appeared on Horace Heidt's show and has sung with Ralph Flanagan — and the Beta Sig chorus line consisting of Sybil Foy, Margaret Whitfield, Annice Loflin, Ann McElroy, and Mary Grantham. Music for part of the evening was furnished by the Lambda Chi combo.

In charge of the arrangements were Shirley Bishop, social chairman, and Ann McElroy, assistant social chairman.

Dates

Again, in 1953, they've made a survey audit of actual sales in more than 800 co-ops and campus stores from coast to coast. And again, Chesterfield tops 'em all.

Only Chesterfield gives you proof of highest quality — low nicotine. Proof that comes from actual "tobacco tests" in which all six leading brands were chemically analyzed.

BEST FOR YOU

Audrey's Annex

By Audrey Jennings

This is it, cats, the day so long awaited has arrived. Now that your suitcases are packed with brightly wrapped parcels and you and your roommate have exchanged scarves (or ties as your gender would indicate), you and your dirty clothes bag are on the way home.

I'd be willing to wager that the first thing on your now-that-we're-home schedule is sleep. If these past three weeks have been anywhere near as hectic for you as they have been for me, it's a sure bet. A few days of this will probably saturate you, however, and you'll really enjoy the long anticipated time.

Only one item stands to mar my holidays—outside reading. I realize I only have about 5,000 pages to do in these two weeks, but somehow I fear it may stifle my Christmas spirit.

Name In The News

The only name mentioned for release this week is that of Walter Waldrop—better known as "Drip" who was called to my mind by that well-known police chief about town, George Hunt.

Lambda Chi's Hold An Open House Last Night; Christmas Is Theme

A Christmas Open House was held last night from seven until ten by the Lambda Chi's at their fraternity house. Hot coffee and tea and cookies were served to the guests.

The house was attractively decorated with pine, mistletoe, and red ribbon in the entrance hall and white pine and red bows in the living and dining rooms. A snow scene on the mantel and a white Christmas tree with blue lights completed the living room decorations.

Vernon Eppinette was in charge of the occasion.

KA's Will Give Black and White Ball Tomorrow; Rebelaires Are To Play

The annual Kappa Alpha Black and White Ball will be given tomorrow night at the Victory Room of the Heidelberg. The dance will begin at eight o'clock and will feature music by the Rebelaires of Ole Miss.

The Mothers' Club will serve a light supper to the group at the fraternity house during intermission. After the dance they will return to the house for a short Christmas party. At this time favors will be presented to the dates.

KA badges, six feet high, Christmas trees, and holly will decorate the Victory Room. The entire campus is invited to attend.

Tommy Spell, social chairman, is in charge of all arrangements.

Dates

Dinner Dance Is Given By Kappa Sigs To Celebrate 84th Flounders' Day

The Kappa Sigmas climaxed their annual Founders' Day celebration with a dinner dance last Saturday night. The dance, which was held in the Rose and Silver Rooms of the Heidelberg Hotel, commemorated the 84th birthday of Kappa Sigma Fraternity.

One of the highlights of the dance was the announcing of the new officers of the chapter for 1954. They are: president, Scott Kimball; vice-president, Bob (Crow) Parnell; ritualist, Red Powell; secretary, Ike Musselwhite; treasurer, Howell Polk; chapter room attendants, Jimmy Jones and Jerry Boykin.

Sports Views

By John Morris

Although the Majors lost all four games on the road trip last week, we thought the chances for a good team this year did look good. The Majors could have won any of the four games and should have won at least two of them.

Only eight of us made the trip. Three others who would have made the four-game go under normal conditions stayed behind for academic reasons. (Anyone making the journey with the squad would have to miss all of his classes at least twice, not counting labs missed.)

We are not making excuses for the low grades which might result, but simply pointing out that it was an unnecessary strain on the players; it could have been avoided, at least in part, by scheduling the games on a week-end or on successive week-ends.

Not only did the men left behind miss much-needed experience, but also the team lost an excellent opportunity to work together as a unit, something that the majors must have in future games, especially against the Choctaws.

About the Chocs: This year they have imported some men, who they have accidentally discovered, can play basketball as well as preach, or vice versa. We haven't heard them preach, or even play basketball, but there is little doubt as to which they can do better.

Remember this, though; the Major basketball players believe very firmly, that they can defeat the Chocs. We will be looking forward to the two teams' first meeting on January 7.

INTRAMURALS

Preachers Lead Basketball Race In Early Play

By George Hunt

Intramural basketball games this week featured the Sigs vs. the Pikes and the KA's vs. the Preachers on Tuesday. Wednesday there was a heavy schedule, pitting the Sigs against the Preachers; Lambda Chi's vs. the Independents; and the KA's vs. the Pikes. The results of these games will appear in the next issue of the P&W. The schedule had to be modified because of the one-act plays Monday night.

Standings:

Preachers	2	0
Independents	1	1

Shields Lead; Tie For Second In Intramurals

The team led by Mary Alice Shields took an early lead in first week of play in Girl's Intramural basketball.

Shield's team, No. 1, defeated the team led by Joan Wilson 23-5 last Monday. The high scorer on the winning side was Helen Brewer with nine points. Karen Gilfoy was high scorer with five points for the losers.

On Tuesday of last week Norma Norton's team defeated the team led by Jo Nall 23-14. High Scorer for Norton was Alice Starnes with ten points. Shirley Newman was high scorer on Nall's team with ten points.

Shields defeated Norton 23-10 last Wednesday night. High scorer for Shields was Brewer with thirteen points. Starnes led the losers with five points.

Nall's team was defeated 16-9 by Wilson's team last Thursday night. Gilfoy scored all sixteen points for the winners. Anne Finger led Nall's team with four points.

Shields won by a 2-0 forfeit over Nall Monday night.

Play will start again on January 4, following the holidays.

Spectators are invited to all the games. The games are played from five to six every afternoon Monday through Friday.

The team standings are as follows:

Team	Wins	Losses	Ties
Norton	1	1	0
Nall	0	3	0

Intra-Murals: An Incident

Millsaps College has an intramural athletic program for men. This program is for participation by all interested students who are not actively engaged in varsity sports.

The program is so arranged that teams from the social organizations and one each from the ministers and the independents compete in speedball, basketball, volleyball, softball, tennis, and golf.

This all sounds very well. There are, however, certain aspects which are somewhat disquieting. We will not attempt to mention or discuss all of them. Work is being done on the system and improvements are doubtless being planned.

One situation has occurred recently, however, which deserves some attention.

On the basketball schedule, recently released, there are games scheduled for six teams: one from each of the four fraternities, and one composed of preachers and one made up of independents.

A seventh team had applied for scheduling and was denied the right to play scheduled games in the program. This team was from the Norsemen, an organized social group. Under the present set-up they have every right to play scheduled games. Yet they were not scheduled.

Reasons given were (1) that they had forfeited all their games two years ago and (2) that they could play with the independents or preachers.

This is not the same group that forfeited games two years ago. If they forfeit games this year, they could justly be dropped from the schedule, but the Norsemen do not deserve to be judged by what happened two years ago. As for the second point, they do not want to play with the independents or preachers; they want to represent their social organization. Are the Sigs told they can play with the preachers or independents and kept off the schedule because they forfeit a game? Or any other fraternity? The Norsemen deserve the same opportunities.

When questions were asked concerning putting the Norsemen on the schedule, it was pointed out that the schedule was drawn up and that it would require re-working the schedule entirely and would make more games to officiate. We agree. But we do not agree that the Norsemen should suffer for the laxity of the scheduling officials. As for more games, that would mean that more boys were playing, and that is the object of the whole program. Or is it?

Million For Millsaps; Students Can Aid Campaign

Last week there was a news article and an editorial in the Purple and White concerning the Million for Millsaps campaign.

As said last week, final approval of the program is confidently expected on January 7, 1954, when members of both conferences meet on this campus for that purpose.

Work on the campaign has already begun. Offices have been set up in the Christian Center. A brochure with plans and pictures of the proposed buildings which are included in the program is being prepared for publicity purposes. Methods of publicity and methods of presenting Millsaps' needs to the people of Mississippi are being worked out.

In this job, which is a big one, there is a part the students can play—in fact, several parts.

First, the student body can co-operate to the fullest extent while the visitors from the two Methodist Conferences are on our campus. The cafeteria will be trying to accommodate a thousand guests. These guests will need to eat at a certain time in order to attend their meetings. The student body could forego lunch in the cafeteria Thursday—this will be right after the holidays—and let the delegates have the dining hall. This and other minor courtesies will have a beneficial effect on the conference and will be appreciated by the administration.

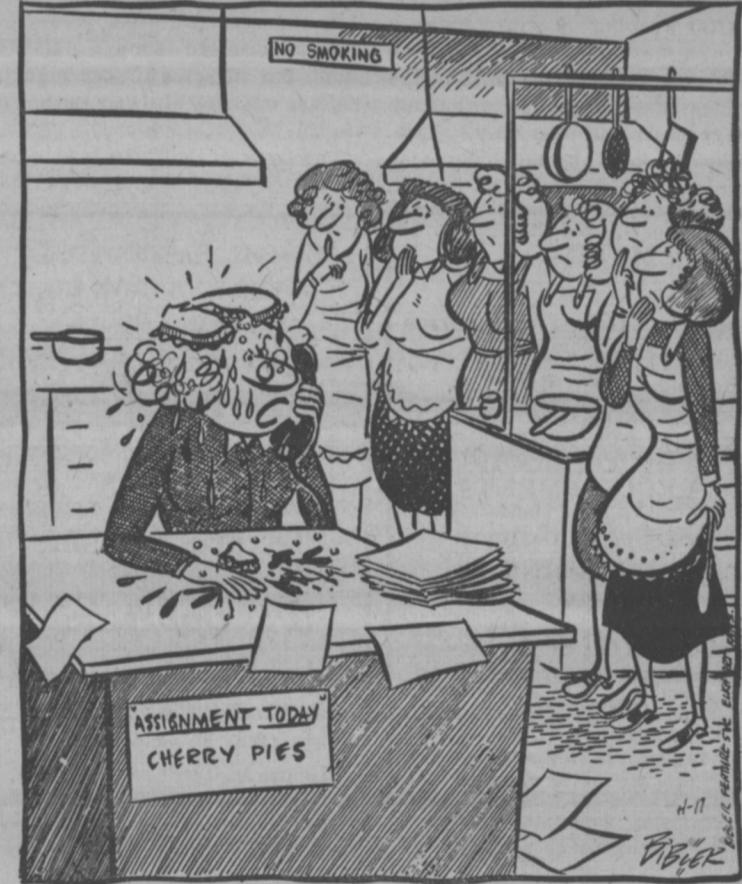

Second, the students can take the story of Millsaps' needs and the goals of this campaign home with them to their parents and pastors and neighbors. We, as students, are in an excellent position to present the needs of Millsaps College, because they are our own needs. Our presentation of the needs will be respected. In this paper are plans and pictures of some of the buildings which are included in the program. Put them on a bulletin board where they'll attract attention; help get our program before the public.

Third, Millsaps students can help in a very material way toward the accumulation of the million. Yesterday in chapel students had the chance to add one dollar per student to the college fees for the next three years, that dollar to be applied on the million. In three years with an average attendance of seven hundred students, which we should realize, that will mean $4200—a pretty nice pledge to hand the director of the campaign. There is no better way for us as students to show our interest in the cause of the campaign than by contributing materially to it.

Some of us will be in school at Millsaps when the fruits of this program are ripe. This group, especially, will want to do all they can to help the school realize improvements which will benefit them directly. This program means a greater Millsaps in every sense of the word. The student body can help and must help if the goal is to be realized.

Permanent Campaign Plans Set For Approval On Jan. 7

Plans for organization and actual organization for the Million for Millsaps campaign have been completed pending final approval by the joint special meeting of the two Methodist Conferences tomorrow.

The campaign is set up to work through existing conference channels to the local churches in the conferences with the pastors and a corresponding laymen for each pastor in charge of the drive.

Bishop Marvin A. Franklin, Bishop of the Jackson Area, has been named honorary chairman of the campaign. The rest of the general campaign committee is composed of Mr. Ben M. Stevens, Jr., Chairman of the campaign; Mr. Boyd Campbell, Treasurer of the campaign; Mr. Ellis M. Wright, Special Gifts Chairman; Mr. Ralph Hayes, Public Relations Chairman; and Rev. H. Ellis Finger, Jr., president of Millsaps College.

In the Mississippi Conference, Mr. Virgil Youngblood, Lay Chairman, will work with Rev. G. Eliot Jones, Pastoral Chairman. In the North Mississippi Conference, Mr. Fred B. Smith is Lay Chairman, Rev. Felix Sutphin is Pastoral Chairman, and Mr. Clyde Hall is Special Gifts Chairman.

The same organization of the campaign continues through the districts in the two conferences, with the District Superintendents and the District Lay Leaders taking the lead, while a third specially elected layman handles the special gift department.

In the local churches, the pastors and the Charge Lay Leader will be in charge of the operation.

effect with district rallies next week after the final approval which is expected in the special session tomorrow.

Publicity for the campaign will be handled through local newspapers, the Mississippi Methodist Advocate, church bulletins, radio and television programs and announcements, special posters and leaflets, the brochure containing the building plans and information as to all the proposed improvements, and the Purple and White.

The program will be put into

Two Methodist Conferences Hold Joint Meeting Here

Delegates from the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences of the Methodist Church are meeting on the Millsaps College campus on January 7 to give final approval to the plans for the Million for Millsaps campaign.

The special conference session will get underway at 10 a.m. in the Christian Center auditorium. The delegates will meet in the Christian Center during the day and will be presented the plans for the campaign. They will be served lunch in the cafeteria.

Plans for the campaign and it is confidently expected that they will be approved by the special session for both conferences.

To be presented at this meeting will be detailed plans and directions for carrying out the campaign, and the chairmen of the campaign from the general chairman to the chairmen for the districts.

Millsaps students are asked to leave the parking area in front of the Christian Center and the men's dormitories for the delegates.

A thousand delegates from the two conferences are expected to attend the meeting.

Campaign Leaders Hold Organizational Meeting On Campus

A meeting of Campaign Organization leaders was held on the Millsaps College campus at 10 a.m. in the Millsaps-Carnegie Library to make final plans for the Million for Millsaps campaign which comes up for final approval by delegates from both conferences in a special meeting tomorrow.

President Ellis Finger and Business Manager J. W. Woods met with the group, which included Bishop Marvin A. Franklin, Mr. Ben F. Stevens, Mr. Ellis Wright, Mr. Ralph Hayes, and Mr. Boyd Campbell.

On the agenda for the meeting were discussions of the architects' drawings of the proposed buildings, completion of organization for the campaign, work on the special sessions of both conferences which convenes tomorrow, and reports from committees.

BASKETBALL TONIGHT

The Millsaps-Mississippi College basketball game scheduled for tomorrow will be played tonight in the City Auditorium. This is due to the Million for Millsaps meeting tomorrow.

Millsaps Students Petition For Raise In Fee For Pledge

In a special business session called by Student Body President Tommy Woodard in chapel December 17, the Millsaps student body voted to ask the Board of Trustees to raise the activities fee one dollar per student for the next three years. The dollar thus obtained was to apply on the million in the Million for Millsaps campaign.

Said President Woodard, "This will mean a pledge of $4200, figuring on the basis of 700 students each year, which we, as a student body can make at the first meeting of the two conferences."

It was not known, at this writing, if the Board of Trustees had allowed the raise, but it was confidently expected that favorable action would be taken shortly.

Organizations of Millsaps students are expecting to pledge additional amounts, but Student Executive Board heads felt that the students would welcome the opportunity to contribute to the drive as a student body.

Campaign Organizational Leaders

Pastoral Leaders In Campaign

A C P RELEASES

News From Other Campuses

MUCH ADO ABOUT A QUEEN . . .

Name calling, hair tearing and long distant phone calls preceded the election of Marilyn Harris as Homecoming Queen at Eastern Illinois State College.

The campus was in an uproar when a violation of election rules was announced. The football players had been permitted to vote before leaving for their game in Michigan, which was okay until someone remembered that under the rules the polls could only be open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on election day. This meant that the team members had cast their votes before the polls were legally open.

After much discussion, election officials phoned the team in Michigan, asking them to vote over again. Then they subtracted the team votes from the total votes to make it legal.

As it turned out, Miss Harris would have won either way.

There were two elections for Homecoming Queen at the University of Illinois. All ballots cast in the first election were declared null and void because of a polling mix-up.

Contrary to the rules, misinformed judges allowed one vote for each identification card presented; some students presented large blocks of votes by getting several cards together. Since each student is entitled to only one vote, the whole election had to be run off a second time.

WELL, THAT'S NEW YORK . . .

Bruce Wormald, a Columbia student, has been having car trouble—for two years now.

It began back in 1951, when the engine of his 1936 model automobile conked out near New York City's Welfare Island. Unable to get the car started, Wormald pushed it into a secluded corner and left it parked.

This month he received a warning from the Welfare Island officials. They wanted him to retrieve his deserted car. So he and a friend went back to the Island, and, failing to get the motor running, they pushed the vehicle off a 24 foot cliff and into the ocean.

An alert doctor saw the car being dumped, though, and notified

CENSORSHIP, MARYLAND STYLE . . .

A photograph showing crowded dormitory conditions prompted the dean of men at the University of Maryland to confiscate several copies of the Diamondback, student newspaper.

When Dean Geary Eppley objected to a picture of basement living quarters for 24 women students, he decided to make off with the papers so nobody else could see it.

It wasn't the first attempt at censorship at Maryland. According to Elin Lake, Diamondback editor, the administration tried earlier this year to keep the public from knowing that the dean of women received a summons for failing to stop for a school bus that was loading and unloading passengers.

When a reporter from the Baltimore Sun was sent to the Maryland campus to cover the University's censorship activities, he was arrested by a campus policeman and momentarily kept from phoning the story to his paper.

A Need And A Challenge

The Million for Millsaps appeal on which we are now embarking offers to Methodists of Mississippi a great challenge. It affords the opportunity to preserve the fine tradition of Millsaps College by preparing now to insure more adequate facilities for tomorrow's generation of Methodist youth. Its successful consummation will mean a long step forward in strengthening Methodism in Mississippi. A stronger Methodism will contribute to a greater realization in our state of God's Kingdom. By working together for this great cause we will increase the appreciation and devotion of every Mississippi Methodist to Millsaps College.

The money to be raised will be specifically used in the following manner:

INCREASE THE GENERAL ENDOWMENT $500,000

Recognizing that the fine quality of instruction is the heart of the college, it is vital that we have adequate funds to (1) Increase salaries (2) Replace men as they retire with high caliber instructors. (3) Increase the number of instructors and thus enrich the curriculum.

NEW LIBRARY $175,000

The study conditions of the present Library have been inadequate for years. With a student body of 700 there is now a maximum reading space for only 72 students! The new building will provide adequate space for quiet study and for additional book stacks. Study places will be tripled—Stack space for books will be more than doubled.

STUDENT UNION—CAFETERIA BUILDING $275,000

As a result of time and growth the present Cafeteria building has become obsolete. It not only accommodates too few students (240) but also is poorly located to provide facilities for both men and women students. The new and greatly enlarged Cafeteria will accommodate more than 350 and will be centrally located closer to the women's dormitories and will offer greater convenience to the entire student body. It will also provide recreation areas which are now non-existent in addition to the Grill, Book Store, Post Office and Student organizations and activities rooms.

NEW MEN'S DORMITORY $250,000

It is hoped that within the next few years some means may be provided to erect a new Men's Dormitory. The need is great!

The men are now in crowded quarters with three occupying rooms originally built for two. The new building will be designed to accommodate 100 students and will insure adequate room for a steadily increasing enrollment.

The remaining $50,000 from the One Million could be applied on the Dormitory. It is believed that substantial gifts from businesses and corporations and from friends of the College will provide a large part of the $200,000 balance.

Procedures Concerning Reporting Subscriptions

HEADQUARTERS: Christian Center, Jackson 10, Mississippi—Phone 3-5864 and 2-5382.

The success of this campaign is entirely dependent upon what happens in each Local Charge and Church.

By accepting full responsibility for raising the quota and putting into operation the Plan of Campaign, the Pastor and his leaders will not only raise the needed money but they will also bring a great blessing to their Church.

All subscriptions, including special gifts, will be credited on the quota of the donor's Church unless otherwise specified by the donor.

Business Reply Postal Card forms for reporting subscriptions to Headquarters will be provided each Charge and Church. Immediately following each scheduled report meeting, preferably Monday and Thursday nights, the card should be put in the mail. Another card report form is provided for mailing to the District Leaders.

The Postal Card report figures should be supported by a list of all subscribers on Transmittal Forms and in Transmittal Envelopes provided for the purpose. All payments to date on subscriptions should accompany this list together with all signed subscription cards.

Prompt acknowledgements of all payments will be made by

Headquarters to the person sending the payments. At the close of the campaign, Headquarters will:

(1) Acknowledge the receipt of subscriptions and payments thereon—(2) Send to each Local Charge and Church a duplicate of every unpaid subscription card on which will be posted the payments to date.

For the purpose of quick reporting and in addition to the report postal cards and transmittal forms, the Local Church Chairman is urged to telephone his reports to his District Leaders on each Monday and Thursday night until the Charge goal is reached. A leader from each District will then telephone his report that same night to Campaign Headquarters so that a bulletin can be issued the next morning to all Charges and workers showing the progress of the Campaign.

Note: The greatest blessing to Church, people and Millsaps College will be realized by using the "person-to-person" visitation method. However, in case a Local Church subscription is made, it must be by congregational official action and signed by the pastor, Chairman of the Fund, or other officials, and sent to Headquarters. In some Churches, a Church subscription is made for the difference between the Church goal and the amount raised by personal solicitation.

Message To Pastors

Frequently in the early stages of a campaign a few pastors will hesitate to cooperate because of building programs in their own churches. This is a very natural reaction but in many instances their full cooperation in the campaign will help to solve their local problems.

Wide experience shows that, almost without exception, those pastors and churches who participate in cooperative efforts, or in causes whose boundaries extend beyond those of the local church, greatly benefit rather than hinder their local programs.

There have been pastors who were, at first, not only apathetic but also antagonistic to denominational appeals. Later, after entering whole heartedly into the campaign, they testified that their churches had received even greater blessings than the cause for which the campaign was working.

Unfortunately there are some sad and embarrassing experiences where pastors withheld cooperative appeals from their members which resulted in cleavages and even separation.

One Pastor writes, "When our church was pushing for an educational building, along came the denominational education fund for a million dollars. In spite of my feeling that it would probably kill any further progress on our local church campaign we entered into the denominational campaign without reserve and raised over $34,000. To our surprise, during the same period we actually raised more for our local building fund than we did the year before. Each campaign helped the other."

work horses. It is a pity for a church to allow itself to get into such an ambitious home program that it is willing to saddle on others its proportionate share in carrying on the wider Kingdom enterprises.

"We were paying off a twenty-five year old debt when our campaign was started. Each year we made a healthy advance in our giving to missions and we have accepted and subscribed every quota asked us by our church."

Many pastors attribute much of their success in local efforts to the spiritual impetus and new leadership discovered through participation in larger denominational efforts of this nature.

The Editor's Desk

by Eddie Gossard

This is a rather unusual edition of the Purple and White. It is for the sole purpose of informing the student body about the meeting tomorrow in the Million for Millsaps campaign and for informing them about the campaign in general. It is also to give the delegates, in so far as possible a student view of what Millsaps needs and why. It is to show the delegates that the students of Millsaps College are behind this thing.

In the chapel service just before Millsaps students went home for the holidays, they were presented with a motion by the Student Executive Board to the effect that they ask the Board of Trustees to raise the student activities fee one dollar in order that that dollar might be applied on the million. Nothing has been heard from the Board of Trustees, but is confidently expected that they will whole-heartedly approve the action.

This will go on for the next three years, and will mean a pledge of about $4200, going on the basis of 700 students for six semesters, and it seems that that is a fairly conservative figure. Millsaps is on the way up. We don't mean that it will become a huge university — that isn't its purpose or desire. But it will have its share of students within the limits its cares to set, and with the consummation of the Million for Millsaps program, it will have the necessary physical equipment to accommodate them.

This is a little beside the point. The point is that the students of Millsaps feel deeply enough about their school to want to give in their own right to the campaign. Many of these same students are expecting to give to the program through their organizations.

The student Executive Board and the student body felt that it would be very pleasant, besides the effect it could have on the campaign, for Student Body President Tommy Woodard to be able to tell the members of the conference that the students of Millsaps were pledging $4200 to the campaign. The people of Mississippi aren't giving to a bunch of unappreciative people; they are giving to help a school containing people who have been giving to help themselves. The faculty are doing the same thing. The amount of their pledge is not presently known, but it well be an amount worthy of the faculty of Millsaps College.

It is very important to the student here that the program be realized in full and more, for the good of the college. It is important because he wants for those who come after him the things that he may not have been able to have himself but which he would like to see others have, for when they have them, it will mean that his school is among the best in every way.

There are in this paper, articles that will interest only the students of the college. There are articles that will be of interest primarily to the delegates to the meeting of the two conferences. There are articles that will interest each person who reads it. It is by no means a typical P&W; we hope that it will be of interest and informative to all.

"Madam," said the kernel owner to an uppity sports woman.

"I offer you this thoroughbred bloodhound."

"How do I know it's a bloodhound?" she asked thoughtfully.

"Hector," the owner ordered the dog, "Bleed for the lady."

"So I happen to like basketball—what's that to do with the way I grade in this class?"

To The Students

Tomorrow there are going to be approximately a thousand delegates from both conferences on this campus to give final approval to the Million For Millsaps campaign which will begin in earnest next week.

Naturally, a thousand extra people on this campus are going to be noticed. They are not going to be lost in the multitude of students, because they will outnumber the students.

With this many extra visitors on the campus there are going to be points at which the students and the delegates tend to get in each other's way. At these points, the student body can materially aid the conference in a very real way without giving a single penny to the campaign.

These delegates will arrive on the campus in automobiles. Automobiles are very convenient for going to conferences, but they must be stored somewhere during the conference because there is no room for them in the Christian Center. The parking space just outside the Christian Center and outside the men's dormitories would be ideal for the delegates if it weren't for the fact that they are filled up with students' cars. Now we are down to the point. The students are being asked, for the ultimate good of Millsaps College, for just one day, to park their cars at the gym, down on North West Street, State Street, or anywhere out of the way of the delegates cars. It will mean a little inconvenience, yes, but only for one day, and it may mean many more conveniences (like a new dormitory, library, and student union-cafeteria building) in the not so distant future.

Another thing about delegates—they eat. They eat food, just like you and me. Tomorrow, they will eat their food in the Millsaps cafeteria at noon. With a thousand delegates in that room, there just isn't going to be any room or food left for students without a lot of trouble and confusion.

This is probably the only time in your school career that you'll hear the school authorities asking you not to eat in the cafeteria, so pay heed. After all the griping, good-natured and otherwise, that one hears about the food in the cafeteria, one would suppose that there would be no trouble in getting the students to eat in the juke or other eating spot of their choice for one meal. It'll be a lot easier on the delegates and on you.

One last characteristic of delegates, especially a thousand of them, is that they take up room in places like the Christian Center auditorium. In fact, they will take up most of the room, and they will be taking it up during what would be the regular chapel period. Much as you may hate it, you are being asked not to try for your regular seat and not to crowd the auditorium at any one time. You are invited to any session you care to attend and there are some that will be of special interest to you. There will be no regular chapel or roll-checking at 10:50.

Last, be considerate of the visitors. They are here to give you a better school. They are not just another meeting; they are something that will help Millsaps college and we are all vitally interested in that.

Millsaps College . . .

Is a small, liberal arts college, with a small faculty, a small student body, and a small campus." This phrase is one that for some time on this campus has caused considerable mirth both among faculty and students. The story behind it is one of a very expert imitation of President Ellis Finger which resulted in some confusion and a great deal of fun on the campus, for everyone involved, including the president.

We're citing the incident (and you may obtain the whole story from practically any upperclassman or faculty member) not to show how undignified our president is, or how frivolous the students can be, but to make a point about Millsaps. There are, we feel free to say, few colleges where this could have happened with the same happy ending. And we feel free to say, also, that it could have happened at Millsaps no matter who was president or who the student was. That's not to say that the personnel at our school aren't important. A school can be only as good as its faculty and its student body and its administration will let it be. Millsaps has had and does have a faculty and administration that want it to be good. And, as a student, we can say that there are those students who want the school to be good and will do anything in their power to make it good.

But, Millsaps is more than a faculty and a student body and an administration; it is all the faculties and student bodies and administrations that have gone before. It is all the people who have worked to make the school the best school possible. It is something that cannot be changed or destroyed.

We on the campus feel that Millsaps is a deeply satisfying experience and most of us would not change one hour of that experience for anything on earth.

At the same time, we can see that if Millsaps is to fill the growing need that it must fill for the generations to come, it must undergo certain improvements—additions to the faculty, raise in faculty pay, and physical buildings.

Millsaps needs more personnel, not so much in academic areas, but in areas important to a well-rounded college program, such as physical education, and public relations. Money to provide for these additions must come from the Million For Millsaps program.

Millsaps professors have long stayed at the school because they feel a sense of duty to it and its purpose and not because they were making a lot of money. Many turn down better financial offers regularly. It's about time they got what's coming to them. Money for better salaries must come from the Million for Millsaps program.

Millsaps needs improvements in the physical plant—a library, a student Union building, a cafeteria, a men's dormitory. Plans have been drawn for a student union-cafeteria building, a library, and a men's dormitory. Money to make the plans a reality must come from the Million for Millsaps program.

Millsaps College is something that cannot be changed or destroyed by anything we can do. But, by the consummation of this program with all the energy and skill and enthusiasm at our disposal, its future can be assured. It can go on to reach the peak that can be reached by a school when those people who hold it dear work with all the means they have to make it the best school ever.

Student Hardy Nall Speaks Over State For Campaign

When Hardy Nall, Jr., pre-ministerial student at Millsaps, steps into the pulpit of his first charge he will be on familiar ground as he will have had plenty of practice speaking in churches. In the past three weeks Hardy has traveled more than 3,000 miles across the state and has addressed thousands of pastors and laymen in more than two dozen Methodist Churches in the Million for Millsaps Campaign to raise $1,000,000 for endowment and new buildings for the college.

Nall has pointed out that "what we do for Millsaps today will assure that the boys and girls of tomorrow will be able to enjoy the advantages of the same fine Christian education that we the students of today are receiving at Millsaps." His travels are far from over as his schedule calls for many more church talks before the campaign concludes in March.

Concordia Choir To Appear In C. C. Auditorium Feb. 12

The Concordia choir will appear in concert in Jackson, Friday evening, February 12, at 8:15 o'clock.

Director of the choir is Professor Paul J. Christiansen, head of the department of music at Concordia College, Moorhead, Minnesota, and son of the renowned F. Melius Christiansen.

Arrangements for the local concert, which will be presented in Christian Center Auditorium, Millsaps College, are under the supervision of Trinity Lutheran Church, the Redeemer Lutheran Church, Millsaps College, Mississippi College, and Belhaven College.

The group of 65 singers, who won wide acclaim on a tour of Norway during the summer of 1949 and throughout the nation in recent tours, are appearing in several Midwestern cities and a string of Southern cities this season. The tour for 1954 takes the group through S. Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, Missouri, Iowa and Minnesota.

Singing a cappella, the choir will present a program ranging from 16th century classics down through the Bach era to the contemporary masters. Several favorite works by the director's father, F. Melius Christiansen will also be heard.

The program will have such outstanding numbers as "Hodie Christus Natus Est" by Palestrina; "Two Gregorian Melodies" by Bach; "Sing We Merrily Unto God Our Strength" by Martin Shaw; "Jesu, Priceless Treasure" by Bach; "Inscription From the Catacombs" by Normand Lockwood; "The Three Kings" by Spanish Carol; "Benedictus" by Palidilhe; "Four Prophesies" by Paul J. Christiansen; "Spring Returns" by F. Melius Christiansen; "Song of Mary" by Kranz; "Wake, Awake" by F. Melius Christiansen.

Dr. H. Ellis Finger, Jr., President of Millsaps College is on the Publicity Committee; Louis Hodges is on the ticket sales committee; and Dr. Alvin J. King is on the entertainment committee.

STAFF MEETING

A Purple and White staff meeting will be held next Thursday afternoon at 1:30 p.m. for the purpose of selecting new students to work on the publication.

The meeting will be held in the Purple and White office, and all interested students are urged to attend.

Two Millsaps Students Win In Golden Gloves

Two Millsaps students, Tom Boone and Eddie Khayat, made a very good showing in the recently held Mississippi Golden Gloves Tournament.

Boone, a Sophomore from Memphis, fought in the middle-weight division, novice class, winning his division by knockouts in all his bouts.

Boone was also acclaimed the outstanding novice in the entire tournament. A novice is an amateur fighter who has not won a scheduled fight.

A big freshman from Moss Point, Khayat, won the heavyweight division, novice class, by easily overpowering two opponents.

Both of these husky boxers were supposed to leave with the state boxing team for Memphis last Tuesday to compete in the Mid-South Golden Gloves Tournament. They were scheduled to see action Wednesday night.

Late News On Campaign

The "Millions for Millsaps" program is showing great success according to reports from the "Million" office at Millsaps. About twenty-eight churches have oversubscribed their quotas and a total of $408,243.00 has been subscribed to date.

An unprecedented attendance of more than 3,000 at district rallies has implied that the total goal will be oversubscribed ahead of schedule. Bishop Marvin A. Franklin said: "The enthusiasm and co-operation of the Methodists of Mississippi shown by the attendance at the district rallies are like a beautiful pageant. Millsaps College is fast approaching its shining hour."

The publicity campaign for the "Million" is well underway and the campaign office is distributing reproductions of the speeches made by speakers at the special session of the Mississippi and North Mississippi conferences, and a fact bulletin on Millsaps College late this week.

The campaign office expressed appreciation for the enthusiasm with which students and faculty have participated in the campaign.

Partial List Of Transfer Students Told By Registrar

Former Students Return; More Are Registering

A partial list of transfer students and former students of Millsaps who are returning has been released by the Registrar's Office. There are additional students in the process of registering.

Majorettes Set March 4 As Date For Stunt Night

According to the Majorette Club, Stunt Night has been scheduled for the night of March 4. Each social organization on the campus is responsible for presenting an original stunt. The idea for the stunt should be turned in by February 12 and the final script by February 25.

Each stunt is to be judged on originality, presentation, and costumes by local judges who are prominent in the field of dramatics.

As is customary, the "bucket" is awarded to the organization with the best stunt. Last year the coveted "bucket" went to the Chi Omegas with the Pikes and the Phi Mu's placing second and third respectively.

The following rules have been set up for Stunt Night and the Majorette Club asks that all organizations follow them:

1. A maximum time limit of ten minutes. A gong will sound at the end of the ten minutes and if the stunt continues much longer the curtain will be drawn.

2. No obscene language or indecent dress or actions. (Failure to abide by this rule will be an automatic disqualification.)

3. No extreme takeoffs on faculty members.

$1,120 Secretarial Scholarships Are Made Available

Two national scholarships for college senior girls are again offered for 1954-1955 by the Katherine Gibbs School. These awards were originally established in 1935 and are in memory of Mrs. Katherine M. Gibbs, founder and first president of the school.

Each scholarship consists of full tuition ($620) for the secretarial training course, plus an additional cash award of $500, totaling $1,120. The winners may select any one of the five Gibbs school for their training — Boston, Chicago,

I.R.C. To Sponsor Display On History Of Knowledge

The Millsaps College International Relations Club will sponsor

an exhibition of twenty-five plaques in Murrah Lounge from February 18 through 26.

This exhibition is made available by Columbia University in celebration of its Bicentennial, and Millsaps College is among the few colleges and universities to receive the panels at this early date.

"Man's Right To Knowledge And The Free Use Thereof" is the theme of the display which traces the history of knowledge from its beginning to the present. The theme was chosen by President Dwight D. Eisenhower while he was president of Columbia University, and its presentation has involved the research and writings of the most prominent scholars of our time.

Acting Dean Ferguson takes his place at the head of the registration line for the beginning of the Spring semester. He has just told a good joke or approved a schedule without argument.

Sororities Plan Initiations Soon For 47 Pledges

A total of forty-seven first-semester pledges will be initiated during the next three weeks by the sororities. The initiates-to-be according to sororities are as follows:

Chi Omega—14; Myra Fisher, Claudette Koerper, Janis Edgar, Rose Cunningham, Sarah May Hewitt, Jane Wiggins, Nancy Ann Harris, Joanne Henderson, Alice Starnes, Shirley Stanton, Nancy Crawford, Walley James, Marion Swayze, Valera Bailey.

Kappa Delta—13; Nancy Peacock, Lynnice Parker, Margie Eu bank, Jean McClenahan, Margaret Woods, Robin Smith, Nancy Martin, Sylvia Stevens, Yvonne Moss, Clara Parks Booth, Frances Jernigan, Winnie Hargrove, Carol Culley.

Beta Sigma Omicron—11; An nice Loflin, Margaret Whitfield, Cara Lloyd Hemphill, Cindy Faulkenberry, Virginia Slat er, Joan Wheless, Martha Ann Smith, Doris Pittman, Katheryn Northam, Mary Jo Edwards, Peggy Lack.

Phi Mu—9; Mary Elizabeth Burton, Mary Warren Huntley, Barbara Uhalt, Mary Sidney Johnson, Sarah Jane Brockman, San dra Weir, Mitzi Shelton, Ann Mauldin, Betty Landfair.

The Chi Omega's will begin their initiation on Monday, February 8, and will end with the initiation of the model pledge on Thursday February 11. The Kappa Deltas conferred second degree on their pledges on Sunday January 31, which was followed by White Rose week from February 1, through February 6, during which a succession of parties is given for the pledges at different alumni's homes. The actual initiation will take place on Sunday, February 7, and will be followed by a breakfast at Primos. All thirteen of the KD pledges made their grades.

The Beta Sigma Omicron's will conduct the initiation of their eleven pledges on the 5th and 6th of February. A banquet to be held at Primos on February 6 will follow initiation. The date for the Phi Mu initiation is still pending and will be announced at a later date by president "Boots" Carpenter.

Dean Clarifies Rules Concerning Class Attendance

Because of confused interpretations of rules concerning class attendance and the dropping of courses, Acting Dean James S. Ferguson made the following announcements this week:

1. In regard to voluntary class attendance, all students are reminded that they are expected to be regular and prompt in their class attendance. Those who are not placed on either scholastic or attendance probation may be absent from classes on occasions which necessitate such absences. The intent of this privilege is that students with good academic standings are expected to be prompt and regular in attendance, but do not have to secure the approval of the Dean for such absence incurred. It is hoped that no student will abuse this privilege to the point of having his voluntary class attendance withdrawn.

2. In regard to the rule concerning the dropping of a course without permission (page 27 of the Student Handbook), the following clarification applies: If a student discontinues attendance in a course at any time, he will suffer not only the penalty of an F in the course and the subtraction of three quality points from his total, but also he will be placed on probation after four successive absences and will receive the normal penalties in deduction of hours and quality points that apply to probationary students. (See page 33 of Student Handbook).

3. Students are reminded that they are not officially dropped from a course until their change of schedule card is signed by their advisors, the instructors involved, and the Acting Dean, after which the change of schedule card must be turned in to the Business Office.

ence are Miss Leila Harrison, president, and Miss Mary Helms, secretary, both of Mississippi State College for Women; and Miss Bessie Duddleston, treasurer, University of Mississippi. Presidents of local Canterbury Clubs are vice-presidents of the state organization. Sydney Everett of Mississippi State College, president of the national Canterbury Club organization, will also attend the state conference.

Reservations for the conference should be sent to the student officers at Mississippi State College for women. Girls will be housed in the dormitory and boys in church homes in Columbus. St. Paul's Episcopal Church, of which the Rev. Cecil Jones is rector, will be host church for the meeting.

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. says . . .

FOR more than thirty years we have used research day in and day out learning about tobaccos and cigarettes in the public's interest.

Continuously we and our consultants have analyzed, experimented with and smoked all kinds of tobaccos...especially Southern Bright, Burley, Maryland and Turkish cigarette tobaccos.

Our own cigarettes and competitive brands have been submitted to the most exacting scientific scrutiny including thousands of analyses of millions of pounds of tobaccos.

From all these thousands of analyses, and other findings reported in the leading technical journals, our Research Department has found no reason to believe that the isolation and elimination of any element native to cigarette tobaccos today would improve smoking.

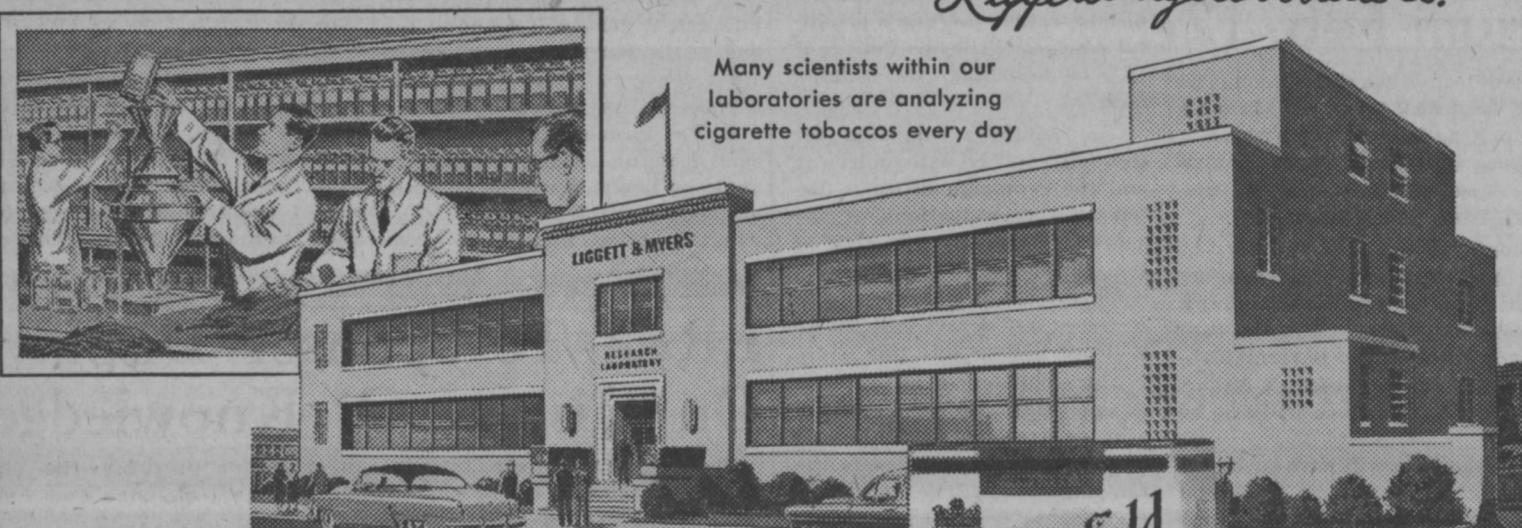

For four years we have maintained in the smoker's interest an intensified larger scale diversified research program. A half-million dollar 30-ton machine, the world's most powerful source of high voltage electrons, designed solely for our use has tested tens of thousands of cigarettes. This program has already given to us direct and significant information of benefit to the smoking public.

Our consultants include Arthur D. Little, Inc. of Cambridge, Massachusetts, "one of the largest and most reputable industrial research organizations in the country" (From Business Week Magazine) and eminent scientists from leading universities.

Today the public can confidently choose from a variety of brands—by far the best cigarettes ever made by the tobacco industry.

Here it is again—that bright new day has dawned. A brand new semester, a fresh opportunity is again upon us.

Stop those snickerings in the background. This was the semester you promised dear old dad you'd make that three point wasn't it? Do words uttered in that pleasant breathing spell between semesters return again and again to haunt you? Does the phrase "I know these grades aren't two good but next semester I'm really going to work," strike a familiar note?

A Method For Madness

Aha! I thought so. And it really isn't very difficult to make those grades you know. Simply set aside a definite study schedule (15 or 16 hours a day should do it), stop cutting classes, write a dozen or so extra papers and read somewhere around 100,000 pages outside reading—you can easily jot down other suggestions to yourself. Join the Three Point or Burst Association (intellectuals don't use colloquialism) and find other stalwarts for the cause.

If you find the above information vaguely depressing, don't feel alone. According to a recent survey you have the company of 99.99% of students on record. Anyway, who wants to be an individualist?

After the inspiring last issue with 14 engagements and pinnings, I suppose any thing would be a let down. Of course I knew all the time that it couldn't go on as it was so here goes.

Shirley and R. J.

It was almost inevitable that someone would be left out in the mad scramble of the last issue. I'm sorry but will try to correct it now. Shirley Upton, junior from Walnut Grove, is engaged to R. J. Reynolds from Harperville. R. J. is attending Baylor Dental School.

Mauleene and Smoky

Mauleene Presley of Pickens and Smoky Broadwater of Crystal Springs are engaged. Both are seniors and Smoky is a Kappa Sig.

Pat and Terry

Pat McGuire, Chi O and Terry Rees, Kappa Sig, are pinned. Pat is a sophomore from Baldwyn and Terry a junior from Newton.

Extra Bits Of News

Students Collect 28 Dollars In "Y" March On Polio

A total of $28.00 was collected on the Millsaps College campus last Friday night during the Students' March on Polio. This drive was held in conjunction with the nationwide Mothers' March on Polio, and was sponsored on the campus by the YWCA.

Lucy Robinson and Betty Jo Powell served as leaders for the march, and many of the students participated in the collection.

MAJOR MAJOR

Vice-President Of Seniors Honored As Major Major

The Major Major personality for this week is Durant senior, Johnny Howell. Johnny is a sociology major and plans to attend graduate school after finishing Millsaps.

Johnny tells us his most enjoyable experiences came from working with the Millsaps Players. He has been in "The Happy Journey" and Our Town and acted as stage manager for The Infernal Machine. Johnny has the added distinction of being a member of the Little Theater's production of The Winslow Boy. This year he was tapped into membership in Alpha Psi Omega, the national dramatic honorary.

In addition, Johnny has been a cheerleader for two years, on the Dean's List, on the business staff of the Bobashela, and a member of the Varsity Show.

A member of the Kappa Alpha social fraternity, Johnny serves as vice-president of the organization. He previously held the office of secretary.

Recently Johnny was elected to the vice-presidency of the Senior class. This honor is a fitting tribute to Johnny's ability and popularity.

Hail To Thee, "Blithe Spirit"

By Ed Sturdivant

The Kulture Korner presents this week a story on the musical side of our illustrious Alma Mater.

Between the back doors of Sanders Hall and the not-too-cultural Campus Grill there rests a quaint little edifice reminiscent of crinoline petticoats and dueling pistols. Forsaken by Millsaps, and now resembling the ruins of Pompei, Elsinore remains a lone symbol of the great and glorious musical art of our college. Kind and saintly artists from other lands now inhabit this desolate ruin. Loyal to their sacred trust, they have come to mingle with the ghosts and to suffer—and die—for art.

Opening its inner sanctum door, one is greeted by the wintry blast of an abandoned tomb. Accompanied by high C's bansheeing through the lattice-work of cracks in the walls, the scene would do credit to Orson Welles. Although the inner ear may not collapse, the uninitiated is often seized with an uncontrollable urge to flap his arms and fly. The small fry are sometimes found lodged in a crack under the back door. Some wander for days in a state of traumatic coma. (Splendid word, that "Traumatic" positively splendid!)

The infinite charm of the place is found in its inspirational atmosphere. And, as one is well aware, atmosphere is absolutely essential to true art. Think of what Peter Paul Rubens might have been had he had the Three Graces for atmosphere. And what an atmosphere! (But, we digress). Consider, if you please, Arctic Elsinore! In no other studio could the famous aria "Che Gelida Manina" be sung more appropriately. (For the benefit of those who came in late, the English translation is "Your Tiny Hand is Frozen."

In this idyllic setting, one may practice pianoforte for hours without developing anything more serious than arthritis. And even this mild malady is rendered less painful by the delightful anesthesia produced by gas fumes from the quaint eighteenth century heaters. This condition is often followed by a mild state of inebriety in which one becomes highly impressed with his capacity for genius. Couple this with hours of brainwashing by Bach and the mind becomes twisted and tortured into a state of blind submission in which one is ready to accept anything.

The piano teacher refused to complain about the "deep freeze" condition. She reports no difficulty in getting students to practice the hardest exercise, prestissimo (as fast as possible) and she positively denies the rumor that the fingers of one indolent aspirant were frozen in spread-eagle position over the piano keys.

Absolutely nothing has been spared, dear reader (if any) to keep this monument to bygone culture in its original state. Everything—even to the archaic drop-ceiling light fixtures, with original 15-watt bulbs have been carefully preserved. The students are blissfully and blandly cooperative. Some of the more enterprising ones have gone in for braille music books.

Safe from the prying eyes of those who would stifle love's young dream, moon-struck couples find Elsinore a rendezvous par excellence.

A delightful source of diversion is the playful rodent inhabitants which one rarely sees, but often hears and feels. At frequent intervals the cold nose of this little creature is felt in the most unsuspecting places. Music lovers in the vicinity are sometimes shocked by the sudden screeching dischord of a budding prima donna.

The mosaic plaster which covers Elsinore's crumbling walls is a dream—a dream of the butter milk and fish variety. Playfully splashed about in muddy daubs, it has a tendency to produce psychotic urges to mayhem followed by Hamlet-like indecision and depressing inertia. This condition has been partially remedied by one of the new sopranos.

They laughed when she shattered the crystal goblet, but falling plaster and sliding timbers left them astonished.

Perhaps the most distinctive feature in the building is its fine collection of antique bar-room pianos. Mossy eaves and warped whip-sawed floors are common to all ruins, but nothing adds much charm as period furniture—or, perhaps Elsinore's furniture might more properly be called "asterisk" furniture. Perched unevenly and uneasily on one of the ancient stools with numb fingers fighting for the little note that isn't there, one understands and appreciates the agonies of martyrs. It may even be the turning point in a sinner's life.

But, for the non-conformist, the individualist, and the song stylist, there is a glad note among the dischords—after some period of practice on these relics the pianist may achieve a style impossible to copy by jealous competitors.

Monument to a lost glory, decaying museum piece, product of mad architects, torture chamber of the artist, Elsinore, thou art indeed a mess!

Trials And Thrills Along The Way

Well, well, well—these days there are other ways to see the world than by joining the navy. Recently Bettye Jo Powell, Millsaps junior, joined the national MYF council and ever since she has been dashing from state to state.

In the midst of exams, Bettye Jo threw away her books, tossed her duds into a bag, and flew to Buck Hill Falls, Pennsylvania, to attend a ten day meeting of the Methodist Board of Missions. As National MYF Outreach Chairman, she represented all Methodist youth.

During her last minute shopping before the "take-off," Bettye Jo hurried to H. L. Green's to purchase for only eighty-nine cents, mind you, exquisite, gorgeous engagement and wedding rings. Incidentally there were guaranteed not to tarnish for the first ninety days. Experienced travelers had advised her, the lone passenger, to wear an obvious wedding ring on her finger and a more obvious matronly expression on her face. She considered drawing wrinkles across her forehead, but decided against it.

Pushing the rings on her finger, Bettye Jo waved goodby to her Millsaps friends and boarded. She fastened her safety belt, nervously gulped three times, and before a cat could wink his eye, she was in the air and loving it!

Some hours later the plane taxied to the ground at LaGuardia Airport. Bravely she stepped from the plane and surveyed a dismal airport at 5:00 a.m.

To reach a railway station, Bettye Jo boarded a ferry which crossed the Hudson River. She felt very small and unfortunate to be traveling alone. There she was—one timid little girl with a huge bag, a bulging hat box, oodles of books, a not too small weekend bag, and a heavy heart.

"How," she frantically asked herself, "am I ever to carry all this junk?"

As the ferry reached Hoboken, New Jersey, rough looking men brushed past her and her fifty million bags.

"Will no one help me?" she pleaded and someone came to her rescue.

The next two hours Bettye Jo walked the streets of Hoboken. As she plowed through thirteen inches of snow, her nose became redder and redder, and her feet became blocks of ice.

At last it was time for her train! Wearily sinking into a seat, Bettye Jo began another lapse of her journey. As she spied Bettye Jo's wedding ring, a little old lady with two teeth missing and eyebrows that jumped up and down, leaned over to inquire, "My dear aren't you traveling with your husband?" Bettye Jo's reply was indeed an involved one which left her more than a little perplexed! Finally, Bettye Jo could breathe a sigh of relief, for her destination had been reached. The days that followed were filled to the brim with excitement.

A fiend for protecting the floor of the gym, she strictly enforces the rule for "tennis shoes only."

Two days were spent seeing the bright lights of New York City. While sight seeing, Bettye Jo really took in the sights. For example, a girl wearing a mink coat and stroking a poodle dog attracted her attention. In her excitement to see the "darling, adorable dogie," she almost knocked the owner off her feet. Suddenly Bettye Jo realized she was pushing Miss Barbara Ann Scott, world famous ice skater.

As the group, returning to Buck Hill Falls, left for the airport, Bettye Jo suddenly remembered that she had left her luggage in the hotel checkroom. Breaking all speed limits, the taxi driver rushed her back to the hotel. Fate was against her, for the checkroom was locked and in thirty minutes the plane was to leave! Frantically, she tore her hair and beat the door. At last someone came to her aid. Tearing down the steps to jump into the waiting taxi, Bettye Jo got tangled in a wedding party. She was in step with the "blonde pony-tail bride and the grinning groom." at last she reached the taxi and shook rice from her shoulders. Incidentally, she didn't miss the plane.

Returning home, however, she was not so fortunate. In Atlanta a plane was held over for her. As she entered the airport, the loudspeaker boomed, "Miss Bettye Jo Powell, please report to Ramp 43."

Immediately Bettye Jo dashed to Ramp 13, then Ramp 20, and so on. At each ramp someone bellowed, "Lady, you got the wrong ramp." Before she reached the correct ramp, three luggage carts nearly overran her. Because of Bettye Jo's predicament, the plane arrived in Jackson thirty minutes late.

The story could end here, but one more item must be added. It's too good to keep. Bettye Jo's luggage was lost for ten days. All this time she wore one brown sweater and skirt to classes.

Eventually the luggage appeared upon the scene. Now that the bags are safe and sound, Bettye Jo declares that a "wonderful crazy time was had which will never be forgotten!"

Sigs Win First Half;
Second Division Begins

Action in the first half of the boys' intramural basketball program ended the week before final exams, and the second period is scheduled to open this week.

The Sigs won the first division with a record of five wins and no defeats, while the Independents and Preachers ended in a tie for second place with identical 3-won, 2-lost records.

Most of the teams are reported to have made changes in team lineups since the end of the first half of the season; so, the race for the second half title should prove to be very close.

Because of the addition of a new team—the Norsemen—the intramural program has been revised to accommodate the new participants. Other teams included in the second half battle are the KA's, Sigs, Pikes, Lambda Chi's, Preachers and the Independents.

The schedule for the second half follows:

Feb. 8	7 P.M.	LXA vs. Norsemen
Feb. 10		Sigs vs. Preachers
Feb. 15	LXA vs. Independents
Feb. 17		Norsemen vs. KA
Feb. 22	Pikes vs. Preachers
Feb. 23		KA vs. LXA
Feb. 24	LXA vs. Preachers
Feb. 8	8 P.M.	KA vs. Pikes
Feb. 10		Independents vs. KA
Feb. 15	Preachers vs. Norsemen
Feb. 17		LXA vs. Sigs
Feb. 22	Sigs vs. Independents
Feb. 23	Pikes vs. Norsemen
Feb. 24		KA vs. Sigs

Med Schools Advise
May Admission Test

Candidates for admission to medical school in the fall of 1955 are advised to take the Medical College Admission Test in May, it was announced by Educational Testing Service, which prepares and administers the test for the Association of American Medical Colleges. These tests, required of applicants by nearly every medical college throughout the country, will be given twice during the current calendar year. Candidates taking the May test, however, will be able to furnish scores to institutions in early fall, when many medical colleges begin the selection of their next entering class.

This MCAT test will be given at Millsaps College and The Association of American Medical Colleges recommends that candidates for admission to classes starting in the fall of 1955 take the May test. The test consists of tests of general scholastic ability, a test on understanding of modern society, and an achievement test in science. All questions are of the objective type.

Application forms and a Bulletin of Information, which gives details of registration and administration, as well as sample questions, are available from pre-medical advisers or directly from Educational Testing Service, Box 592, Princeton, N. J. Millsaps students interested in the test should see Dr. J. B. Price immediately. Completed applications must reach the ETS office by April 24 and October 18, respectively, for the May 9 and November 1 administrations.

Ways To Improve Education Suggested
By Methodist Group

Four ways to improve the pre-seminary education of ministerial students were suggested at the annual meeting of the National Association of Schools and Colleges of the Methodist Church, January 11-12 in Cincinnati.

"A minister should be well educated within the cultural pattern of his society . . . schooled in history, letters, the sciences and the arts," said Dr. Gerald O. McCulloh, director of the Department of Theological Schools, Methodist Board of Education, Nashville, Tenn.

Pointing out that many college graduates enter seminaries without adequate preparation, Dr. McCulloh suggested the following ways in which "the pre-theological course at the college level can be enriched":

1. A recommended or required sequence of courses include physical science, sociology, psychology, English, speech, philosophy, education, business administration, and the like.

2. A special series of courses, such as an introductory course to the Bible, Biblical history, history of the Christian movement, a course in English literature concerned with discovering spiritual values, or a course in sociology designed for study of the church as a social institution.

3. A seminar providing instruction in the Methodist Discipline, church structure, Christian beliefs, great preachers and their sermons, and workshop sessions on sermon construction, the pastoral office, etc.

4. Special counseling to aid pre-ministerial students in selecting courses to meet their individual and general needs.

stricken reaction of their parents to the broadcast. Others may have been listening to Charlie McCarthy and were unaware of the wild confusion about them.

In Newark, New Jersey, families wrapped their faces in wet towels to save themselves from gas raids, tied up traffic with calls for gas masks, ambulances, and police rescue squads. The city was typical of many throughout the United States. For 1,200,000 U. S. radio listeners were running for the exits and working themselves into a state of general shock.

As fate would have it, or perhaps according to plans, the occurrence came on the eve of Hallowe'en, 1938. And when the realistic broadcast had ended, Orson Welles had played the biggest prank of all—one which the world would not soon forget.

The reactions to what seemed to be an eye witness account of invasion of this world by men from Mars varied from the attitude of the woman who tried to take poison to the calm attitudes of school children who recognized the voice on the radio as that of "the shadow."

The New York Times alone received 875 telephone calls from panic-stricken citizens. The editorial staff of a Memphis paper was called to the office to get out an extra edition on the bombing of St. Louis, Chicago, and the threatened bombing of Memphis.

Some thought that the world was coming to an end, and one man in Dayton, Ohio, called the Times to find out exactly when the last moments on this world would come.

For those listeners who had turned on the broadcast only two or three minutes late, did not realize that this startling landing of a missile from Mars was only the script from H. G. Wells' The War of the Worlds, now being broadcast by Orson Welles on CBS' Mercury Theatre. All they heard was the voice of the militia officer saying he was at the crater caused by the cylinder and had everything under control. They heard, too, the gasp of the radio operator calling into the void.

It was these reports that caused a man in Massachusetts to spend all his savings for a railway ticket to travel more than 60 miles before he found he was fleeing a bogeyman.

Bogeyman Wells had begun his broadcast innocently enough by saying that a dramatization was about to be presented; and on the eve of Hallowe'en, it was Mercury theatre's way of dressing up in a

Graduate Study
In Communication
Given In Chicago

A new graduate program in public communication designed for students interested in journalism, public relations, propaganda or communication research, has just been organized by the Social Science Division of the University of Chicago.

Beginning in 1954, the degree of Master Of Arts In Communication will be awarded to students who successfully complete an intensive training period focused on understanding the communication process and its effects on opinions, attitudes, and behavior. Lecturers in social psychology, sociology, statistics, political science, business administration, education and other fields, participate in the instruction.

The interdisciplinary program includes courses on the relationship between organization of the communication industry and the nature of its products; on techniques for measuring the effects of press, radio, television and film; on propaganda and psychological warfare; and on the latest findings of communication research. Other courses supplement undergraduate preparation in the basic social science disciplines.

Because previous training and career objectives of students may vary widely, course requirements are purposely kept flexible. College graduates with an undergraduate major in a social science can normally complete all requirements for the M. A. in Communication within one year.

Students in the communication program will have an opportunity to participate in ongoing research under faculty guidance. A scholarship fund has been set up for men who plan careers in journalism, and research assistantships in communication are from time to time available. Special consideration is given students with previous experience on college and high school publications.

Further information about the new degree program may be obtained from the Committee on Communication, University of Chicago, Chicago 37, Illinois.

Majors On Road;
Here Next Week

The Millsaps Majors, on the road this week, will return home next week for a series of games.

Opening the road trip against Birmingham-Southern in Birmingham Tuesday, the Majors played the Sewanee Tigers "on the hill" last night and are supposed to close the trip by engaging Howard College in Birmingham tonight.

The Mississippi College Choctaws will furnish competition for the Major cagers next Tuesday, February 9, at the city auditorium. Although the Chocs have taken the first two battles, this game should prove as thrilling as any other ever staged between the two schools. Both teams should be in top condition, and the Chocs will be the hosts.

The following Thursday the Majors will go to Cleveland to meet the strong Delta Statesmen in a night game. They will return home to play Southwestern in Buie gym Friday.

Two more home games will end the season's competition for the majors. They will meet Mississippi College in the final game of the series Tuesday, February 16 and end the season by playing host to Delta State on Friday of the same week.

An old lady in church was seen to bow slightly whenever the name of Satan was mentioned. One day the minister asked her to explain.

"Well," she replied, "politeness costs nothing, and you never know, do you?"

A Hopeful Beginning

"It is a very hard undertaking to seek to please everybody."

—Publius Syrus

We feel that we can safely go one step further and state that it is an impossibility to please everybody without being hypocritical; so, to avoid hypocrisy, we will admit frankly in the beginning that we will not attempt it. However, in presenting our policies to be followed by the Purple and White, we hope that we may state them clearly enough for those displeased persons to understand why we do the things that they don't like.

The Purple and White is the official publication of Millsaps College. It is not the publication of any specific department of the school, nor of the Greek letter organizations, nor of the independent students, nor of the Purple and White staff. It is the official publication of the entire Millsaps College student body. We shall endeavor with all our power to keep it in this position.

The editorial policies of this newspaper will be directed toward greater student unity on the campus, the upholding of the vital liberal ideals for which this school was founded and has continued to stand despite criticism, a fair and unbiased interpretation of the issues which we deem worthy of consideration by an interested student body, and the supporting of the moral scholastic standards which have gained for Millsaps College recognition as one of the outstanding schools in the country.

In voicing criticism we shall make every possible effort to express views which mirror the opinion of the majority of the students on the campus, and to strike out at those things which we deem detrimental to the welfare of the student body as a whole.

The editor takes full responsibility for all views expressed in editorials. In some instances editorials will be written by a staff member other than the editor, in which instance they will be initialed. In any case, however, the editor will retain full responsibility. Signed columns (which we hope to secure soon) are not editorials and should not be thought of as such. They should be thought of as the opinions of the writer only, and not necessarily the views of the editor of staff.

One of the most important sources by which student opinion may be voiced is through letters to the editor. All letters submitted to the Purple and White will be printed gladly if they are not obscene, vicious, or purely biased. Letters must be signed, and unsigned letters will be discarded. They should be concise and to the point; and if they are too lengthy, we reserve the right to condense. We want letters, and we hope you will write them.

In the presentation of news, we must admit that we are not omniscient, and cannot learn of all the things that happen. So, if we fail to get a story about you or your organization, we hope that you will tell us when you are going to have such-and-such, and would like for us to cover it. Only through cooperation on the part of all the students on the campus and the staff of the Purple and White can the news be adequately reported. We need and desire that cooperation.

We realize that the Purple and White belongs to the students. You pay for it, and you have every right to demand that it be what you want. We promise to do our best to give you just what you desire. We must admit, however, that our ability is limited in a great many respects. We cannot read minds; so, please, from time to time if the Purple and White's combination of news, corn, wit (we hope) and seriousness falls below par, let us know what you don't like about it. We won't get mad. We will appreciate it, and it will help us tremendously with a job we hope, when finished might earn for our entire staff a genuine "well done" from the students whom we serve, the school we love, and the faculty which has done much toward the shaping of our lives.

By Remus

It was beautiful outside. That's why I wonder what drove me inside. But, I had an appointment with a publications committee whose task it was to choose a new Purple and White editor and business manager. I hadn't the slightest notion at the time I submitted my application for the editorship of this publication that I would be forced to face, totally unarmed, a fact-hungry group of professors, students and the president of the college.

The room was pitch black as I entered, responding brightly to the call "next applicant." I was forced into an unreasonable facsimile of a chair — a typical implement employed in modern methods of torture. Nobody breathed a sigh. Only at the end of two hours of such treatment did I begin to sense that something big was brewing, something really big. I began to feel that I had perhaps invaded the sanctity of a faculty meeting. My hopes were soon dispelled, and something spoke:

"Mr. Cavett," echoed a sharp, quick voice from a far corner of the room, "do you still insist that Millsaps College, a small liberal arts institution, should support cake . . . ?" I deduced immediately from the Yankee accent that my interrogator was none other than President Finger.

"But, sir," whispered a disturbed voice which I recognized as belonging to Dr. White, "this is Mr. McCarter. Mr. Cavett — rest his liberal soul — has departed."

"Ah, yes so I've goofed," replied Mr. Finger shakily, "but, you see, I still haven't completely recovered from . . ." Violent sobs resounded deeply throughout the room. I began to have other thoughts.

Silence. More questions:

"Now Mr. McCarter," continued Dr. White, "you surely realize that we, faced with the important task of choosing a person for a position of responsibility such as that required of the editor of the Purple and White, must be assured of your capability, honesty, intelligence, spirit of cooperation, and unquestionable devotion to Millsaps College?"

"Yes sir," I chirped, "you can just bet your tennis balls I do."

"However," he continued, obviously aware that all these determining factors were true of me, "due to the unusual circumstances, we have decided (God, Shakespeare, and others concerning forgive us) to flout all dictates of rationality and consider your application."

"Er, sir?"

"And now, Mr. McCarter," boomed Professor Hardin from somewhere, "do you solemnly promise to relinquish all constitutional rights, to forfeit recourse to the Fifth Amendment, to print only what this committee dictates, and to donate one thousand dollars annually to Millsaps College after you are separated from the institution?"

"Huh?"

"That's all, Mr. McCarter!"

I staggered out into the light with a glowing feeling of inner satisfaction. I had stated my qualifications clearly and concisely, never once dodging an issue. My answers were comprehensive, and my excellent choice of words disturbed even me.

The decision of the committee wasn't long in coming. Dr. White, acting as chief counsel for the inquisition, seized my hand in an affectionate, but physically impairing, grasp and said: "Well, Remus, you lost — you were elected."

That's the story, and that should

An Early Request

This editorial is written six weeks early for one simple purpose. That purpose is to request that all students make arrangements to stay on the campus on the weekend of March 13, which has been designated as Millsaps College High School Day.

The High School Day committee, composed of Jim Livesay, faculty members, and a number of interested students, has begun extensive preparation to assure the largest attendance of high school students yet. Brochures and personal letters are being prepared for mailing to all graduating high school students in the state.

Naturally, it is very important that the prospective students be brought to the campus that day, but far more decisive is how welcome they feel while they are here. That is the privilege of the Millsaps students—all of us! These high school students like activity—not planned activity—but spontaneous and genuine friendliness from an active student body. They must be made to feel that this day is not something extraordinary at Millsaps, but that it represents the type of student life existing on the campus at all times. The conscientious student will not be sold on Millsaps College by a shallow and superficial welcome.

One heck of a lot of planning, re-planning, work, thought, and hope is involved in the preparations for this event, and it seems a shame to have all this work fall flat because the student body fails to participate in the program.

Them's our sentiments.

Tribute To A Major

The following was clipped from the sports page of the Mississippi Collegian, Tuesday, January 12, 1954, written by Bud Walker, Sports Editor. We feel that it is self-explanatory:

"Last Tuesday night Glenn Cain of Millsaps put on the Purple and White for the last time. He has accepted a coaching position at West High School.

"For four years Glenn Cain has been a marked man. The Choctaws have burned him in effigy before every ball game and been gunning for him during every minute of play. Yet the Durant flash has come through remarkably well, in fact, brilliantly. When Cain wasn't doing the damage himself, his presence alone in a contest was enough to keep Choctaw defenders off balance while one of his mates shook loose. But usually it was Cain.

"Cain's exploits don't need to be recounted; they are already nightmares to many of his Mississippi College foes.

"Glenn, we hate to see you go. You've helped to make things interesting in our little rivalry. We hope that some of your competitive spirit rubs off on the boys you coach. With men like you coaching there'll be little need to fear that the next generation of American athletes will go astray."

Little, Misguided Squirts . . .

(ACP)—The editors of the Red and Black, 60-year-old undergraduate newspaper at the University of Georgia, are in hot water because of a series of editorials on racial segregation in education.

When the Red and Black began printing things like "It is as plain as the red flag in Russia that continued segregation and suppression can and will cause the death of democracy by the hands of its own 'leaders,'" another newspaper and a powerful member of the state board of regents threatened the withdrawal of state financial support.

Regent Roy V. Harris, editor of the Augusta Courier, warned the student paper that "the people of Georgia would not be willing to support a university which advocated mixing and mingling of the races." He said state money which provides the Red and Black with two-thirds of its operating funds would be withheld unless the editors stopped "their juvenile damn foolishness."

His warning was unsuccessful; the Red and Black, instead of cowering, attacked Harris personally and said he was attempting to "squench our fundamental right of freedom of the press."

"Now there is no question of freedom of the press involved," Harris wrote back. "The question . . . is whether or not the board of regents will be dictated to by a little handful of sissy, misguided squirts who have just enough knowledge to think they know it all. Every time I see one of these little sissy boys hanging around some college, the more I think every one of them ought to be made to play football. What we need today is more he-men and fewer sissies."

take ample care of the corn for this issue. Needless to say, I was very happy to get the job, and I must acknowledge gratefully a faculty that will allow such nonsense as the foregoing to be written. I should like at this point to extend my very warmest congratulations to my good friends Eddie Gossard and Sid Head and to those members of their staffs who will not be working with me this next year. They did a superb job and are truly deserving of congratulations by the entire student body.

High School Day Program Is Announced By Committee

On Saturday, March 13, 1954, the annual Millsaps College High School day will be held in honor of high school seniors of Mississippi. Letters have been sent out inviting all high school seniors and their sponsors to see Millsaps College for themselves. Bulletins will follow the letters in the near future, pictorially informing of Millsaps Campus Life.

Registration will begin on the morning of March 13 at eight-thirty o'clock and the day's program will include opportunities to compete for scholarships, tours of the exhibits of departments, consultation periods, and entertainment.

The High School Day committee, composed of Lance Goss as chairman, and Jim Livesay, collaborating with faculty and student committee members, announced that Ruebel Phillips, Tupelo attorney and graduate of Millsaps, had been named speaker of the day.

A tentative schedule has been released as follows:

Livesay To Speak In Tupelo Church; Film To Be Shown

Mr. Jim Livesay will speak at Wesley Methodist Church in Tupelo, Mississippi, on Wednesday, February 12, about the Million for Millsaps campaign. Rev. J. T. McCafferty, Jr., pastor of the church, is a graduate of the class of 1947 and is very interested in the program for raising the Million for Millsaps.

After Mr. Livesay's speech the film "A Day in the Life of a Millsaps Student" will be shown to arouse interest. This film has been shown recently at Tunica, Capitol Street Methodist Church in Jackson and Grace Methodist Church in Jackson.

'53 Grad Given Scholarship For Study In Mexico

Johnny Webb, a 1953 Millsaps graduate has been awarded a scholarship to study in Mexico by the Graduate International Education Association. She was selected by the Mexico-United States Cultural Co-operative Association.

Mr. Kenneth Holloway describes this award as a "splendid opportunity for personal and professional growth." At present Miss Webb is studying foreign languages at L. S. U.

I. R. C. Elects Five To Membership

Fred DeLong, Norma Neill, and Joe Hobbs were formally initiated into the International Relations Club at its bi-monthly meeting held at the KA house Tuesday evening at 7:45. Allene Davis and Fred Whittam, also elected to membership in the club, were unable to attend the meeting and will be initiated at the next regular meeting.

Preceding the initiation ceremonies, the club discussed possible speakers for the next open forum to be sponsored by I. R. C. on the campus. After the informal discussion was concluded, refreshments were served to the group.

Present members of the Millsaps International Relations Club are the following:

Student members: Janice Edmondson, Fredda Shelton, Audrey Jennings, Mary Vaughn, Louis Hodges, Jack Dunbar, James Williams, Jenkins Spencer, Eddie Gossard, Harold Peden, Keith Dix, R. L. McCarter, Douglas Mathis and the five newly elected members.

The next meeting will be held Monday evening, February 22, at the home of Professor and Mrs. R. E. Bergmark at 7:45.

Try-outs Are Completed For Players' Production; Cast To Be Announced

The final try-outs have been held for the Millsaps Players' current production, The Rivals, by James Sheridan. The cast will be announced the latter part of this week, and rehearsals will begin immediately. March 17, 18, and 19 are the dates set for the play.

At the age of twenty-three, James Sheridan wrote his masterpiece, The Rivals, which has become a favorite among all comedies in the English language.

Millsaps Students To Attend MMS Meet At Ole Miss

Approximately thirty students from Millsaps College will attend the annual Mississippi Methodist Student Movement Conference to be held February 12-14 at the University of Mississippi.

Two hundred and fifty Methodist students from every junior and senior college in the state will attend the annual meeting.

Featuring workshops, discussion groups, platform lectures, musical concerts, drama, and worship, the conference will open on Friday evening with a dramatic worship service written and presented by the Wesley Foundation students at Mississippi Southern College under the direction of Rev. Sam S. Barefield, minister to Methodist students at Southern, and state director of the Methodist Student Movement.

Dr. Samuel E. Stumpf, head of the department of philosophy at Vanderbilt University will be the main speaker. He has developed a series of four addresses relevant to the theme of the conference: "The Odyssey of the Self."

The slate of business includes election of officers for the ensuing year, and the adoption of a constitution by the movement. Outgoing (Continued on Page 6)

Traditional "Pushball" Game No Longer Played At Emory

One aspect of the intramural program at Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia, was for years, a game called "pushball". Pushball was initiated in 1923 by director of athletics James G. Lester, to give more students opportunities to participate in "mass athletics."

From that start the game grew into an annual battle between the freshmen and sophomores. It was considered good for school spirit. In 1951 it was discontinued because it had grown into "mob violence."

The game is played with two teams. A big ball is placed in the middle of the field and the team that pushes the ball over the opponents goal line is declared the winner.

The custom had been that if the freshmen won, they could throw away their rat caps. Rarely have the freshmen been victorious.

Last spring, Emory's new student government voted to look into the situation to see if it would be advisable to continue pushball.

Two campus clubs offered to sponsor the game, which had previously been held by the Omicron Delta Kappa chapter at Emory.

One obstacle in their way is the cost of a ball. The old ball has been sold and a new one would cost between one and two thousand dollars.

The first game, held on November 19, 1923, drew much publicity, being the first game of its type held in the South.

From the first the game has been marked by free-for-alls and general riots. In 1929 the YMCA, one of the original sponsors of the game, gave a loving cup to the winner. The cup lost its handle in a free-for-all that followed the game.

In 1928 a ball was bought for $375. The money was raised through contributions. The ball was seven feet in diameter and weighed 275 pounds. This ball was used from that time until the game was discontinued.

Last year in place of the game, Rat Cap Day was substituted at Emory. It consisted of a softball throw, and archery meet between the girls, a shuttle relay, a tug-of-war, and a football game.

Each event counted one point except the football game, which counted four points.

The freshmen won the Day and the right to throw away their rat caps by winning the football game 27-0.

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. says . . .

FOR more than thirty years we have used research day in and day out learning about tobaccos and cigarettes in the public's interest.

Continuously we and our consultants have analyzed, experimented with and smoked all kinds of tobaccos...especially Southern Bright, Burley, Maryland and Turkish cigarette tobaccos.

Our own cigarettes and competitive brands have been submitted to the most exacting scientific scrutiny including thousands of analyses of millions of pounds of tobaccos.

From all these thousands of analyses, and other findings reported in the leading technical journals, our Research Department has found no reason to believe that the isolation and elimination of any element native to cigarette tobaccos today would improve smoking.

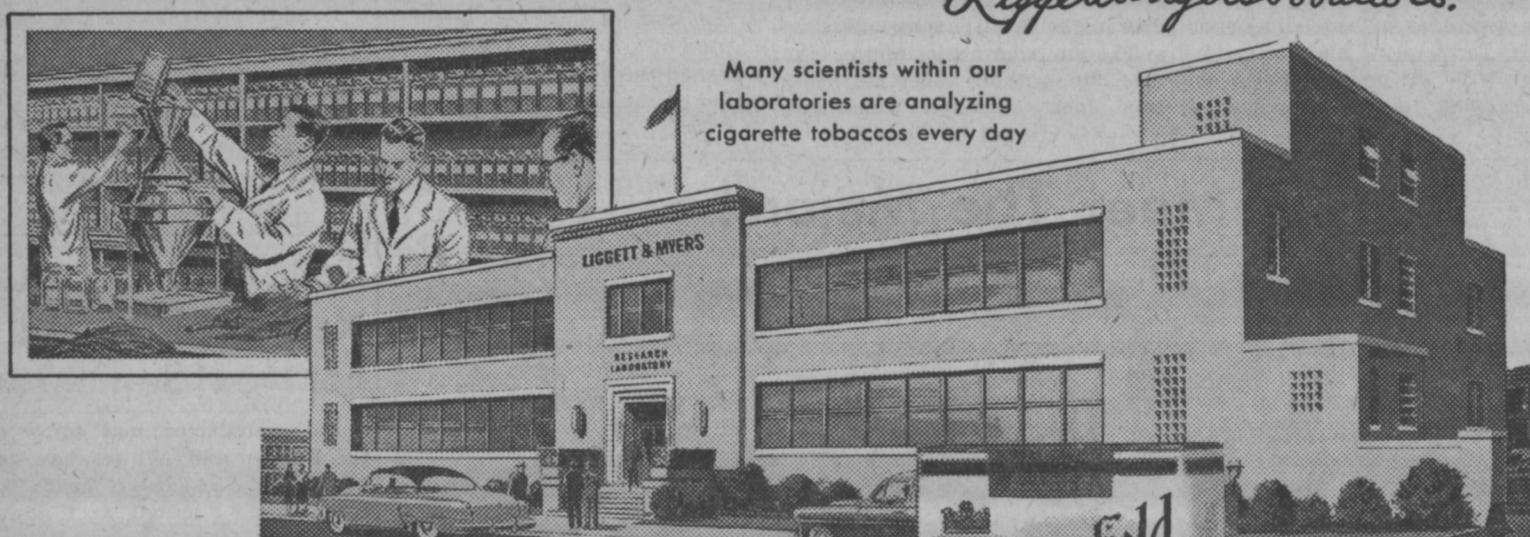

For four years we have maintained in the smoker's interest an intensified larger scale diversified research program. A half-million dollar 30-ton machine, the world's most powerful source of high voltage electrons, designed solely for our use has tested tens of thousands of cigarettes. This program has already given to us direct and significant information of benefit to the smoking public.

Our consultants include Arthur D. Little, Inc. of Cambridge, Massachusetts, "one of the largest and most reputable industrial research organizations in the country" (From Business Week Magazine) and eminent scientists from leading universities.

Today the public can confidently choose from a variety of brands—by far the best cigarettes ever made by the tobacco industry.

Religious Notes

By ARTHUR O'NEIL

The blazing sun of a new day lights a fleecy sky of opportunity. Each new day brings a new experience and a new opportunity. As we enter into a new semester, we see mistakes and weaknesses in our past semesters. This new semester will give us a chance to strengthen these weaknesses.

As we look back on last semester many things come to mind. We think of that time we wasted, when we should have been studying. We think of that swell social we missed because we forgot to send that grey suit to the cleaners. There also should come to our mind the quiet evening time and a candle-lit chapel as voices are lifted in song and praise to God, which we were too busy to attend.

It is this last phase of our campus life that this column shall be devoted to each week. This is not a sermon column, it is a reminder column. There are many religious organizations on the campus, and you should be giving your support to one of them. This column will inform you of what they have done and what they intend to do. Each week, take your Purple and White and see what the religious activities at Millsaps amount to, and try to find your place in the total program. If you don't fill your place it may go empty and be a draw-back to your group. Give your group a try, and then, if you don't like this program, you may complain. The thing is that you owe it to yourself, the school, and your own church organization to co-operate.

Some of the groups that have given this column information for this week are as follows:

Presbyterian

The Westminster group for Presbyterian students on the campus has a big supper planned that you don't want to miss. The supper will have planned recreation and an interesting program to go along with it. The time is 5:15 on Wednesday night and the place is First Presbyterian Church in Jackson. The Belhaven/Westminster group is in charge of the program with Suzanne Paul as their leader. Any additional information may be gained from Ann Orsborn.

Wesleyan

The Methodist students have a grand program planned for Wednesday night at 7:00 in the Christian Center. Professor Rogie Clark, from Jackson College, will present a program on "The Interpretation of African and American Negro Folk Music". The program sounds mighty good and is very highly recommended. All are invited.

Ministerial League and W. C. W.
This organization of ministerial students and woman christian workers has a weekly mission point program. They visit the Old Ladies Home, The Methodist Home, Methodist Farm, Charity Hospital, and other needy organizations. There is a wonderful experience for all in this program. The whole campus is encouraged to take part and help to serve these mission points.

aration for marriage. He spoke to the Wesleyan group Wednesday night on the broad fields of Christian vocations. While in Jackson he visited Jackson College, and Tugaloo College where he talked on sociology, criminology, and race relations.

This week Rev. White has speaking engagements at M.S.C.W. and Mississippi State College.

Audrey's Annex

By Audrey Jennings

A positively fascinating phenomenon has occurred at Millsaps. The good word of the year is "It happens in March."

Actually the whole thing is absolutely unbelievable. Ask about anything, just anything, and you will find that it happens in March. I have made an extensive survey, and at this writing have found only one incident that is not scheduled for that month. I'd list these events for you but it would take up entirely too much time and space. Test it yourself; read the Purple and White, watch the bulletin board, observe constantly. Really it's something you can depend on.

New Gripe

You old students who attended this institution last year will perhaps remember a constant difficulty this writer found—a lack of romantic news items. This year there has been no such trouble. On the contrary, I have noticed a very surprising amount of cooperation from all quarters. A new problem has arisen, however. No one is throwing parties. I can remember the good old days when every week brought scads of parties, date lists, etc. Surely everyone can detect this lack in my journalistic career. Let's all rally to the cause and every one of you—yes, you too—have a ball, reporting it fully, of course, to the dear old P&W.

Happily we have a good bit of news to report this week. Pledgings will be discussed first.

Pledgings

Beta Sigma Omicron announces the pledging of Carolyn Goff, freshman from Kreole, and Claudette Westerfield, sophomore from Mendenhall.

Martha Ann Crawford, Claire King, Pat Morgan, and Suzanne Peery all of Jackson, and Sylvia Schrock of Goodman were recently pledged to Chi Omega.

Kappa Delta announces the pledging of Nora Mae Pylate of Kosciusko.

Bill Birch of Jackson and Paul Kern of Morton were pledged to Kappa Sigma.

Model and Etc. Pledges

The Beta Sigs have announced their model pledge, Margaret Whitfield; best scrapbook, Virginia Slater; and high scholarship, Cindy Faulkenberry. All are freshmen from Jackson.

Model pledge of Chi Omega is Shirley Stanton, freshman from Greenville.

Kappa Delta's Model Pledge is Margaret Woods, freshman from Mount Olive.

Newt Harrison, freshman from New Albany, received the model pledge award for the Kappa Sigs.

Murray Pinkston, freshman from Vicksburg was named outstanding pledge of the Pikes at their banquet Sunday. Murray will wear the pin of Harvey Newell, former National President, for one year.

Nona and "Tomato"

Nona Kinchloe, Phi Mu, is engaged to "Tomato" Tillman, Kappa Sig. Nona is a Sophomore and

Powers Of Model Agency To Judge Pike Cotton Queen

John Robert Powers of New York, well-known model agency head, will select the Queen for the annual Pi Kappa Alpha Cotton Ball. The maids as announced by the fraternity are: Barbara Walker of Jackson, Beta Sigma Omicron; Virginia Hewitt of Jackson, Chi Omega; Norma Neill of Gulfport, Kappa Delta; Jo Glyn Hughes of Jackson, Phi Mu; Frances Moore of New Albany, Independent.

This year's Ball will be held on March 7 in the Victory Room of the Hotel Heidelberg. The orchestra and other details will be announced later. As in past years, the dance will be open to the entire campus.

KD's Elect Officers; Emily Greener Serves As President For Mu

Emily Greener, sophomore from Jackson, will serve Mu Chapter of Kappa Delta as president for 1954.

Other officers are: vice-president, Norma Neill, junior from Gulfport; secretary, Mary Lou Flowers, sophomore from Greenwood; treasurer, Ivey Wallace, junior from Jackson; assistant treasurer, Clara Parks Booth, freshman from Drew; rush chairman, Jeanelle Howell, sophomore from Jackson; editor, Mollie Larson, junior from Jackson.

These girls were elected on February 3 and will be installed at a later date.

Mary and Lew

Mary Jo Edwards from Sunflower is ringed to Lew Schitzinger of Jackson. Mary Jo, is a Beta Sig, Lew a Lambda Chi, and both are freshmen.

Boots and "Undie"

Boots Carpenter, Phi Mu, is ringed to Charles (Undie) Underhill, Kappa Sig. Boots is from Water Valley, Undie from Memphis, and both are sophomores.

Myra and Kim

Myra Fisher, Chi O, is ringed to Kim Smith, Pike, who graduated from Millsaps last year. Myra is a freshman from Sherard, Kim is from Jackson and is coaching at Shelby.

Marie and Lew

Mary Jo Edwards from Sunflower is ringed to Lew Schitzinger of Jackson. Mary Jo, is a Beta Sig, Lew a Lambda Chi, and both are freshmen.

Southern Lit Festival To Be Held

On April 23 At Blue Mountain

The annual Southern Literary Festival will be held at Blue Mountain College, Blue Mountain, Mississippi, this year. Friday, April 23, has been set as the date for the Festival. March 12 is the deadline for all entries.

A summary of the regulations governing manuscripts to be submitted in the prize contest is as follows:

1. Each member institution shall have a preliminary contest for the purpose of choosing the two best manuscripts in each category. Each institution may submit one or two manuscripts in any or all categories, but not more than two manuscripts in any category. Representatives may attend without submitting manuscripts, or manuscripts may be submitted without attendance.

2. Manuscripts may be submitted in the following: (1) poetry; (2) short story; (3) formal essay; (4) informal essay (5) one act play.

3. A maximum length of 5000 words has been set for short stories, informal essays, and formal essays.

4. Only unpublished material is eligible for submission, although it is understood that material published in the college magazine or newspaper shall be considered eligible.

5. Any undergraduate student enrolled in a member institution during any part of the 1953-1954 session is eligible to participate in the contest.

6. Each manuscript must be typed, double-spaced, on one side of the sheet only. The manuscript should not bear either the name of the author or the name of the school. A sealed envelope containing the author's name, the title of the manuscript, and the name of the school must accompany the manuscript. The title and classification (for example, "Hymn to Sunrise," poem) should appear on the outside of the envelope. Only one copy of the manuscript is necessary.

7. All entries must be in the hands of the secretary of the Association, Mrs. Elma Lois McKinstry, Blue Mountain College, Blue Mountain, Mississippi, not later than Friday, March 12, 1954.

8. First and second prizes of ten and five dollars will be awarded to the winners in each category at the meeting of the Festival Association on April 23.

MAJOR MAJOR—

Sec.-Treas. Of Senior Class Honored As Major Major

The Major Major personality for this week is a Jackson senior, Mary Grantham. Mary is an economics major, and she plans to enter some field of business work—preferably buying.

She has been local and state president of the Canterbury Club, business manager of Stylus, a member of the Singers, a co-editor on the Bobashela staff, a member of the Women's Pan-hellenic for two years, serving as secretary. She has been on the Dean's List, and was elected secretary-treasurer of the senior class for 1953-54, and she has been a student library assistant for two years.

A member of the Beta Sigma Omicron social sorority, Mary was a model pledge, secretary-treasurer of the pledge class, rush chairman, and president of the organization. She was a Pi Kappa Alpha Cotton Maid in 1953.

When asked why she chose Millsaps College, Mary said, "I came to Millsaps because it was convenient, a co-ed school, and because of its scholastic standing. The school is small enough that the faculty can have confidence in you.

MARY GRANTHAM

I didn't see any need to go away from home when I could get such an excellent education here."

In reviewing her career at Millsaps, Mary pointed out that if she had it to do over she would try to get in more things and take a more active part in the school activities.

Four For Bridge

By Ealter Wly

Bridge players are the same the world over. Although this foursome is at home, they will be recognized as types found in the Millsaps grill; their situations will be found comparable to situations in a bridge game in the grill.

South: One heart . . . ahem! Bernice, your bid.

West: Oh, I'm sorry. Let's see. Uhmm . . . one club.

East: Partner, Harry opened with one heart; you'll have to bid two clubs.

West: I can't. I'll have to pass.

North: Hand me that ash tray before I bid, won't you, Bill? If there's one thing I can't stand, it's smoke in my eye, and besides that I wouldn't want to drop ashes on the floor, and this velvet skirt—it just picks up everything. I really shouldn't have worn it. It really is messy around a bridge table, and if there's one thing I can't stand, it's a mess. Before you—

South: I opened with a heart, dear, and Bernice passed.

North: I thought I heard her say something about clubs.

West: I did but that was a mistake. I meant to pass.

N: Well, one spade.

E: Pass.

S: Two hearts.

W: Bill, what did you bid?

E: I pass.

W: Pass.

N: Do you mind if I pull the table a little this way. It strains my back to lean forward so much.

S: Just pull your chair up, Janice.

N: That is better. I was so uncomfortable. Bernice, you ought to talk Bill into buying those new chairs like ours. They have such a nice curvature—not straight like these. It's almost like an easy chair—

E: What did you bid, Janice?

N: One spade.

E: I meant this round.

N: Two spades, I think.

E: Pass.

S: Two spades, huh? Four spades!

Members Of Band Show Versatility

Here is a little information on a few more of the Millsaps Band members. These students are some of the "faithfuls" in the band.

Roy Parker, from Jackson, is a member of the Lambda Chi fraternity. He plays a saxophone in the band and was loyal throughout the football season as well as in the concert band.

Pat McGuire, a Chi Omega from Baldwin, also plays a saxophone. You are sure to know Pat by her vivacious spirit and her bubbling personality.

Sam Jones, from Jackson and Indianola, is vice-president of the band and plays the baritone. He has won honors for his student conducting and solos in past State Band Contests. Sam is also very active in the Singers and Lambda Chi Alpha. You have surely heard him play the piano. Isn't he good? And he composes, too!

Floyd Mobley, is from Jackson, his loyalty to the Millsaps Band roots from his active interest in the Central High School Band. He plays a French horn in the band and is vital to the marching and the concert bands.

W: You jumped to four? I pass.

N: Oh, Harry, you know I don't like to play a hand like this. Five hearts.

S: Good God!

E: Double.

S: I knew it. Pass.

E: Your turn, Bernice.

W: Well, let's see, what can I do?

E: No, Bernice, not your lead! Don't take that card out of your hand. You want us penalized? It's your bid.

W: May I review the bidding then, please?

S: One heart.

N: One spade.

S: Two hearts.

N: Two spades.

S: Four spades.

N: I'm afraid I made the mistake of bidding five hearts, but I'm afraid of this hand, and Harry plays them so much better. You know, he's been reading some books and picking up a lot of pointers.

E: I doubled five hearts, Bernice. What do you say?

W: Well, what did Harry say after you doubled?

S: I passed, among other things, such as losing ten years, ten pounds, ten numbers to my temper, and probably ten hundred points off my score.

W: I think I'll—Don't swing your leg, Bill. You're kicking me. Pass.

N: While y'all are playing, do you want me to run out to the kitchen to fix the drinks, Bernice? I know where everything is. I remember the last time, when I broke one of the glasses, trying to get it out of those high cabinets. My cabinets are lower, but every now and then I do drop one, but those metal tumblers you don't have to worry. You should get

Headaches Of P&W Editor Related By Outgoing Head

By Nancy Peacock

Only twenty-four hours in a day—only five days in a school week, but rain or shine, bad colds or headaches, typewriter keys must be pounded, ads must be secured by hook or by crook, and out must come the Purple and White!

Now once upon a time a new editor took over this particular college paper. To help ease him over the rough spots the retiring editor left on his desk a letter, (otherwise classified as a manuscript) containing the "Do's and Don'ts of the Newspaper World." Immediately the new editor placed the letter under lock and key, and to this day he refers to this bit of advice as The Editor's Handbook.

To all would-be editors, this article is written especially for you. This writer is about to plunge into the middle of The Editor's Handbook and pull out just for you some slightly gruesome details of an editor's hectic life—his trials and tribulations—his—well, anyway, settle back and read on. Then think twice before you aspire to this position.

To The Editor

First—above all other things, buy a long black whip. Then use it! You'll have to in order to gently persuade your reporters to meet that deadline. Play the role of the villain. (Two suggestions grow a mustache—have a wicked gleam in your eye, you'll be more in character). Be rough, be tough. Stand on a chair and yell, pull your hair, crash that whip—meet that deadline!

Second, an editor's best friend is his printer. Stay by his side. Live in his office. If anything goes wrong, run to him. Visit him Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. (Be sure to take copy, cuts, etc., with you). Oh yes, while making your daily visit to Friend Printer, you'll just have to dash in and give the engraver your regards. Also give him any pictures that are to brighten up the next issue.

Third

Third, a word about ads. Just a few words, mind you—no ads, no paper! They're sorta important. By no means are you to foul your advertisers, or else, to be quite frank, they just won't pay!

In regard to ads—first, decide some, Bernice, they're so much more practical.

S: Lay the dummy down, Janice, unless you plan on bidding six hearts.

N: Is that a hint?

S: No!

N: Here it is.

S: What did you bid spades on, Janice? What did you bid anything on? Would you look at that dummy, Bill!

N: You practically forced me into it, persistently bidding those hearts. I had to answer something with a singleton heart. I couldn't let you play it in hearts.

S: Well then, pray tell me, why you bid five hearts.

N: Well I certainly wasn't going to play five spades. Don't fuss at me about this contract. You bid the hearts.

how many pages the paper is to be. Four or six—well and good. If you can't make it a six, a four will have to do the trick. But, if you have only four pages, do not, under any circumstances, use that gigantic, atrocious Chesterfield ad. Now, with a six page issue the situation is entirely different. Then a Chesterfield is welcomed with open arms.

Fourth

Fourth, plant your reporters with the biggest ears under rocks about the campus. That's the best way to "haul in" in the news. By the way, when you purchase that long black whip (and please do that "right off the bat") you'd better buy a little black notebook, too. Always keep it handy to jot down EVERYTHING that goes on. The more scope you get, the better.

This is just a bit of information tossed in. The retiring editor heartily endorses cartoons; so it might be a good idea to use them here and there.

Fifth

Fifth, begin writhing (I don't mean writing) your editorials early in the week. It'll be a terrific battle, but muster courage and plunge right in.

Etc.

Sixth, tiny decisions and big decisions—they're all yours. Everybody'll have advice, but let most of it go in one ear and trip right out the other.

Seventh, always be on the job, but Friday, the BIG day (paper hot off the press) is your day to take things easy. The circulation is the business manager's baby. While you're letting those tense muscles relax, you might get out that little notebook and jot down ideas for next week's issue. After all, another paper is just around the corner.

There you have it, aspiring editors. These are just a few of an editor's headaches in a nutshell.

Yep, only twenty-four hours in a day and every second of that time, the editor must be on his "P's and Q's." Actually though, ask him and he'll gladly tell you the recipe for baking a good paper.

"One tablespoon of nightmares, add three cups of tears, cook in a world of joy, and a Purple and White is well-done!"

E: Your lead, Bernice.
W: You told me it wasn't my lead.
E: It wasn't then. The contract hadn't been set, but it has now.
W: What is the contract, anyway?
S: Five hearts, doubled, Damn it!
N: Really, Harry!
S: Well, you got me into it.
E: Bernice led the jack of diamonds, Harry. What do want off the board?
S: I guess I'd better cover with the king.

S: Well, that's ten trumps gone.
N: Here are the drinks, everybody. I'm sorry it took me so long, but you know how hard it is to get the ice cubes out of your re-

In the next few paragraphs, we will try to give some reasons for the disasterous won-loss record the Major basketball team has accumulated this year.

Actually, in our opinion, the Majors had a better team this year than last. The squad had more height and reserve strength; and, although the team was probably one of the slowest in recent Major history, more points were scored on the "fast break" than last season.

One way of explanation would be to point out that the Majors were up against the toughest competition to be found in the smaller colleges in this area. Of the teams played this season, only Southwestern, Howard, and Sewanee could be classed as simon-pure. (There are some very good evidences that the Choctaws should be left out of the simon-pure group.)

A lack of practice probably hurt the team as much as anything else. Nearly all of the boys on the squad are science majors; the labs that are common to all science majors made it practically impossible for the entire team to get together at the same time.

All in all, the boys on the team had a good time competing, the Major fans were shown a pretty good brand of basketball, and, most important of all, we remained as simon-pure as ever. In this respect, we beat the Chocs every time.

Majors Lose Three Games On Road Trip Last Week

The Majors returned home last Saturday after losing all three games of the final road trip of the season. The Majors were defeated Tuesday night by Birmingham-Southern 77-71 in Birmingham.

After taking Wednesday off, the Majors journeyed to Sewanee Thursday only to be trounced by a good Sewanee squad 78-57. The Majors returned to Birmingham Friday, and gave the Howard Bulldogs a tussle before falling 78-68.

The game with Birmingham-Southern was very close, and was not decided until the final whistle. The Majors were behind 44-34 at halftime, but they rallied to tie the score at 56-all by the end of the third period.

The Majors were ahead 65-61 with four minutes remaining when the Panthers from Birmingham collected twelve points to ice the game before the Majors could tally a single basket. Denvil Saulters led the Major scorers with 27 points.

The Sewanee Tigers took an early lead and held it the entire game in outplaying and outhustling the Majors.

Howard also led all the way and every Bulldog player scored in defeating the once victorious Millsaps team. Lack of reserves hurt the Majors, who used only six men against Howard's 10. Oscar Wally led individual scoring in the game with 19 points.

Only seven men made the trip with the Major squad. They were Denvil Saulters, Oscar Wally, N. R. Wally, Jack Speights, Read Jones, Johnny Morris, and Sonny Bailey.

frigerator, Bernice. In the first place, the tray was stuck. It looked as though it hadn't been defrosted in there in months. And then when I finally got the tray out, I had to get an ice pick to—

E: You're in your hand, Harry. What next.

S: I think I'll try this club.

W: Eek!

N: Harry, look at the mess you've made.

S: This hand was a mess to begin with. I can't help it if you set my drink right at my elbow.

N: Well, you should've been more careful. I'll get a rag. It's a shame they're not plastic cards, though; they wouldn't have been hurt the least little bit.

E: Your play, Bernice.

W: Don't be funny.

E: I'm not; Just four more tricks left. They're down two already, and they're going down two more. Bernice and I could use seven hundred points, Harry.

S: I won't play with wet cards. Besides, we couldn't possibly go down two more.

E: Let's see you get around this Ace of clubs and queen of trumps.

W: Why, Bill, that's talking across the board.

S: It certainly is. We'll have

INTRAMURALS

Sigs And Independents Dominate Second Half

The Kappa Sigs and the Independents have taken over the lead as the second division of the boys' intramural basketball program gets under way. Each team has two wins and no losses apiece.

During the first week of the second half, the Lambda Chi's defeated the Pikes by a small margin of four points. This was a thrilling game and the final score was 31 to 27. The Norsemen, a newly formed team that has entered the second half, showed their inexperience as the dominating Independents won 52 to 25.

The following night the Preachers won over the KA's, while the Kappa Sigs, the champions of the first half, gave the Pikes their second defeat by a score of 44 to 33. Wednesday night the Independents edged their tough rival, the Preachers, 34 to 30 in a game which proved to be an exciting one. In the second game of the night the Sigs had no difficulty in winning over the Norsemen.

Last week on Monday night, the Norsemen led the Lambda Chi's all four quarters to win for the first time as Olin Cook, Norsemen center, dropped in 26 points. The final score was 51 to 42. The Norsemen exhibited excellent teamwork in winning. The Pikes, who played the KA's in the second game, showed much improvement over their play in previous games as they defeated them 34 to 29. Like the Norsemen, they also demonstrated fine teamwork and rebounding skill.

Standings through Monday's games are as follows:

	won	lost
1. Kappa Sigs	2	0
2. Independents	2	0
3. Preachers	1	1
4. Lambda Chi	1	1
5. Pikes	1	2
6. Norsemen	1	2
7. KA	0	2

The remaining schedule is as follows:

7 PM

Feb. 15—LXA vs. Independents
Feb. 17—Norsemen vs. KA

Feb. 22—Pikes vs. Preachers

Feb. 23—KA vs. LXA

Feb. 24—LXA vs. Preachers

8 PM

Feb. 15—Preachers vs. Norsemen
Feb. 17—LXA vs. Kappa Sigs
Feb. 22—Kappa Sigs vs. Independents

Meet Southwestern Tonight; End Season Next Week

The Millsaps Majors will meet the Southwestern Lynx tonight for their final home game of the season in Buie gym. Earlier in the season, in a game played in Memphis, the Lynx defeated the Majors in a very hard-fought game.

Earlier this week the Majors played Mississippi College and Delta State. The Majors met the Chocs in the City Auditorium Tuesday night, and traveled to Delta State to meet the Statesmen last night.

The Majors will end the season next week with two home games to be played in the City Auditorium.

Next Tuesday, the Majors will meet the arch-rival Choctaws for the final game between the teams this year.

On Friday night the Majors clash with a very strong Delta State squad. The Statesmen have put together a very good record against some first-class competition.

A Light Question

Three years ago we heard the question asked: Why isn't there a stoplight at the North West street entrance to the campus at the "Juke"? Since that time we have seen a light installed at the North State entrance and one has more recently been placed at the entrance opposite the president's home.

No doubt there was some substantial reason for the installation of these lights at these particular places first. But, as yet, we have been unable to discover that reason. We must admit that one was needed at the State street entrance, and that the one in front of the president's home is handy—which is about all that can be said for it. Yet, how many students cross the street per day at either of these entrances? Perhaps twenty-five.

On the other hand, a large number of students go to the Juke in the mornings before 8 o'clock classes and find themselves stranded on that side of the street until the morning traffic rush subsides. For almost an hour there is absolutely no chance to cross the street. To the fellows who run the hundred in nine seconds this situation constitutes no grave problem, but those average ones of us are faced with the inevitable and unending dilemma of receiving an icy stare upon straggling to class fifteen minutes late every morning.

Nor is the problem limited to the student pedestrian. At noon every day there is a constant stream of automobiles backed to a point beyond Burton Hall for thirty or forty-five minutes, trying frantically to enter North West street during the noon rush. This situation should be remedied.

If a light is needed anywhere around the Millsaps campus, it is most certainly at this spot!

The Religion Is Coincidental

(From the Cornell Daily Sun, Cornell University)

"SEE the brave Christians defy Roman suppression—on Cinemascope! SEE the wicked splendor of ancient Rome—on Cinemascope! SEE the . . ." a huge ad for "The Robe" read in the New York Times recently. ". . . the force of an earthquake!" the ads proclaim of Martin Luther.

When some future historian or sociologist looks back on today's society, not the most insignificant aspect will be the fad for religion in commercial doses, starting over a year ago and apparently still on the climb. According to a recent report, more than a dozen major religious spectacles are on Hollywood's production schedule for the coming year. And "Crying in the Chapel" and "Vaya Con Dios" have already gotten a blistering trend underway in the record field. Bishop Vincent Sheen is slowly replacing Milton Berle, and now has his own magazine.

To some this trend is, despite its more crude manifestations, a good sign that the populace is "seeing the need of religion." But, as has been asked, "It may be boxoffice, but is it Bible?"

"Touch the Robe and become converted," is the message of "The Robe." Give 'em sex, noise, crowds, sentiment and lots of lightning and they'll be inspired," is the message of "Quo Vadis" and "Salome". "Cry your heart out (in the chapel) and you'll find contentment" is June Valli's message.

Our favorite is this hillbilly song in which the situation is: the lovers are married—to other people. Neither can get a divorce, so they must "sneak away" to see each other. "But God up above knows our love is true." We've heard people draw on religion to justify almost everything, but we're fairly certain that this is the first time it has been used to justify adultery.

But it's not too shocking. Any resemblance to religion, after all, is purely coincidental.

Busted Hopes

Overheard last Friday in the noon chow line:

Tom Pruitt, reaching for the crackers, conjectured thusly:

"Mrs. Stone, I'm going to make a better grade this semester."

Mrs. Stone replied grimly, "That's just what you think, boy!"

"Mam?"

Crackers crackled—particiles dangled—infinitives were split! Tom advanced uneasily on the soup with a disconcerted countenance and fistful of cracker crumbs.

License Questioned

Following is a letter to the Forty-niner, Long Beach (Calif.) State College:

"I thought last week's suggestion by one of your columnists . . . that the campus ladies be invited to view the alleged 'literary gems' to be found on the walls in the men's rest room was in very bad taste. I question the boundaries of literary license exercised by the responsible columnist."

That goes to show you that you can't go hunting anywhere you wish with a literary license!

On Beer and Sex

A survey conducted recently by Newsweek magazine indicated that beer and sex are less prominent on the average college campus nowadays.

We'll concede one point to the survey; we haven't seen a great amount of beer strolling about the Millsaps campus.

Or, to quote Minnie Farlow: "Now son, let's just face a few simple facts. . . ."

Other Trends

Other interesting facts discovered by the survey were that students are more serious about dating now than they once were; they go steady at an earlier age; necking is more open. The only rule at Northwestern dormitories or sororities is "that the couple must keep all four feet on the floor."

The "faddish agnostic" and the atheist of the twenties are in the minority now. Religion courses on most campuses are well filled, with more outstanding football players becoming active in religious activities.

Regarding world problems and politics, the survey noted these trends: "collegians devote little thought to international troubles or politics; many accept McCarthyism, although a goodly number in every institution question its methods. Students are wary of 'anything with a Red tinge!'" A Northwestern co-ed said, "you want to be popular, so naturally you don't express any screwy ideas. To be popular, you have to conform."

Ethics Sought

Comprehensive examinations at Millsaps affect students in a variety of ways. Some, after completing this exam, hang themselves; others suffer nervous breakdowns; a few enjoy the feeling of having accomplished the impossible; and others say frighteningly shocking things about the individuals who inflict these monstrosities which they regret very much after they have regained their cognitive equilibrium. Into this latter category obviously falls Edna Khayat, a victim of last semester's English comprehensive. She has posted a notice on the bulletin board seeking "ethics for today." Tiens! Tiens!

An Infamous Plot

A portion of the money procured from the "Million for Millsaps" drive will be used for the construction of needed buildings on the campus. We are all aware of that fact.

However, a fact which many of us haven't considered seriously is that part of this money will be used to raise the salaries of the professors at Millsaps. This is unmistakably a Gargantuan blunder on the part of the administration, and we intend to expose this contemptible conspiracy with all of its destructive manifestations.

Our first and most important reason for opposing this salary hike is that in so doing Millsaps would set a dangerous precedent for other schools in the state. Mississippi has, from time immemorial, held uncompromisingly to the venerated status of "forty-eighth" in teachers' pay in the nation. Such a bold move on our part would contribute substantially to advancing Mississippi to a position of "forty-seventh" or perhaps (heaven forbid) even higher. This would no doubt constitute the inception of a vicious left-wing movement; so, it should be stopped now. We must retain our traditional status at all costs!

Secondly, a boost in wages would tend to create an attitude of faculty-student equality from the teacher's viewpoint. This would never work! The teachers must be made to realize that our city garbage collectors are paid but a trifle more for a job for which they have spent many years in preparation compared to the professors' development. Every intelligent student is well aware of the fact that the college professor spends no time in preparation for his vocation, and, after receiving his degree, he never does any further work. Yes, we must assure ourselves that every teacher in Mississippi will be kept in his place!

Some of our teachers hold other jobs on the side. We should make certain that they continue to do that. By participating in diverse vocations, the professor is kept on his intellectual toes and is able to impart much of the erudition gained from other ventures to knowledge-hungry students. The professor's scope of learning is definitely limited when he is enabled to earn a decent livelihood by holding only one trifling job—such as teaching.

Thirdly—we're crazy as heck! We feel that the proposed increase in salary for Millsaps' professors is one of the best provisions included in the "Million" campaign, and on this point we are confident that we voice the opinion of the majority of students at Millsaps.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

by Dick Bibler

"I saw you foul him—THAT'S A FOUL."

A Simian Tale

(From the Heights Daily News, New York University)

.... Communications from London . . . provided the startling news that the bearded fellows who dig up fossils have made a gross error — the mighty Piltdown man, one of the few links between man and monkey, was no man but mostly monkey.

This is startling news indeed, for Mr. Piltdown has held a revered position in biology and history texts used on this campus.

Even mighty Sampson should be stirred. Milleniums ago, with the jawbone of an ass, he made a monkey of man. Now the jawbone of a monkey has made an ass of man.

Cast Is Announced By Goss For Players' Next Production

Professor Lance Goss this week announced the cast for the Millsaps Players current production, The Rivals, by Richard B. Sheridan.

The men's parts announced are:

Fred DeLong, senior of Tutwiler, as Sir Anthony Absolute.

Carl Welch, sophomore of Jackson, as Captain Jack Absolute.

Jack Lofton, sophomore of Star, as Faulkland.

Bob Myers, senior of Jackson, as Bob Acres.

Harold Hutchinson, sophomore of Jackson, as Sir Lucius O. Trigger.

Walter Ely, sophomore of Greenville, as Fag.

The Womens Parts

Anne Hand, senior of Jackson, as Mrs. Maloprop.

Wally James, junior of Newton, as Lydia Languish.

Bettye Jo Powell Will Attend U. N. Meet Next Week

Bettye Jo Powell will leave tomorrow for a week to be spent in Washington and at the United Nations in New York. She is one of the fifty students selected by the National Methodist Conference to make this trip.

First, she will go to New York City, where she will attend sessions of the United Nations. At this time she will have the opportunity to talk to the delegates about the problems of the world. She will then go to Washington where she will sit in on sessions of the Congress of the United States. Some time during her stay there, the group will have a conference with President Eisenhower.

Bettye Jo is President of the North Mississippi Methodist Youth Fellowship and is National Outreach Chairman for the MYF.

Students Are Urged To Contribute To Stylus, To Be Issued April 14

Students have approximately a week and a half in which to contribute to Stylus, the campus literary magazine.

The deadline for articles to be considered for the Spring edition is March 3, according to editor Frank Mangum. This edition is scheduled to be distributed April 14.

Manuscripts may be submitted to the editor or to any member of the English department. All contributions will be given careful consideration.

Stylus is published twice a year. The first semester edition contained six articles by freshmen, five by sophomores, ten by juniors, and one by a senior.

Mary Grantham is business manager of Stylus and Miss Thomasina Blissard is faculty advisor.

Barbara Mae Jones, sophomore of Jackson, as Julia.

Kay Fort, junior of Jackson, as Lucy.

Three men's parts remain to be cast. They are: David Thomas, the coachman, and an errand boy. Any one interested in trying out for these parts should get in touch with Professor Goss.

The first rehearsal of the play was held in the Christian Center Tuesday night, February 16.

Additional Staff Members Named By P&W Heads

George Hunt, business manager for the Purple and White, has announced that the new business staff for this semester will be as follows: Bobby Smith and Read Jones, assistant business managers; Robbin Smith, Margaret Woods, Fred Abraham, Bill Lampert, Dick Foxworth, Jo Glyn Hughes, Betty Landfair, Jackie Pierce, John Evans, Luke Wasson, and Martha New.

Additional members of the editorial staff as announced by the editor, R. L. McCarter, are as follows: Mary Lou Flowers, Frances Campbell, Sylvia Schrock, Reynolds Cheney, Norman Creel, Martha Ann Crawford and Pat Morgan.

Other students interested in working on the P & W are invited to attend the staff meeting on Thursday afternoon at 1:30.

WUS Secretary To Visit Campus, Speak In Chapel

Miss Marleen Bengal, field secretary for the World University Service, will arrive here next Wednesday evening and will remain until Friday. She will be featured as speaker in chapel. Miss Bengal is traveling throughout the United States for the WUS.

The purposes of Miss Bengal's visit are to help make plans for WUS activities, to report on what our money has done, and to create international understanding in general, not just through WUS.

Anyone wishing to interview Miss Bengal or ask her to speak to clubs or classes should contact Jane Wiggins or Theresa Terry.

Editor Announces Distribution Date For '54 Bobashela

Fred Delong, editor of the Bobashela, announced today that the Millsaps Annual will be distributed the third week in May.

All deadlines set by Tucker Printing Company and the Alabama Engraving Company have been met thus far. The last section, which is the athletics section, will be sent before the April 1st deadline, and the Bobashela should be released during the third week in May which is examination week.

'Million' Drive Opens Today; Over $600,000 Is Pledged

The Millions for Millsaps Campaign officially begins today, February 19th. As the kickoff is announced, over $600,000 has been subscribed both in cash and pledges. The program is scheduled to be concluded March 14, and campaign leaders predict that the goal of $1,000,000 will be substantially over-subscribed.

The early success of the "Million" Campaign is attributed to the excellent leadership of Bishop and Mrs. Marvin Franklin, who have both proved an inspiration to the campaign; to President Finger, who predicted in his inaugural address the project at the forefront of Mississippi Methodism; and to the untiring efforts of the pastors and laymen of the districts and charges. Methodists, alumni, and friends of the college have been very enthusiastic as is shown by contributions of retired ministers, small children, the unanimous pledging of the faculty of Millsaps, and the cooperation and pledges of students. To date, 39 subscriptions of individuals for amounts of over $1,000 have been received. Many non-Methodists have also contributed substantially to the Million Campaign, thus showing appreciation for the needs of the college.

Several of the memorials suggested by the Millions office have been sold. Some have been sponsored by churches and others by individuals. To date, 36 churches have over-subscribed their quotas.

Sentiments of campaign leaders are expressed by President Finger in this manner: "Methodists support their institutions! This is our tradition. We are known for our good works. We have pioneered in Christian higher education and our country is richer because of it. Mississippi Methodists will meet the challenges of the present and the future as our fathers were equal to the opportunities of the past. We will discharge our responsibilities with readiness and with joy. No better investment can be made. In all of our efforts the appreciation of all of us for Millsaps College will be increased and our labors can be blessed to the glory of God."

Audrey's Annex

By Audrey Jennings

A Millsaps College Bridge Tournament! What a glorious recollection it stirs up! Three glorious evenings of stimulating competition, pleasant companionship, and brilliant intellectual achievements.

But hark, what are these rumblings I hear in the distance? No announcements of our tournament . . . where has the stimulating competition gone? . . . will we have no pleasant companionship or brilliant intellectual achievements? Student opinions are being formed, tempers are boiling up. Certainly it must be granted that this is a busy semester, many significant events are already scheduled. But surely, certainly, no one would be brutal enough to deal such a cruel blow as to deny the event of the year to the faithful fans.

Vigorous Campaign

I hereby open sparkling campaign No. 2463867, to wit, resolved, the bridge fans and followers of Millsaps College should be allowed to hold the second annual bridge tournament especially inasmuch as having only a first annual bridge tournament would seem rather ridiculous.

Some of you may be wondering just how all of this fits in with society. Well, let me tell you about it. Society involves the interaction of social groups, social groups involve people, and bridge involves people interacting. There, it's perfectly simple; but I won't try to claim that it's logical. At any rate, the Society Department of the Purple and White heartily endorses the continuation of that marvelous event, the bridge tournament.

Names in the News

People with names for publishing have dropped off considerably in the recent past. We have recently noticed a revival of interest, however, in the persons of Olive Coker, Jimmy Jones and that renowned speech professor, Lance Goss. Any others who care to be added will be heartily welcomed.

Phi Mu Awards

Epsilon of Phi Mu awarded trophies yesterday at their philo-mathemathian hour to Mary Elizabeth Burton and Mary Warren Huntly for model Pledge and High Scholarship respectively. Both are freshmen from Jackson.

Pledgings

Robert Smith of Crystal Springs and Rod Johnson of Philadelphia were recently pledged to Theta Eta of Lambda Chi Alpha.

Alpha Iota of Pi Kappa Alpha announces the pledging of Bryd Hillman of Union, Luke Wason of Kosciusko, and Bill Lampton of Columbia. All are freshmen.

Anne and Jack

Anne Hand, Chi O, and Jack Dunbar, Pike, are repinned. Both are seniors, Anne is from Jackson and Jack is from Sumner.

Lambda Chi's To Have First Party Tomorrow At Arthur Murray's

The Lambda Chi's will give their first party of the semester tomorrow night from eight until twelve. The party will be an informal affair at Arthur Murray's Dance Studio and will feature dancing and playing cards as entertainment.

Roy Parker, social chairman, is in charge; and Dr. and Mrs. R. R. Priddy and Dr. and Mrs. William Brett will chaperone.

"May I hold your hand?"

"Of course not! This isn't Palm Sunday."

"Well, it isn't Independence Day, either."

"Did you run?"

"No, I gave her another helping."

Press Box At LSU Named One Of Best In The Nation

(From The Daily Reveille, Student Newspaper at LSU, by Sam Hanna.)

Light flickered through the small window in the elevator that whisked 2,000 pounds of newsmen to their destination high above Tiger Stadium at LSU.

And the goal was one of the most adequate press boxes in the nation. For there, 100 feet above street level, on the Ole War Skule campus, are facilities for 184 working journalists and a flock of radio men, TV personnel, visiting scouts, photographers, spotters and statisticians who work the football games at LSU.

Joe Sportswriter stepped lightly from the elevator that drew to a stop at the bottom level of the press box, which extends from the 20 yard-line to the 20—a distance of 180 feet.

The bottom deck is for Joe and his buddies, who put the LSU Tigers in the headlines, and the top deck is for the broadcasters, newsmen, and other officials.

Joe Sportswriter took his position at the first of the two rows of tables. The rear row is elevated to a height so anyone passing in front of the second row will be clearly out of line of vision. Every seat is a perfect one for following the game and it gives Joe the feeling that he is sitting directly above the field.

Joe has no posts, columns, or other types of uprights in front of him that would block his view and the latest type of continuous fluorescent lighting fixtures are installed, assuring him a "better than daylight" condition.

While Joe is working in style on the bottom deck, Robert Radioman isn't suffering on the top deck. Robert has four broadcasting rooms which are acoustically treated in the most modern system of sound-proofing.

The scouts room and the public address system headquarters are also housed on the top deck in acoustically treated rooms and beyond these is Phil Photographer's gallery where there is ample space for many of the large and modern types of cameras. The camera sections are at the north and south ends of the gallery section.

Like Joe Sportswriter, Phil and Robert have rest rooms and a snack bar, storage areas, drinking fountains, and fluorescent lighting.

There's no chance for Joe, Phil, or Robert to drop anything from the press box for a protective screen stretches the entire length of the "house in the heavens." Mr. Radioman has plate glass in front of his booth.

Joe, Phil, and Robert don't have concrete floors to tire their feet either. The floor is covered with "Mastipave," a very hard and durable material, similar to but stronger than linoleum, offering a resiliency for the comfort of Joe and his friends.

His table is covered with asbestos boarding, bound on the edge with aluminum moldings. There are no leg supports to interfere with Joe's comfort as the ish devotion to the profession and all that it means is an inspiration to those that knew him.

Nurtured in this atmosphere of education and culture by kind and gentle parents it was only natural that the teaching profession should attract daughter Mildred.

Receives Master's

Following her graduation from high school, she entered M.S.C.W. from which college she received her B.A. degree. She received her Masters' degree from Duke University in 1941, but she has also done extensive graduate work at the University of Colorado and the University of Wisconsin.

Early in life she recognized the teacher's obligation to perpetuate the intellectual, moral, and spiritual growth so essential to achievement in the profession. For many years she taught at Central High School in Jackson. Many illustrious citizens including the current "Man of the Year", Van Richardson, came within the sphere of her influence and excellent guidance at Central.

Life In School

The element of chance played little part in the fact that Miss Morehead is professor of English and Dean of Women at Millsaps.

She has literally spent her life at school. When she first saw the light of day, it was at old Panola A. H. S. At the time, her father, the late Mr. M. E. Morehead was superintendent of the then thriving institution.

For more than half a century, Mr. Morehead devoted his life to progressive education in Mississippi and, until his recent death, remained active in educational circles with a mental alertness that often astounded his young contemporaries. His unself-tables are supported on brackets.

And if it's cold weather at Baton Rouge, all Joe has to do is turn on an electric heater under his table. Furthermore, Joe has no cleaning bill when he leaves the Bengal press box, for coat hooks are located directly behind the respective seats. The box is spic and span for each game.

And if a downpour of rain covers Baton Rouge, Joe Sportswriter is as snug as if he were at home by the fireside. A large overhang is above and in front of Joe's second sports home to guard against inclement weather.

And Joe's job is made much easier by the efficiency of LSU's sports publicity director, Carl "Ace" Higgins and his able assistant, Charley Magee.

For these two see that Joe is provided with a program, line-up, order of substitution, historical data on both teams, and necessary material on the Ole War Skule.

But Joe has to work the football games without his lady friend or wife along. Traditionally, the SEC rules that no women are allowed in the newspaper section of press boxes in the loop.

Tragic Death Of Jimmie Lee Witnessed By Disturbed Freshman

By Caxton Doggett

(Editor's note: this is the first in a series of articles selected from Dr. White's collection of manuscripts written by former journalism students at Milsaps).

He was clad only in long winter underwear and a pair of horn-rimmed spectacles, and he was running faster than he had ever run before. On, on, he sped across the campus in the gathering winter twilight. The cinders and the rocks were cutting his bare feet, but he didn't know it, and he didn't care. A co-ed, enroute for the girl's dormitory, paused in astonishment as the fleet white figure approached her. "You better run like hell," he panted as he dashed by her, never pausing in his flight. But the girl, peering through the dusky light, could see nothing to run from. He was nearing the college hang-out now, but his speed never slackened. Clearing the three steps in a single bound, he slipped inside, slammed the door, and leaned against it, his breath coming and going in hoarse, rasping gasps.

A pool game stopped suddenly. A football player paused, a coke raised half way to his mouth. Noisy laughter and conversation died abruptly, leaving mouths hanging open. Then the strange figure found his voice.

"He's killed him, boys. He killed Jimmie Lee! I saw him with blood on the knife. He's crazy. Tried to get me. He's after me now." The voice rose to a shrill wail of terror.

Gradually, in broken, disconnected sentences, they got the story out of Brooks L. He had been in his room in the freshman dormitory, studying. Hearing an uproar in the hall, he stepped out to investigate. What he saw was truly a horrible sight. One freshman, with thick white foam dripping from his mouth, was waving a long butcher knife in the air, emitting blood-curdling yells. Another was staggering about, his shirt front stained a bright red. It was then that the possessor of the dripping knife saw Brooks L. and made for him that Brooks L., with a scream of terror turned and fled. In no time flat he was down three flights of stairs and away across the campus.

These are graphic quotations from the sort of literature that is readily available to every six-year-old in America. In the November issue of the LADIES' HOME JOURNAL, Dr. Frederic Wertham, consulting psychiatrist of the Department of Hospitals, New York City, examines the sadism and pornography present in "What Parents Don't Know About Comic Books".

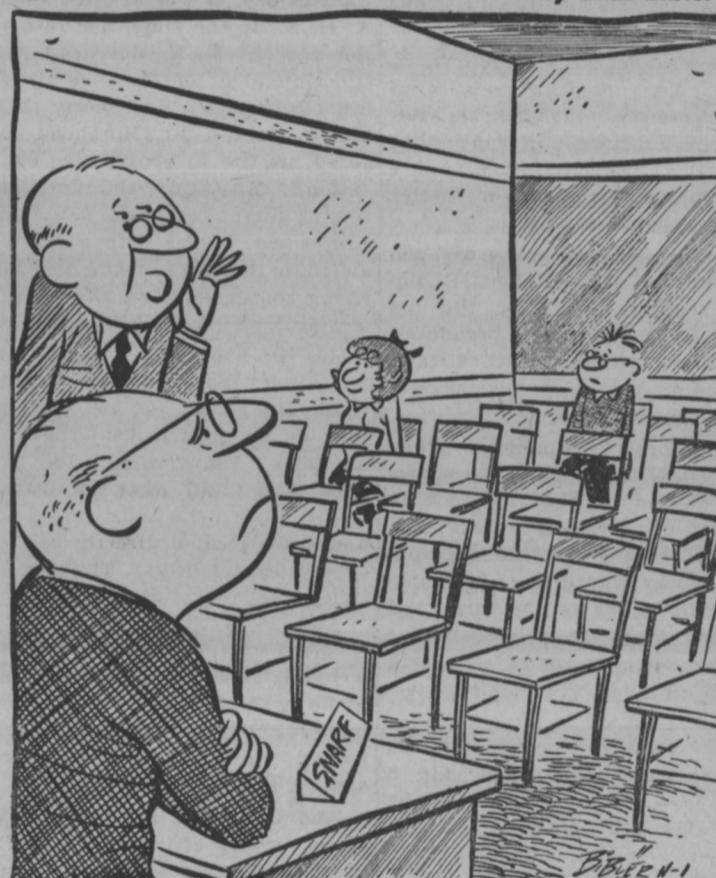

In the 90,000,000 "comic" books American children read every month, says Dr. Wertham, are examples of every kind of perverted and criminal behavior. Children are actually taught how to break laws by illustration. One publication, for instance gave a careful, technical description of shoplifting devices; "I pushed Yesterday, both Jimmie Lee and Brooks L. and the "murderer," Doyle Mattox, were attending classes as usual. Brooks L. was walking with a limp and wore house slippers. All three were the center of attention wherever they went.

If You Wish To Make A's Don't Bother To Read This!

Add your last semesters quality index to the number of hours you are now taking in your major subject. Divide this sum by your class standing — 1 for freshmen, 2 for sophomores, etc. Using this quotient as your key number, find your fortune below.

1 and below — Beware of your major professor — sneak that he is. He has smuggled into your course several term papers, unadvertised in the catalog.

2. Drop all eight o'clock classes. You need the extra sleep. You have studied too late for that class which requires your rising early. The course being dropped, you go to bed earlier, rise later.

3. Watch the bulletin board. A coded message from Professor X will indicate that he can be approached concerning an A, assured for a fee.

4. Rid yourself of "annotated" text books immediately. Professors have gotten the word. Campus-wide book inspections are soon to be held with all such books to be confiscated and burned.

5. Deny all subsidization rumors. Do not be seen passing or receiving money or checks especially with school officials.

6. Keep your mouth shut about that chapel cut. No one will ever know. A secret organization is recruiting people off the street to sit in all vacant chapel seats. This society is supported by donations from alumni who suffered in the past.

7. Spend your time wisely. Avoid the grill as the plague. Haunt the library. Study twelve hours a day. (Disregard these instructions if you made below 3.00 last semester.)

How To Be Elected

(From the Ladies Home Journal)

According to one cynical theory of U.S. political practice—to which a considerable number of politicians unfortunately still adhere—the whole science of getting elected to office can be summarized in the most primitive kind of questions and answers:

Q. Mr. Politician, what do you favor?

A. Motherhood.

Q. What are you opposed to?

A. Sin.

Q. What kind of boy were you?

A. Barefoot.

Q. Where did you learn to love America?

A. At my mother's knee, the little red schoolhouse, and the little white church.

Q. Why are you running for office?

A. Because of the inspiration of my ever patient wife.

Q. What will you strive for if elected?

A. To serve my beloved country to the best of my humble ability.

Q. And when will you disclose your specific program?

A. In due time.

Folklore has it that the politician is a cliche-spouting hack who stands foursquare on the principles of democracy and his admiration for the gr-r-r-and and glor-r-r-r-rious Fourth of July. He yields to no man in his love for the great American heritage, the memory of the brave men at Valley Forge, the Monroe Doctrine, the Stars and Stripes, babies, dogs and horses. He deplores murder, arson, cancer, drought, the Japanese beetle, and hoof and mouth disease.

back my sleeve in a lightning-like move and deftly slipped the pen under a wide elastic band which I wore under my forearm."

Although publishers of the comics defend themselves by saying that crime is always punished in their picture stories, the punishment is nearly always incidental to the many pages of featured brutality, Dr. Wertham points out. He blames comic books for the increase in violent juvenile delinquency within the last five years, and cities crimes committed by children who admitted they'd gotten the idea from a comic book.

When the question of censorship of comic books arose, says Dr. Wertham, the issue became not the distribution of harmful literature but the infringement of freedom of the press. Actually, he reminds, all magazines and newspapers for adults are censored in some way or other by the editors—but the children's reading matter is allowed to go its untrammeled way. Legal control of their publication, he believes, is an absolute necessity if the glorification of crime and violence in the minds of children is to be curbed.

MAJORS IN FINAL HOME GAME

DENVIL SAULTERS

Pictured above is the high point-man of the Major squad this year, junior guard Denvil Saulters. He will be in the starting line-up tonight in the game against Delta State.

Spring Football Practice Begins; Several Lettermen Are Returning

Spring football, absent from Millsaps for several years, has once again returned to the campus. Practice sessions will get underway Monday, with a large group of lettermen leading the parade of about 35 men reporting for the workouts.

A complete list of those who will take part in the practice sessions is not known, but most of the numeral winners of last year will be back for next fall, and most of these lettermen should report for the conditioning work this spring.

Coach Sammy Bartling has not announced definitely how long practice will be held, but he said that it would probably not last for more than three weeks.

Although fundamentals and conditioning will be stressed, Coach Bartling does not believe that there will be much "rough" scrimmaging.

It is hoped that sociology professor George Maddox will be able to assist in the coaching, particularly in instructing the linemen.

Actually, the general policy of the school is against these spring workouts; and it has been only after the insistence of many of the players that the practices are being held. Many of the men have been holding private practices during this week.

Only One Senior Slated For Action In Final Contest

The Millsaps Majors will close the current basketball season tonight with a game against the powerful Delta State Greenies in the city auditorium.

Although the Deltans defeated the Majors by a large margin earlier in the season in Cleveland, the home of the Greenies, the Majors will be trying hard for another victory for the win column.

Leading the Majors in their final game tonight will be the junior college transfer, Oscar Walley, the only senior on the varsity squad. Walley has been captain during many of the games in which he has played during the last two years, and he has served the team at the guard position.

The high scorer this season for the Majors will start at one of the forward positions. He is Denvil Saulters, also a junior college transfer, and the only man on the squad classified as a junior. He is the only member of the team to score more than 30 points in a single game this season.

Starting at the other guard position will be either Read Jones, or Jack Speights, both sophomores. N. R. Walley, cousin of Oscar, will probably get the starting assignment at the other forward position. N. R. is a sophomore.

John Morris will probably start at center. Morris, the second highest scorer on the team, is a sophomore.

Three freshmen, Sonny Bailey, Luke Wasson, and Eddie Khayat should see action during the game.

JOHNNY MORRIS

Johnny Morris, sophomore from Vicksburg, and second high scorer for the Majors this season, will be seen in action tonight in city auditorium when the Majors play their final game of the season against the Delta Statesmen.

Sports Views

By John Morris

We would like to pay tribute to Oscar Wally, the only senior on our basketball team this year.

Oscar has had to give the team a lot of leadership, particularly since the majors had such a poor won-loss record this year. He has played nearly every minute of every game, and yet he has given no complaint that we know of.

Wally played a fast game of junior college basketball on a good team. In coming to Millsaps, he might have stepped down some from the junior college pace.

He did not come to Millsaps to play basketball, but he did play, and play hard during the two past seasons.

In doing so, he has gained the admiration of his teammates, Coach Bartling, and nearly all of the people with whom he has come into contact during his brief stay here.

We would like to wish Oscar all of the luck in the world after his graduation, and we are sure that his position on the basketball team will be hard to fill.

New to the squad, fresh from high school, this embryo athlete gave it all he had all day. He wasn't the new, flashing star on the horizon, but he tried.

Into the dressing room and the boys were collapsing wearily. Our hero was as fresh as the proverbial daisy.

"Heck, I feel as good as I did at seven this morning."

Baleful glances were turned on him and the new recruit added hastily, "Boy, did I feel awful this morning."

The Athletic Controversy

Last Sunday there appeared in the Jackson Daily News a story to the effect that Millsaps College had threatened to sever athletic relationships with Mississippi College in the future. The reason given for this action by the Millsaps athletic committee was that there exists at the present time reasonable cause for doubt that Mississippi College is abiding by the rules of the Dixie Conference regarding the granting of financial aid to athletes. The Millsaps committee merely asked for a statement from the Mississippi College athletic committee regarding this matter.

In answer, Coach James Allen resorted to personalities, charging that certain athletes at Millsaps College have received financial aid from the school. In this same statement, Coach Allen all but admits that aid is being granted to his basketball players.

We hope that Mr. Allen's answer does not represent the official position of Coach Robinson nor of Mississippi College. We frankly don't believe that Mississippi College wishes to end the athletic competition between the two schools any more than we do. We also believe that they will desire to see this matter cleared without any undue friction.

Regarding this matter, may we ask the Millsaps student body to conduct themselves in a fashion becoming to intelligent persons and to leave the solution of this problem to the proper officials. We are confident that if the matter is handled properly, the facts will eventually be discovered.

Following is the official statement released this week by the Administration and the Athletic Committee at Millsaps College:

"In view of the charges made by one of the Mississippi College coaches, as quoted in the February 14 issue of the Jackson Daily News, a frank public statement as to the athletic policy at Millsaps appears to be in order.

"We do not regard it as unethical for colleges to grant athletic scholarships if they do so openly and in accordance with the rules of the conferences to which they belong. We do regard it as unethical for a college 'committed to a program of strict amateurism in all athletics,' in the words of the chairman of the Mississippi College athletic committee, to use players who are receiving financial aid from any source because of their athletic ability and participation.

"Prior to World War II, Millsaps openly gave athletic scholarships, and we presume Mississippi College did likewise. Neither belonged to any conference that prohibited such action. Since the formation of the Dixie Conference and adoption of the present amateur program, to the best of our knowledge no Millsaps athlete has received financial aid from any source for athletic participation.

"Millsaps College has one coach and athletic director who is in charge of all sports. There are no assistant coaches. One member of the faculty, teaching a full load of classes in another department, gave some of his afternoons to helping with the football team during the season. We recognize that one man cannot reasonably be expected to handle the entire athletic program, and we hope to add an assistant coach next year.

"One student receives $50 per semester to assist the coach in planning and supervising the intramural program. One student receives $50 per semester to handle athletic publicity. Six other students receive $50 per semester each for assisting in Physical Education classes. These positions are usually but not necessarily held by varsity athletes. They are identical with forty-one other positions as assistants in the various departments of the college, which likewise pay $50 per semester, or approximately 30 cents per hour for the work performed.

"Some students have won scholarships in competitive examinations open to all high school seniors given by the college each year and have later participated in athletics. The college has 29 endowed scholarships listed on pages 21-23 of the college catalog. These are awarded by a faculty committee upon application on the basis of need and other conditions as stated in the catalog. There is no discrimination in favor of or against athletes in these awards. A list of the persons holding these scholarships is attached. Four of the twenty-nine have participated in varsity athletics. During the first semester there were thirty-one of these awards, and six athletes were on the list.

"Other than those mentioned above, there are no campus jobs or other sources of financial aid to athletes. We will welcome investigation of our records by any responsible person and interviews with any of our players as to their reasons for attending Millsaps and the sources of their funds used to cover their educational expenses.

"The Mississippi College coach mentions two Millsaps athletes by name and implies that they came to Millsaps because of financial aid offered for athletic participation. We attach statements from these two students as to the source of the funds for their college education, which clearly demonstrate that this idea is false."

"I would like to say, that as long as I have been at Millsaps College, I have not received any money or athletic scholarship. The only help that I receive from the school is a one hundred dollar endowed scholarship and a fifty dollar job as coaching assistant. For the fifty dollars I assist the coach and teach a physical education class. The only other support that I have is from my wife, who works for the Bell Telephone Company.

"The reason I gave up my scholarship at the University of Mississippi and came to Millsaps is that I didn't feel that I could get the kind of education that I wanted while playing football on an athletic scholarship."

Sincerely, John Lowery

"I hereby swear that I have never received any financial or material help from Millsaps College, any alumnus, or any person or group of persons for competing in varsity sports at Millsaps.

"All the money toward my education has been furnished either by my parents or through a summer job which had absolutely no connection with any of the above mentioned."

John W. Morris

"The rest of the coach's charges are less definite. He is quoted as saying that 'a present member of the Millsaps' starting lineup has told me that he is getting financial aid at Millsaps,' that 'one of the best athletes Millsaps has ever had was brought in and the president agreed to assist him in school,' and that 'definite proof can be given that athletes at both schools have been helped by the alumni in the past.' We have written the coach asking for such proof and for the names of the persons involved. If investigation discloses that there has been any departure from the letter or spirit of our amateur athletic policy in specific cases, such persons will be barred from further athletic participation at Millsaps.

"We regret the implication in the coach's statement that a similar amateur policy has not been in effect at Mississippi College. A careful reading of his statements reveals no denial of the receipt of financial aid for athletic participation by present members of the Mississippi College basketball team. The athletic director and chairman of the athletic committee have likewise made no denial.

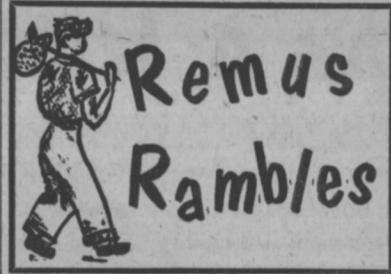

"This coach has been at Mississippi College only a few months and perhaps is not familiar with the traditional policy of amateurism there. Certainly he does not appear to be sympathetic toward a program of amateur athletics, for he is quoted as saying that 'it is impossible to tell whether an alumnus is helping a player or not.' We do not agree that this is at all impossible. We believe the coach, if he does not already know, can easily learn from his players the sources of the funds used for their education.

"We should sincerely regret the necessity of any curtailment of athletic relations between Millsaps and Mississippi College, which we think have been of great value to both schools over a period of years. For a considerable portion of that period victories by Millsaps were quite rare. In recent years, prior to the 1953-54 season, the situation has been reversed. The outcome of the games, however, need have no bearing on the continuance of athletic relations between the two schools, so long as we can be assured that they are competing on an equal basis.

"Contrary to the implication of published reports, the Athletic Committee at Millsaps has made no charges against Mississippi College, and has taken no final action with regard to the scheduling of basketball games with Mississippi College next year. The committee has decided, however, that such games would be unwise and that they will not be scheduled unless complete assurance can be given by the administration of Mississippi College that the amateur policy as stated above will be strictly adhered to.

"We will gladly accept such assurances at face value. Under Dixie Conference rules it is up to each school to police itself, and we feel sure that such assurances would also be accepted by the Dixie Conference and would eliminate all question as to the eligibility of the Mississippi College basketball team to participate in Dixie Conference tournaments.

"We have attempted to make this a frank and factual statement. We hope that a similar statement, rather than counter-charges, assumptions, and insinuations, will be forthcoming from Mississippi College in order that the fine athletic relations that have prevailed between the two schools in the past may be continued in the future."

In the past I have heard P & W editors gripe about a lack of student interest in the paper. They have said, also, that it was difficult to get the students to give time and work to its publication. I must admit, consequently, that I was somewhat apprehensive about this problem when I took the job.

However, I received a shock last Thursday when we held our first staff meeting. A large number of former staff members showed up, and an amazingly large group of new students who plan to work with us this year were present.

We plan to continue to present at least one student-faculty poll each week. If any student has a worthwhile question which he would like to be presented, I would appreciate his letting us know about it.

We are going to try, too, to present more features each week as was suggested by the opinion poll last week. However, in a paper with limited space, such as the P & W, the presentation of more columns and features necessitates, to a large extent, the omission of pictures; so, unless we can obtain timely shots, we shall probably sacrifice the frequent use of pictures for more feature space. This is, of course, only a tentative plan; and it might not work out that way at all.

I have appointed an editorial advisory board, with which I plan to collaborate in the gathering of material and in the writing of editorials which deal with state and national topics. We hope to discover subjects of interest to the students by the student polls. In the writing of these editorials on national topics, we are going to try to present the problem as best we see it; to present as many good arguments, both pro and con, as we are able to gather; and to say, perhaps, what we think about it. I am personally inclined to feel that we have isolated ourselves at Millsaps with no real concern for problems outside our day-to-day activities. I might be wrong, but the students with whom I have discussed the idea feel that it is worth a try.

I feel duty-bound to plug an outstanding play this week. Two years ago Kit Kat attended the Vicksburg Little Theatre's production of the "Showboat" melo-drama, "Gold in the Hills." I have never lived through such a hilariously enjoyable evening.

The show, which opened first in 1936, is a perennial favorite of tourists from everywhere in the U. S. The cast, which has remained the same throughout the years, has achieved an almost professional skill, particularly Shoupie Habeeb, the villian, and Dr. Walter Johnston, the hero.

The audience enters the spirit of "Showboat" with great gusto, pelting the hero with peanuts and hisses, cheering the heroine, warning the hero and harmonizing with the Barbershop Quartette. The picturesque setting offered by the Steamer Sprague, world's largest towboat and mammoth sternwheeler, anchored at the Vicksburg water-front, adds much color to the extravaganza.

The show opens Wednesday, March 3, with performances scheduled each successive Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Monday nights through April 3, and reservations may be obtained by writing to Stuart McCloskey, Vicksburg Little Theatre, Box 968.

A disturbed student, John Meehan, scribbling in The Cardinal, University of Louisville's student newspaper, discovered in a personal interview with Dr. Fuller Lore, ace scholar of professorology at the university that professors are, after all, human beings.

John found Dr. Lore perched on the top shelf in the library.

"Sir," John asked the brilliant scholar, "is it really true that you have never passed a student?"

"No," said Dr. Lore, blushing modestly, "that is not true. When I was a young inexperienced professor there was a chap named Einstein who got a 'D' in one of my courses—Biology 101, I believe it was. But it has never happened since."

"How have you managed all these years, your professorship?"

"It was easy," he said. "When I first began to teach, I used the basic technique—teaching from one book, and taking my exam questions from another."

"And you still use that method?"

"No. Others began to copy my methods; so I had to switch to a more original approach. In class I would speak basic English, always being careful never to use words of more than two syllables. Then, when exam time came I would take my tests straight from Webster."

"That's pretty darn dirty, sir."

"Ain't it so?" he beamed. "And you should see some of my dumber students struggling over such questions as, 'Is the primary architectural structurism of Drod-hed ellipsoid or parallelepiped?'"

"And did you always have the support of the administration?"

"No, there were those who rebelled against my methods. At one time I was forced to stop teaching my regular courses and made to teach Basket Weaving 101 and Radio Announcing 203."

"And did you like that?"

"Well, I didn't like it at first, but when it became evident that I had a student who was going to pass each of the courses, I made a quick and wise change."

"You started giving harder assignments?"

"Nope. Have you ever taken Barbed-Wire Basket Weaving 101, or Babylonian-Greek Radio Announcing 203?"

"Dr. Lore, do you anticipate any trouble this year at exam time?"

"No, I believe that the students are as dumb as ever, and I always keep a few tricks up my sleeve."

John was not satisfied. He dashed out onto the campus to interview the students.

His first contact was with Bratwurst Buxom, queen of the freshman class.

"Brat," he said, "are you going to let professors like Lore flunk you this year?"

Brat raised a troubled brow, and replied firmly, "Tee, hee, hee."

Heartened by the enthusiastic response of Miss Buxom, he left to search out other students truly representative of the great school.

He met Scheherazade Syrupe, woman about the campus and dignified cosmopolite. He rushed to her for intelligent counsel.

"Sherry—?"

"Don't mind if I do, although I prefer beer. Meet you at the bar in three minutes."

As John sat in Sherman's sipping his goodie he realized that Dr. Lore was a fraud. His record was not outstanding—with this bunch he didn't even have to try!

27 Men Report As Spring Drills Start At Millsaps

Spring football practice has gotten underway this week, with twenty-seven men reporting for the first workout which was held Monday.

Most of the men were lettermen, but there were a few non-lettermen and "beginners". One of the new players who should help out a lot is Luke Wasson, freshman from Kosciusko. Wasson made all Choctaw Conference in high school. He plays at the tackle position.

Coach Bartling put his charges through a hard workout on the opening day of these practices, and this first practice was highlighted by an hour and a half scrimmage.

Coach Bartling put his charges

Jo Nall, Cary Stewart, Ann Orson, Betty Pearson.

Lighting: Cliff Rigby and Ben McCarty, Co-Chairmen; Mary Sidney Johnson, Warren Wasson, Steve Collins, Shirley Brown, Powers Moore, R. W. McCarley.

Reading and Study Aids; Vocational Guidance Is Offered To Students

All students interested in improving reading and study skills are invited to make use of facilities which have been set up in the basement of the Millsaps Library, on Monday afternoon from 2 to 5.

Students interested in vocational counseling are invited to receive this service through the Dean of Student's office.

Students interested in either type of aid should contact Miss Morehead or Dr. McCracken.

Majorette Club Elects Officers; Wallace Is Prexy

On Wednesday, February 17, the Majorette Club elected officers for the coming year. Those elected were Ivy Wallace, President; Lucy Robinson, Vice-president; Mary Lynn Graves, Secretary-treasurer; and Betty Jo Powell, reporter.

Millsaps High School Day Department Heads Named

Plans for the Millsaps High School Day are in the final stage, and last-minute adjustments were made at a meeting of the High School Day Committee at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

The Millsaps High School Day Committee asked that all Millsaps students invite friends and relatives to spend the weekend with them and attend the High School day functions. If students will cooperate in this undertaking, an excellent attendance will be assured.

The student committee, already including Tommy Woodard, Howard Cheek, Edna Khayat, Dee Ford, Sam Jones, Sid Head, Nancy Peacock, Jack Dunbar, Betty Jo Powell, Ann McInvale, Lucy Robinson, and R. L. McCarter was expanded. Chairmen of the different departments were named as follows: Exhibits, Mr. Hardin; Tests, Dr. Musgrave; Registration, Dr. Wallace; Variety Program, Dr. Moore; Food, Mr. Marley; Guides, Dr. Ferguson.

Over 10,000 Millsaps Bulletins have been sent out to high school seniors, advisors, and pastors all over Mississippi this week.

TICKETS! TICKETS!

Because of the traffic danger on the drive in front of Burton Hall, traffic tickets will be given for parking in no-parking zones beginning Monday. This warning has been issued previously and the students are asked to cooperate so they will not receive tickets.

S. E. B. Releases Budget This Week For Spring Semester

The Student Executive Board budget for 1954 was passed by that body this week. Although subject to final approval, the budget is set as follows:

Bobashela	40%
Purple and White	29%
Singers	12 1/2%
Dramatics	5%
Debate	4 1/2%
Band	4%
Christian Council	2%
Stylus	2%
Student Executive Board	1%

Percentages are based on the eight dollar student activities fee paid by all regular Millsaps students, and naturally the actual money available for these activities varies with the enrollment. The amount for the past year upon which the percentages were applied was $5256.71.

Requests for budget percentages and budget procedure are determined by the organization sponsors and student treasurers of respective organizations.

Howard Cheek, chairman of the budget, working with the office of the Dean has developed budget forms to simplify and speed the procedure of fixing the budget, and henceforth all organizations will keep their own books and prepare standard forms for disbursement of funds for clearance through the business office.

Second Semester Enrollment Drops

According to statistics compiled by the Registrar's office, the enrollment for the spring semester at Millsaps has reached a total of 643 students. This count includes 386 men students and 257 women students, in contrast to the fall semester total enrollment of 704, including 410 men students and 294 women students.

The entire enrollment listed by classes is: Freshmen, 119 men, 96 women; Sophomores, 95 men, 63 women; Juniors, 97 men, 69 women; Seniors, 71 men, and 24 women. The unclassified list includes 4 men and 5 women.

OPINION POLL:

Millsaps-MCAthletics Should Continue Say Students Here

"Do you believe that athletic relationships between Millsaps and Mississippi College should be continued even though the Choctaws should be ousted from the Dixie Conference?" Through interviews the following students expressed their opinions on this question:

Willard Leggett: "Yes, it should continue. As long as I can remember I've looked forward to coming to see Millsaps and Mississippi College play; it's one of the highlights of the year in sports."

Barbara Jones: "Yes, I think so because I think we can continue to beat them."

Jack Speights: "Yes. We play other schools such as Delta State who scholarship players. If they want to, it's all right with me."

June Hull: "Yes, as long as we are confident that there is no subsidizing."

Morris White: "Yes, we should continue to play, but each team should state which side they are on—whether they are going to subsidize or not."

Dixie Winborn: "Yes, I believe more than half of the spirit at Millsaps is aroused by the rivalry between the two schools. Let's keep up the rivalry and the spirit."

Oscar Walley: "Yes, we should continue to play Mississippi College if they are going to subsidize and let us know that. It will be a game between amateur athletes and a team that does subsidize. The thing that makes a difference is that they are hiding behind the skirts of amateurism."

Jerry Trigg: "If Mississippi College was ousted from the Dixie Conference, that would naturally establish their basis as a scholarship team. Since we do play other scholarship teams I see no reason for severing relationships with them."

Dean McCracken Furthers Student Government Program

The cheerful, unassuming personality of a young man seated at a desk behind the door marked "Dean of Students," probably comes as a surprise to those who have never met Dr. J. E. McCracken. To those who enter his portals for the first time, trembling, in full expectation of at least a two-horned orgre, our genial dean would indeed seem a disappointment—a very pleasant disappointment. His kindly disarming manner soon reassures the most suspicious of natures that he is an understanding friend and a helpmate in the struggle along this part of life's journey.

Brilliant Household

The main part of his philosophy of education, it seems, was developed early in life from a family of educators and his early school life in Ohio. As a member of a brilliant household, headed by a father who eventually served a total of fifty-four years in the field of higher education, young Ed McCracken derived his educational philosophies as he expressed it "more from the dinner table than from books." No doubt the enlightening discussions at the McCracken table did much to affect young Ed's ideas of learning. However, his first school experience, which was at Ohio State University's Laboratory Grade School for developing educational techniques, exerted a very lasting influence.

At the time of young Ed McCracken's entrance, the school was experimenting with a life-centered curriculum that dealt with helping each other out in the process of learning—a theory which remains the keynote in Dr. McCracken's philosophy of education.

Switch Disheartening

Unhappily, he was moved from this very liberal atmosphere to a very autocratic five-room school at Connecticut, while his father was President of the University of Connecticut. The switch proved terribly disheartening to a boy so highly trained in democratic ideals. He left the third grade, only to return in three weeks resolved to continue his schooling despite prevailing unwholesome conditions. The rest of his grade school days passed without great incident, except that his father was promoted to a position governing fifty Presbyterian colleges. In high school the rapidly developing young man took advantage of a highly-cultural, widely-diversified program. It was here that he picked up his sports and music interests. He became a track athlete and a member of the school's a capella choir. After high school, he attended Grove City College as a music major—a student of both organ and piano. While there he was secretary of the local SPEB-SQSA and manager of the school choir. Leaving Grove City College, he next attended, as a science major, Muskingum College at New Concord, Ohio, an institution about the size of Millsaps, where he took a larger part in the revising of Student government (a program similar to the one now going on at Millsaps).

Capitalizing on his training in math and physics he entered the army as a Meteorologist and was stationed in Florida. In 1945 his college girl friend, whom he had pinned before enlisting came down to visit and stayed to become his wife. He received his B.S. degree from Muskingum while still in the army.

After his discharge from the service in 1946, he returned to Ohio State to receive his Masters, in 1947, in student personnel work—a subject which he became interested in while serving in the army.

Receives Doctorate

He went on to receive his doctorate in 1950, at the same time his brother received his.

His first job was resident advisor for the Men's Residence Halls of Florida State University—a position in which he was directly responsible for the welfare of one thousand students.

His first job in Mississippi was the creation of a student counseling center at Ole Miss. As director of that organization, he remained at Ole Miss for two years, where he met Mr. Ellis Finger. After several discussions over the trend toward small colleges, the two men found they had many mutual interests, especially the Christian value system of the church school.

It was only natural for the newly-elected president of Millsaps College to invite his brilliant young colleague to join the faculty as Dean of Students. Realizing the opportunities afforded by the position, Dr. McCracken accepted, and moved to Jackson where he now resides with his wife and three children.

During the short time that he has been here, Dr. McCracken has done a great deal for the students of our college and to further the student government program. However, his chief pride is in that during this last year, "we have prevented more problems than we have solved." His basic concern is that we may continue to progress in this manner by a co-operative working together of faculty and students and by having "respect for each other as individuals."

By Audrey Jennings

We had a nice group of saddened farewells a few weeks ago in the Purple and White and now my turn has come.

It seems strange to think that this will be my last column, after all these weeks of struggle to dig up stories, find out news (or what I hoped was news), fight for my date lists, and similar other activities. Actually it's been wonderful, and I wouldn't have missed it for anything. There isn't much to be said in this vein that doesn't seem rather trite and hasn't been said many times before, but I just wanted to express my sincere feelings and real sorrow in having to retire.

Success Appears Near

I understand from small rumblings here and there that old sparkling campaign No. 2463867 or, when are we having the bridge tournament, is really catching on. For additional information on it you are advised to refer to last week's issue. We'll have a bridge tournament, though, if I have to sponsor it myself.

A Name

One person has tried valiantly for some time to have her name in this epic, but has been consistently left out. The fault, dear Squeaky, lies not in the stars but in this writer's extremely poor memory. Week after week I was reminded, yet week after week I forgot. In case you haven't figured it out, the aforementioned is Ann (Squeaky) Carter and at last she has come to her reward.

Rehearsals For Stunt Night Are Now In Progress

Rehearsals for Stunt Night are in full swing, as each of the social organizations and independent organizations prepare their stunts in hopes of winning the "bucket." This year the campus looks forward to the added attraction of having the faculty participate.

The Majorette Club stated that the ideas for the stunts will remain a secret until a later date. The event will be on Thursday, March 4, at 7:00 p.m. in Christian Center Auditorium. The scripts have been turned in and have been approved by the Majorette Club.

The organizations will present their skits in the following order: Kappa Alpha, Beta Sigma Omicron, Kappa Sigma, Vikings, Norsemen, Kappa Delta, Lambda Chi Alpha, Phi Mu, Pi Kappa Alpha, Chi Omega, Ministers, and the faculty.

National President Of Phi Mu Visits Millsaps Chapter

Mrs. Landon B. Freear, National President of Phi Mu Fraternity, is visiting Epsilon Chapter yesterday and today. This is the first time Mrs. Freear, who is a graduate of the University of Texas, has come to Millsaps since she served as district president several years ago.

A celebration of the hundred and second anniversary of Phi Mu's founding will be held tonight at the lodge, after which actives and alumnae will attend a banquet at Le Fleur's in Mrs. Freear's honor.

Mississippi Southern and Ole Miss as well as Phi Mu Chapters in Louisiana are on her itinerary. Mrs. Freear has scheduled conferences with Epsilon's officers and Mill Mildred Morehead, Dean of Women. She will leave Jackson tomorrow morning for an initiation service at Oxford.

GIRL'S INTRAMURALS Girls Begin Practice For Badminton Games

Practice for girls' Intramural badminton began Monday afternoon. Next Monday, March 1, actual play will start. Games are scheduled to be played between 4 and 5 in the afternoons and the public is invited to watch these events. Forty-nine girls have already signed up; if others are interested, contact Nell Marie Vaughan or Lucy Robinson.

Mississippi College Gives Us A "General" Policy Statement

The Millsaps-Mississippi College athletic controversy appears to have ended as abruptly as it started—at least, so far as the latter-named school is concerned.

Last week, in an editorial, we made the remark that we were confident that the views expressed by Coach James Allen did not represent the official position of Mississippi College. But, from subsequent developments, it appears that we were obviously wrong.

Following release of the statement regarding the athletic policy at Millsaps College, Dr. D. M. Nelson, President of Mississippi College, released a statement concerning the policy of Mississippi College in regulating athletic competition. Dr. Nelson said that his letter was "... a general statement regarding Mississippi College . . .".

After reading the statement carefully, we were forced to agree wholeheartedly that it was a "general" statement. It evaded every point of dispute in the controversy, and could be taken quite literally as an appeal for donations to the school's physical improvement program and as a plea for more benevolent Christian friends interested in supporting deserving Choctaw athletes.

Dr. Nelson said that neither he nor the school is interested in the source of student aid—so long as it is paid. He said he was confident that the benevolent friends had chosen very wisely in assisting these boys, because they all had very good scholastic averages for the year. That fact seems purely coincidental—if not extremely shocking.

Millsaps College took a firm stand against the granting of financial aid to athletes, as such, and they stated further that should conclusive evidence be presented which would prove that any Millsaps athlete had violated that rule, the said athlete or athletes would be barred from further participation in varsity sports of any nature. This statement is clear and definite. It leaves no room for doubt as to our athletic policy. We firmly believe that any student, at either school, who has, or is, receiving financial aid other than regularly endowed and publicized scholarships, should not be allowed to participate in varsity sports. How can Mississippi College, adherents supposedly of the same policy, feel otherwise? How can their officials make such absurd excuses for direct violations of Dixie Conference rules?

Dr. Nelson offered no hint that any action would be taken against the athletes who, he admits, have probably received aid from "benevolent friends." He evaded this issue, although he was fully aware that the acceptance of such gifts is in open violation of the rules of the athletic conference of which they are a member. It appears to us that the only choice open to the Dixie Conference is to suspend Mississippi College from participation.

Then, they would be free to compete with such athletic training camps as Ole Miss, Mississippi State, and Mississippi Southern—which is what they seem to desire. We feel that, after one or two years of such competition, our neighbors to the south would come to crave again the athletic companionship of the poor athletes in the "graveyard."

A Matter Of Decency

The Mac Taggarts are leaving the Juke. Unless something is done they will leave disappointed and financially poorer. They are not departing because they don't like to serve the Millsaps students—nor, do they have any particular desire to retire. Nope, the simple fact is that they can't operate the Juke at a profit—especially since more than a hundred Millsaps' boys owe them approximately $750 in overdue accounts.

A small business, such as the Juke, operates on a week-to-week or month-to-month basis. When accounts are not settled at the end of each month, financial difficulties are encountered. And, when accounts are allowed to remain unpaid for several months, it becomes impossible to make ends meet.

These overdue accounts run as high as $76, and some of the bills are five and six months overdue. To many businesses, this would seem a paltry amount. But, to the Taggarts, it represents the difference between success and failure.

This matter was brought to our attention by a Millsaps student last Thursday, and since that time, no less than twelve people have mentioned it. The Mac Taggarts have become genuine friends to Millsaps' boys and girls. They have improved the Juke in many respects, and they have befriended the students in every possible way. They deserve fairness and consideration in return.

We believe that those Millsaps students who have been so negligent in the payment of their bills at the Juke will settle the matter immediately. It is the only fair and decent thing to do.

Y. W. C. A.

Boy, are these Y.W.C.A. girls on the ball. This is one organization that always has plenty of life. Speaking of life, they have some new life in their organization in the form of new officers. Their new officers were installed in a very impressive ceremony last February 10. Miss Frances De-cell, former Y.W.C.A. sponsor was guest speaker. These new officers under the leadership of Lucy Robinson, their new president, got right down to work. They entered into a planning retreat to plan their "charge" or program for the new year. Support the Y.W.C.A. by your attendance.

Catholic

The Catholic students will meet Wednesday night, March 3, at 6:45 p.m. in the Christian Center activities room. Plans are underway for a buffet supper for all Catholic students. If you want some good food and fine fellowship, be present to help us plan. We shall also try to make plans for better devotions. Please be present.

Presbyterian

Special, extra, read all about it! Big Mid-Winter Synod Conference at Lake Stephens on March 5, 6, and 7. We have three students who have registered to attend the conference. They are Gail Fielder, Foster Lowe, and Charlotte Elliott. If you want to go and have not registered, see Ann Orsborn right away. Three top-notch men will be on the staff. Rev. Mac Turnage, Regional Director of Young Peoples' Work, will lead the Bible study groups. Rev. Bob Fakkema from Idlewood Presbyterian Church in Memphis has charge of recreation. The main speaker for the week-end will be Rev. James Robinson, Minister of the Church of the Master in New York. Rev. Robinson is a member of the Board of World Missions for the U. S. A.

W. C. W.

The W. C. W. met Tuesday February 23 in the home of Mrs. Robert Anding. Mrs. R. R. Priddy brought a most informing talk to the group. Plans were made and committees were set up for planning pre-Easter services.

Baptist

The B. S. U. group will meet Wednesday night in the chapel at the Christian Center. An inspiring program has been planned for your enrichment. You are urged to come and help us make B. S. U. the organization we want and need.

As the express comes to the end of the line, we see several specials on the platform. There is a package labeled VESPERS. There is another labeled MORNING WATCH. It seems these packages have been wanting to catch the train, for they have very valuable contents. They need someone to help them aboard. Why don't you help Vespers and Morning Watch aboard so their contents may be shared by all, rather than a few.

There is only one other item and it is a mail sack. It seems as though we have some advance notice mail about RELIGIOUS EMPHASIS WEEK. If you have not begun to make your plans for R. E. W., then do so for this mail sack is really loaded with wonderful, enticing information.

Letter To Editor

Dear Editor:

Today two-thirds of the world's land area is controlled by a governmental system which erroneously calls itself a "People's Democracy." This is a concrete example of the naming of one system in a manner calculated to suggest another.

In the earlier part of the twentieth century, a group of farsighted educators began the trial of a system whereby the student would not be required to attend his classes each time that they met, but instead would be allowed to judge himself the attendance necessary to gain full knowledge of his courses, grades being determined directly from test scores. Many highly respected educational institutions have adopted this system, being convinced of its worth. Among them are found such schools as the University of Chicago, the University of Miami, and, surprisingly enough, little Millsaps College. Yes, Millsaps College numbers itself among those enlightened emporiums of knowledge which use the so-called "free-cut" system, those propagators of culture and education who trust the student's education to his own judgement and initiative.

A question: Can today's Millsaps student recognize this noble policy from the official course of action of today's college administration? Does the large number of students on probation listed in the registrar's office, the, and again I say large, number of professors who require class attendance, or the loss of hard-earned semester hours and quality points as a result of non-attendance give any indication of the "liberal policy" to which our school aspires?

Is it possible that calling the attendance system at Millsaps a "free-cut" system is as erroneous as calling Communism a "people's democracy"? If your answer is yes, then don't you agree with me that it would be far better for the offices of the dean and registrar to term our system as a mandatory system?

I leave the answer to the students' judgement and the faculty's conscience.

Nine Millsaps Honoraries Tap Fifty-One Students

Fifty-one students were tapped into nine honor societies at Millsaps College in Tap Day exercises yesterday.

Omicron Delta Kappa, national men's leadership honorary, which recognizes outstanding leadership in various fields on the campus is the highest honor that a male student at Millsaps can attain. Four men were tapped. They are: R. L. McCarter, Howard Cheek, Fred Delong, and Frank Mangum.

Sigma Lambda, leadership honorary on the campus for women, is the counterpart of ODK. Five women were tapped to membership: Ann Carter, Helen Fay Head, Mary Lynn Graves, Betty Jo Powell, and Ivey Wallace.

Kit Kat, the oldest and most exclusive honorary on the campus recognizes outstanding ability in the field of creative writing. Walter Ely and J. V. McCrory were tapped.

Chi Delta, women's creative writing honorary, tapped Betty Jo Powell, Helen Fay Head, Mary Lynn Graves, Bessie Robertson and Mary Alice Shields.

Alpha Epsilon Delta, national honorary for pre-medical students tapped six students to active membership. The students were: Johnny Morris, Robert L. McKinley, Gary J. Balias, Jerry J. Long, Richard Johnson, and Harry Carter.

Theta Nu Sigma, national science honorary, recognizes outstanding scholarship in the field of science. Eleven new members were tapped. They are Gary Balias, Hugh Burford, Howard Cheek, Michael Connor, Dick Johnson, Jerry Long, Reginald Lowe, Robert McKinsey, Johnny Morris, Mary George Price and Bill Romey.

Alpha Psi Omega, national dramatics honorary on the campus, tapped five. They are Karen Gilfoyl, Kathryn Hook, Anne McInvale, Walter Ely and Cliff Rigby.

Kappa Delta Epsilon, national honorary recognizing educational students and future teachers, tapped eight girls to membership. They are: Mary Gene Gainey, Betty B. Pierson, Jenine Sharpe, Martha Ann Selby, Carol Mae Brown, Katherine Webb, Ann Carter, Joyce King.

Eta Sigma Phi, national classical language honorary, tapped five students and one faculty member. They were Clara Parks Booth, Frances Jernigan, Sammie Pickering, Anne McInvale, James Adams.

Pi Kappa Delta did not tap.

Sid Head, president of ODK, presided over Tap Day ceremonies.

New Library Will Be First Result Of Million Funds

President Ellis Finger announced today that the proposed new Millsaps Library will be the first building constructed as a result of the Million for Millsaps Campaign. Although a definite date cannot be set for beginning construction of the library, he stated that approximately $85,000 is already on hand for the building and that this money had come in previous to the campaign.

The money from the Million Dollar Campaign is to be evenly divided between general endowment and the building program. That means that approximately $330,000 in cash will be required before construction can begin.

To date, approximately $100,000 in cash has been received as part of the $957,515 pledged and given to the campaign thus far. The Million office stated that approximately 25 per cent of the total amount could be anticipated as being cash.

Orientation Period Held For New Students Here

The new students had a brief orientation meeting Tuesday during the free period. It was an informal question-answer period to help the students become better acquainted with the campus.

KD's Lead Campus Groups With 2.061; KA's Win Again

Kappa Alpha won possession of the men's scholarship trophy for the fourth consecutive semester for having the highest scholastic average among men's groups on the campus. Their overall average was 1.446. Kappa Delta won the women's trophy for the first time with an average of 2.061. The KD's led the entire campus in first semester averages.

Overall averages for the campus for first semester was 1.4315, the all-women's was 1.6862 and the all-men's, 1.2510.

Fraternity men had an average of 1.3152 as compared to 1.1804

The Juke Is Under New Management

The "Juke," Adelle Grille, across from the Millsaps campus on Northwest Street changed management this week. Mr. N. M. Steed and Jim Moore assumed management from Mr. and Mrs. Mac Taggart. The new managers request the continued patronage of Millsaps students and will welcome any suggestions from the students.

Four Men, Five Women Tapped By ODK, Sigma Lambda Yesterday

Omicron Delta Kappa and Sigma Lambda, the two leadership honorary societies on the campus, tapped four men and five women, respectively, in Tap Day exercises March 4 during chapel period.

Howard Cheek, Fred DeLong, Frank Mangum, and R. L. McCarter are the new members of ODK. The membership, in addition to the recent tappes, consists of: Sid Head, president; Eddie Gossard, vice-president; Jack Dunbar, Roy Epperson, W. E. Ayers, Tommy Woodard, Ernest Mincy, and Fred Whittam. Faculty members are Dr. Ross Moore, Dr. James S. Ferguson, President Ellis Finger, and Mr. J. W. Woods.

Howard Cheek, vice-president of the student body, is a senior pre-med student. He is a member of the Kappa Alpha Fraternity and a representative on the SEB. A member of Alpha Epsilon Delta, national pre-med honorary, Howard is also a student assistant in the science department. He has participated in intramurals, has appeared on the Dean's List, and he was chosen last year for "Who's Who In American Colleges And Universities."

Fred DeLong, editor of Bobashela, is a senior History major. He is a member of Alpha Psi Omega, national dramatic honorary, of Kit Kat, honorary literary fraternity, and of the International Relations Club. Fred is a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity. He has been a member of the band, a member of the Players, and he has appeared on the Dean's List.

Frank Mangum, editor of Stylus, is a senior English major. He is a member of the Kappa Alpha Fraternity and has appeared on the Dean's List. He is a member of Kit Kat, literary honorary, and Eta Sigma Phi, classical language honorary. He is president of the Christian Council and has been active in the Westminster Fellowship group.

R. L. McCarter, editor of the Purple and White, is a senior History major and is president of Kit Kat, literary honorary organization. He is a former editor of Stylus and has appeared on the Dean's List. A member of the International Relations Club, he is vice president of that organization, and he participated in intramurals last year. As editor of the P & W, he is a representative on the SEB.

Ann Carter, treasurer of the Chi Omega Sorority, is a junior Spanish major. She has served as rush chairman and pledge trainer for her sorority, and she has appeared on the Dean's List. Active in the Players, she is a member of Alpha Psi Omega, national dramatic honorary. She is a member of the Panhellenic, and she is on the staff of the Bobashela and the Purple and White.

Mary Lynn Graves, feature editor of the Purple and White, is a junior English major. A member of the Chi Omega sorority, she is secretary of the Majorette club, a member of the Singers, and she is active in the Players. She has appeared on the Dean's List. She has been a drum major for the Millsaps' Band and is also a member of the Bobashela staff.

Helen Fay Head, managing editor of the Purple and White, is a sophomore English major. She is treasurer of Phi Mu Sorority, a member of the Singers, and she has appeared on the Dean's List. Active in dramatics, Helen Fay is a member of the Millsaps Players.

Bettye Jo Powell, secretary of the Chi Omega Sorority, is a junior Religion major. She is program chairman of the "Y", and a member of the Woman's Council. She is a member of the staff of the P & W, a member of the Players, and she has appeared on the Dean's List. She serves as reporter for the Majorette club, and she is on the "Y" cabinet as chairman of the Bethlehem Center. She is also National Outreach Chairman of the MYF.

Ivey Wallace, treasurer of the Kappa Delta Sorority, is a junior Economics major. She is president of the Majorette Club, and has served for two years as a cheerleader at Millsaps. She is a member of the Players, a member of the staff of the Bobashela, and she has appeared on the Dean's List.

FOUNDERS DAY—

lege, Rev. Lewis was interested in the College long before he came here. His father was one of the first contributors to the new college and was a life-long friend of Major Millsaps.

During the year 1898-1899 all four of the Lewis brothers, John Tillary, Henry, Osmond, and James, were at Millsaps at the same time.

On December 10, 1903, Rev. Lewis joined the Conference. After serving one year at Silver City, he went to Vanderbilt School of Religion.

After having served as pastor of Broad Street Church in Hattiesburg, at Brandon, Shubuta and Gibson Memorial, he was sent to First Church at Laurel. At the same time Rev. Lewis was elected a Trustee of Millsaps College. He remained a member of the board twenty seven years. He served as president of the Alumni Association in 1933, the year his daughter, Ann Stevens, graduated.

Rev. Lewis has been closely associated with boys and girls at various places and has helped them decide to go to Millsaps. Such prominent grads as Admiral Willie Thomas of the U. S. Navy and Eddie Khayat, 1953's Outstanding Alumni, were helped by Rev. Lewis.

Rev. Lewis had a part in planning and working for the Christian Center. He has cooperated fully with three presidents of the college, Dr. Watkins, Dr. Key, and Dr. Smith.

Dr. Tobias Will Speak At Millsaps Monday Morning

Dr. Robert Tobias, one of the secretaries of the World Council of Churches, will speak in Fitzhugh Chapel Monday morning at 10:00.

He will be available to students for conferences at 11. Dr. Tobias is also scheduled to be guest preacher at the First Christian Church Sunday.

He has worked for seven years in Europe, spending much of this time in France, Greece, and Yugoslavia. Having directed the relief work of the World Council, Dr. Tobias is spending this year interpreting the work of the Council to people in the United States.

His address and conferences here are sponsored by the Christian Council and the International Relations Club.

Fredda's Fragments

Last week's fond (?) farewell by Audrey left tears in many eyes but especially in mine because now it will be my duty to cover the lighter side of our campus news. Needless to say, I'm no little bit scared by my lack of imagination. My first feeble attempt should be proof positive; nevertheless, I shall charge in where others fear to tread.

Congratulations

First let me congratulate the Pikes on their Open House last Sunday. The Mother's Club prepared the food and the Cotton Maids served. I have heard many comments from people about the campus on how much they enjoyed it. I do wish the fraternities and sororities would celebrate Founder's Day more than once a year.

Weather

When one runs out of ideas he always can depend on the weather. As expected our good old unreliable southern weather has again gone winter on us. I for one would rather have spring. (In proof reading my column, R. L. was brave enough to predict that I would get my wish. Gazing out into utter blackness at 3:30 P. M. I realized he was probably right so I shook the icicles off my nose and shut the window.)

Stunt Night

Again it's time to put away the props, costumes, and make-up for Stunt Night is officially over. This is the one time of the year when creative geniuses are in "hog's heaven" writing skits while the menial slaves rush frantically to carry out all orders. (This is implying that we have such unusual creatures running around.) It's hard to believe that our own fellow students actually had the ENERGY and inspiration to create such fabulous productions. Picking a winner was pretty difficult for my book and Miss Eudora Welty, Miss Emmy Lou Patton, and Mr. Cliff Bingham seemed to agree. Right here I think it would be proper to thank them for serving as judges.

Millsaps Debaters Attend Turney At Spring Hill

The Millsaps debate team composed of Lois Ann Boack, Sylvia Sanford, James Williams, and Fred Whitam participated in the Azalia Debate Tournament at Spring Hill College in Mobile, Alabama, last week end.

The topic "Resolved, that the United States should adopt the policy of free trade," was debated with Lois and Sylvia taking the affirmative side and James and Fred on the negative.

Agnes Scott College was the winner of the tournament with Howard College placing second.

Other teams participating in the tourney besides the winners and the host team were Emory, Alabama State for Negroes, Auburn, Florida State, the University of Florida, Georgetown, University of Georgia, Kansas State, Ole Miss, Notre Dame, and Loyola of New Orleans.

Dr. Raymond McIlvenna, director of the debate team and head of the Millsaps political science department, attended the tournament with the Millsaps delegation.

Sigma Lambda Sec.-Tres. Honored As Major Major

Dorothy Dee Ford, Kappa Delta from Magnolia, is honored as our personality of the week. She is a chemistry major and plans to enter Tulane Medical School in September.

She is a chemistry assistant and has appeared on the Dean's List every semester at Millsaps. The Tribbitt Award went to Dee for the highest overall average. To add to her honors she was chosen for Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

Dee has served as vice-president of Alpha Epsilon Delta, national pre-medical fraternity. She has been secretary-treasurer of Theta Nu Sigma, general science fraternity, and Sigma Lambda, women's leadership sorority. This senior has served as president of the Kappa Delta sorority and the Majorette Club.

A popular and active Millsaps student, Dee has truly deserved her many honors. She has done her part to keep up the name of our College.

"The Enchanting Miracle of Change"

Some slight seventeen hundred years ago, a young fellow by the name of Marcus Aurelius Antonius made this remark: "Get used to thinking there is nothing nature loves so well as to change existing forms and to make new ones like them." Whether this bit of wisdom covered the wider, more divergent, and more relentless scope of changes wrought by capricious human nature, we forgot to ask. However, are we quite certain what meaning was intended by Michael Field's quotable quote, "The enchanting miracle of change"? Of one thing there can be no doubt, change is a mysterious and inexorable law of the world in which we live.

Tears and vain supplications inevitably follow when unyielding change would destroy that to which sentimental attachment holds fast. And that noble emotion of sentiment is an ingrained quality of our race. Heedless of our cry, the mad artist of time blends each dawn's horizon with hues unlike the ones preceding.

With the exception of the school year 1946-1947, when a coeducational gesture was attempted, men were admitted to the campus only by special permission or by arrangement with Millsaps. But the order changeth. It is reported that plans are under way to invite male of the primate vertebrates to sit and sup—and even remain.

To most of the seventy or more girls and sixteen boys from Millsaps who attend classes at, or through Belhaven, the prospects of such a change will have little significance. To the Belhaven teachers whose classes have been coeducational for several years the effect could hardly be startling. Some regular students of practical mind—and, no doubt a few for more subtle reasons—find secret favor in the promise of having a man or two around the house. However, to the old grad and many of those who now enjoy the tranquillity of seclusion, the drastic change comes as a bolt from the blue.

Established as far back as 1894 by its founder, Dr. Lewis T. Fitzhugh, Belhaven has been regarded by Presbyterians as an institution for girls in both a literal and figurative sense. Like many another small college and some larger ones, she has recently come upon lean years which demand the proposed change. Others say the word is "survival."

Whatever may be the proper evaluation of the situation, eyes will ultimately be dried when—and if—change should come. If, from the lower branches of the next beautiful "living Christmas Tree," a frog-like bass drowns out a timid alto, there will be both smiles and tears. Some will walk away. Others will remain to be happy that some kind of Christmas tree lives on.

Has Love A Chance On Millsaps' Campus?

Have you ever wondered about the rules for necking on our campus? Have you ever thought of it as a problem? Of course we scholars at Millsaps wouldn't think of doing such a thing. Why, we have our dignity to uphold !! ?

At larger colleges and universities the condition is getting to be serious because of over-crowded conditions. At the University of Houston, the dormitory council issued the following regulations to govern necking on the campus:

1. Area outside of 'D' and 'E' dorm reception rooms approved for goodnight kisses only.

2. Cullen Boulevard, side of 'D' dorm, recommended.

3. Cars in dorm parking lot only if we can see your heads showing over car seat.

All other areas are taboo. Don't go about wrecking the necking by using the taboo areas."

Maybe Millsaps should have a few rules governing the conduct of this social activity. After taking an accurate poll from the girls on 1st floor of Whitworth we turned up with these suggestions.

1. No peeking from upstairs windows in Whitworth and Sanders after nine o'clock. (These windows over-look the door. This area should be private.)

2. On Fridays and Saturdays, street lights in front of the library should be "knocked out." (Forceably if necessary.)

3. Handholding only is permitted on the porches of Founders and Whitworth.

4. Off limits: golf course and observatory.

Do you approve of these rules? If so, notify your advisor.

OPINION POLL

Many Millsaps Students Favor Belhaven As Co-ed

sake, I'm for it. It's the only Presbyterian school in Mississippi, and it would be on the same order as Millsaps.

Janis Edgar—The college is really going down, and I believe it will do some good. Some men and a few changes in the rules would be good for the school.

Crow Parnell—I'm against it because I think it will take some of the Presbyterian students away from Millsaps.

John Little—I think it's good. I think it's silly not to have both boys and girls.

Joanne Henderson—I think it will be a good solution for the decline in students.

Don't Let Love Let You Down!

After All - - What Does It Matter?

So you've been jilted! So he's two-timing you! So you want to go steady and he doesn't (or vice-versa) . . . So this—so that—so you are the lovelorn seeking advice.

Well, let me think a minute. This is indeed a perplexing situation, and I'm not at all sure I can fill the bill. But here goes—

Rule 1. Don't wear your heart on your sleeve. Put it back where it belongs.—Our of sight.

Rule 2. Smile. To be a long-faced Susie definitely won't tempt that certain little ole boy to come running back.

I believe I'll explain this in detail. If you're suffering and it's obvious, then your heart is on your sleeve—right? Now if you're obviously suffering you must be frowning! O.K. It makes sense if you're frowning you couldn't be smiling, so you really must look like a sad sack! And only when you smile does the whole world smile with you.

Rule 3. Get him off your mind. So you remark, "It's easier said than done!"

Well, you could take up some exciting hobby—knitting, for example. Better still, do oddles and co-doodles of studying, and have oddles and bo-coodles of fun

I might add here, "Best wishes for a speedy recovery."

Rule 4. This particular rule simply must have an introductory paragraph to explain its source.

I was visiting M.S.C.W. last week-end. While there, I thought of this article and that Monday deadline!

After much contemplating, I took a deep breath and asked, "Anybody have a bit of advice for the lovelorn?"

Immediately twenty billion eyes gave me the once over. The expressions plainly said, "Poor soul, poor dear. She must have been jilted!"

If you think you're in a bad situation for dates, consider the problem at Iowa State College: A men's group, forced into blind dates by the girl shortage, set up a "Pig of the Week" club. Each man with a blind date for the week-end contributes a dollar to the club. The recipient of the jackpot is the one who has the ugliest date.

For a girl to be in the "ugly" category, she must have a personality that brightens the room when she leaves; have a mouth so big that she can sing a duet by herself; and be so bowlegged that she can be hung over a door for good luck.

From The Reflector, Mississippi State's college newspaper, comes this anonymous poem: "Now I lay me down to sleep, The lecture's dry, the subject deep. If he should quit before I wake, Then give me a poke, for heaven's sake."

The March 1 issue of The Clarion Ledger, in "Pages From The Past," noted that ten years ago "Dr. M. C. White, professor of English at Millsaps College, was elected alumni member of the Birmingham Southern College chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, the national outstanding scholarship fraternity."

Sports Views

By John Morris

(Guest Column by James Burnett)

The Millsaps Majors closed the current basketball season against Delta State. They dropped a close contest by the score of 67-63. The Majors were supposed to be a "PUSH-OVER." However, they battled the Statesmen right down to the last whistle. The out-come was decided only in the closing minutes of play. This was one of the best games the Majors played all season. Every man did his best which is all that can be asked of anyone.

The overall won-lost record was not at all impressive. But as Johnny stated in a previous column, many factors were responsible for this. When all these things are taken into consideration, the record is not too bad at all. This one thing is sure—the athletes at Millsaps are in college primarily to get an education and secondarily to participate in the athletic program. We should be (and most of us are) proud of the team and their spirit. Hats off to a swell bunch of "simon-pures."

Much has been said about the current dispute between Millsaps and the Choctaws. To add my two cents: Millsaps stated emphatically that no help has been given to any student simply because he is an athlete. The athletic committee further asked the Chocs to furnish proof to support their charges that Millsaps athletes were receiving alumni help. The proof has not come, and what is more, it probably won't come. Also, the committee asked the Chocs to issue a statement (which would be taken at face value) saying that they were not giving help to athletes or that the situation had been cleared up. No denial of the substation charges has come and the situation certainly hasn't been altered. The evidence, it seems, is quite clear. This one thing is very clear—the Chocs have too many "benevolent friends" to have an amateur team. They have violated one of the basic rules of the Dixie Conference, which should result in their being dropped as a member of the conference.

Intramural softball got under way this week. The organization of the program seems to be much better than it has been in past years. Schedules have been posted about over the campus so that all may know who plays and when. Results will be carried in the P&W weekly.

One further thing should be added if at all possible. The Intramural League needs one or two persons, or more if necessary, to act as official scorekeepers for the games. This would reduce the confusion resulting from two or more keeping the score in the official book. In this way the method of scoring the games would be uniform throughout. Perhaps some of the young ladies of the campus who are interested in the games would be interested and willing to keep the records.

One final word . . . It's been a pleasure to write this column. Thanks again, Johnny.

Bartling Seeks Quarterback; Workouts Enter Last Week

Coach Sammy Bartling is facing an unexpected headache during the football workouts this spring.

Glenn Cain, Red Powell, and Billy Greenlee, last season performers for the Majors, will all be unavailable come next fall.

Cain graduated in January, but Powell and Greenlee, both sophomores, were expected to fill in for Cain without any trouble. In fact, Powell played first string quarterback during much of the last season.

Powell has been working since the end of last season, and he probably will not be available for next fall. Greenlee will not be enrolled at Millsaps next semester.

The Majors are going to run off of the Oklahoma split-T next season, and a quarterback of unusual football ability is almost a requirement. Several men have been tried out at the position, but none of them have shown any promise so far this spring.

Otherwise, the practices have been going well. Scrimmages are being held nearly every day, with many men showing a lot of improvement. There have been no serious injuries thus far.

Employment Service Available To Senior Geology Students

Senior geology students from Millsaps College will find an unusual employment service available at the annual American Association of Petroleum Geologists convention slated for St. Louis, April 12-15.

In past years graduate geological students have attended national conventions in hopes of applying for jobs in geology, geophysics, and paleontology, but have

Bettye Jo Powell Attends Seminar In Washington

Bettye Jo Powell, Millsaps junior, was in New York and Washington last week attending the United Nations-Washington Seminar sponsored by the National Conference of Methodist Youth and the Board of Missions and World Peace of the Methodist Church.

There were delegates from twenty five states participating in the conference.

The seminar, now in its fifth year, affords college students an opportunity to see world and national government in action. After three days of observing the United Nations in New York, they had conferences with key leaders in the nation's capital and observed Congress in session.

While in Washington the students were guests of the State Department, the embassies, the Supreme Court, and various congressmen and Senators. They had discussion sessions with outstanding senators and congressmen, including Ralph Flanders, Paul Douglas, William Knowland, Wayne Morse, Stewart Symington, John Sparkman, Harold Velde, Donald Jackson, and others.

The principal speakers at the Washington Seminar were Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, resident bishop of the Washington Area, and Walter Lippman. Lippman discussed "Trends and Future Directions." Bishop Oxnam spoke on "What Is Behind the Attack on Freedom."

"How come you go steady with Helen?"

"She's different from the other girls."

"How's that?"

"She's the only girl who will go with me."

found it necessary to rely on personal contacts for the job interview.

This year a central employment interview bureau will be maintained at the convention site, Kiel Auditorium, for the 4-day meeting.

More than 5,000 geologists will attend the conference to be held in conjunction with meetings of the Society of Exploration Geophysicists and Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists.

Kappa Sigs Win Basketball Title; Softball Play Begins

Boys' intramural basketball is over, and the Kappa Sigs, undefeated, won first place while the battling Independents captured second place. The Pikes rallied in the second half to capture the third position.

In the last two nights of play, the Lambda Chi's edged the KA's 41-40. This game was the closest and tightest contest seen throughout the entire season. In the second game of the night, the late-improving Pikes defeated the Norsemen by a lopsided score of 56-25. "Drip" Waldrop led in the Pikes' scoring attack.

The Preachers, in the final night of play, defeated the Lambda Chi's 60-30, while the Kappa Sigs cinched first place by defeating the KA's 53-23.

Softball Begins

Softball officially got underway this week as the Preachers defeated the KA's, last year's softball champions. The final score was 11 to 7.

The intramural softball schedule for the first round is as follows:

March 1 KA—Min.
March 2 LXA—Pikes
March 3 Ind.—Sigs

2nd

March 4 KA—LXA
March 8 Ind.—Min.
March 9 Sigs—Pikes

3rd

March 10 KA—Ind.
March 11 Sigs—LXA
March 15 Pikes—Min.

4th

March 16 KA—Sigs
March 17 Pikes—Ind.
March 18 Min.—LXA

5th

March 22 KA—Pikes
March 23 Min.—Sigs
March 24 LXA—Ind.

All games played promptly at 4:15.

Plans Are Completed For Millsaps' High School Day

The Millsaps' High School Day Committee announced this week that most of the plans for High School Day have been completed and that a few alterations have been made in the original schedule. Sponsoring organizations for various activities during the day were announced.

Dr. Franklin W. James will be in charge of consultation periods. These periods will be scheduled continuously from 11:30 until the time of the talent show in the afternoon. Department majors will act as counsellors during these periods.

Sigma Lambda will be in charge of the coffee hour from 8:30 to 9 A. M. The WCW will be in charge of the social hour from 4 to 5 P. M.

Dear Old Loyal Joe

Last week we read the following item in a Mississippi weekly newspaper, written by a Jackson columnist:

McCARTHYISM POPULAR—A national Gallup poll shows that 50 percent of all Americans questioned recently have favorable opinions of Senator Joe McCarthy and his Communist-hunting investigations. Only 29 per cent have unfavorable opinions, indicating that thinking people are not buying the left-wing hogwash that 'McCarthy menaces freedom.'

"Too many folks lost loved ones in Korea. They have no sympathy or patience with slimy snakes who hide behind the Fifth Amendment . . . snakes such as McCarthy is exposing daily with FBI help. Whatever may be said against him, the Gentleman from Wisconsin is loyal to the United States—which is more than can be said for lots of his enemies."

This is, without doubt, the most absurd bit of reasoning that we have had the misfortune to encounter in any Mississippi newspaper of late. It seems obvious to us that most of the conclusions of this statement are based upon false assumptions, emotionalism, and prejudice with no regard for the truth. Yet, the results of such pure rot threaten to undermine the very basis of our democratic form of government, and the so-called "thinking" people seem to fall for it—hook, line and sinker.

First. May we not ask the writer if "Majority" is synonymous with "thinking"? He seems to imply that it is. We feel, however, that the opposite is true—that the truly concerned element of the United States' population is represented by a minority.

Second. Since it is clearly obvious from volumes of recorded testimony that McCarthy's methods have denied those whom he charges almost every constitutional right regarding a fair trial before an impartial tribunal, how, then, can this columnist fairly contend that McCarthy doesn't menace freedom? Perhaps it is because his meaning of freedom differs from ours. Does he mean by "freedom" the unquestioning acceptance of, and the dogmatic conformity to, every whim of the Wisconsin demagogue? If this is his meaning of freedom, and only if such is the case, then it is true that the liberal philosophy of freedom is "hog wash."

Third. Are all accused persons who employ the only legal weapon now available for their protection—the Fifth Amendment—to be arbitrarily classified as "slimy snakes"? Does silence really mean guilt? Does the fact that a witness refuses to answer questions which are unfairly and viciously employed by McCarthy infer guilt? Is it not conceivable that some persons still believe in the principles of democratic government and the constitution and that they refuse to answer questions because they feel that they are not receiving a fair hearing?

May we ask the writer if he is aware of the importance and the purpose of the Fifth Amendment in our American court system? We might remind him that it had its beginning in English law during the eighth century and that it became a part of the law because conscientious men felt that torture to force testimony was wrong, and that no man should be forced to give incriminating evidence against himself. That was its primary purpose, and we feel that it was a noble purpose. However, the critics of the Amendment today charge that it is an impediment to justice. They seem to think that the necessity of making an objective and thorough investigation of cases is an unduly burdensome task, especially when the shortcut of grilling the suspect might achieve more immediate results. It seems strange that the use today of so basic a right may deprive one of his livelihood and prestige.

The Fifth Amendment contains a "no-inference" rule, discontents on our own campus that are working against the basketball team. That element does not want its successes or its failures to produce to be shown up in the light of a really successful athletic team. They were the first to cry 'scholarship.'

"This element brought the matter before the Dixie Conference in its December meeting. The conference granted them the request that the Mississippi College Athletic Council be given the responsibility of correction of any alleged violations of the basketball team. Their efforts ended in failure simply because there were no substantial charges. Now they have handed their ammunition of slander to Millsaps who will also find those means futile."

Remus sez: "Ha!"

A bouquet to the staff for their sacrifices in getting the P & W out last week while ye olde editor was dang near daid.

Another bouquet to Audrey Jennings, retiring society editor. Audrey has done a commendable job on the P & W, and we are going to miss her beaucoup, but, comprehensives do require a small bit of consideration. Thanks, Audrey.

Replacing Audrey as Society editor will be Fredda Shelton, who was feature editor last semester. Assisting Fredda in the society department will be Barbara Jones.

The new feature editor is Mary Lynn Graves who has been a feature writer for the last two semesters.

Here's a unpolished gem gleaned from The Mississippi Collegian written by Bud Walker, sports editor: "Saps Sever Choc Cage Relations; Slither To Muck Flinging . . ."

"After taking three straight beatings, Coach Sammy Bartling and his war-weary Millsaps Militants surrendered before Stute Allen's alledged Scholarship squad matching 'baskets only with cries of 'subsidization.'

"The demoralized Majors, presumably conceding the fourth and final meeting of the season, severed cage relations with Mississippi College and have taken up muck flinging after proving inadequate with the roundball."

An official of Millsaps College told Jackson Daily News Sports Editor Carl Walters that the Athletic Committee of Millsaps has decided to end basketball competition between the two schools following Tuesday's game.

The spokesman said:

"We are firmly persuaded that the current Mississippi College basketball team is a subsidized team and we will not hereafter schedule games with Mississippi College unless and until the situation is cleared up."

"What factor 'firmly persuaded' the Millsaps Athletic Committee that 'the current Mississippi College team is a subsidized team?' Was it the record-breaking 106-71 battering the Chocs handed the Majors Tuesday night? Undoubtedly Allen had to pay freshmen center Tom Macon who dropped in the 100th point a king's ransom to outbid Kentucky's Bluegrass Barron for the Slat Springs boy.

"J. P. Hurst the Choc's flashy speedster at guard was miraculously overlooked by Indiana and Duquesne. There's a ridiculous story out that Delta State wouldn't even give Hurst a half scholarship.

"Towering Ed Castles and Herman Robinson were supposed to fill the gap left by Walter Dukes at Seton Hall. Guyton Henry, Mississippi College's hulking center was to lend Bob Petit a hand with rebound chores at LSU. Why would little Union University in Jackson Tennessee, bother to send him a letter saying that they couldn't use him?

"Randall Boone was completely overlooked by every major cage team in the country, and was rejected for a scholarship after trying out at Delta State.

"Only Howard Sessums was offered even a half-scholarship to 'another' subsidizing institution.

"Let's face it—the Majors couldn't take it. They cried 'scholarship' to save face. Quitting and then throwing muck is a coward's way out.

"Finally, we must realize that there is a very small element of which says, in effect, that the accused does not have to answer any question which he feels would be self-incriminating. And, if he refuses to answer a question, nothing shall be inferred as evidence from that refusal. This "no-inference" rule is used in every court in the United States, and it should be used in legislative investigations where the witness is grilled under bright lights, before TV cameras, radios, and in the presence of numerous newspapermen, photographers, and a group of hostile legislators. What, in the light of the atmosphere produced by the McCarthy-type investigation, is inferred when the witness replies, "I refuse to answer on the grounds that it might tend to incriminate me." Is he not condemned immediately in the eyes of the public—a public which is generally totally unaware of the circumstances of the case? Yet, is not the privilege of invoking that right the only legal protection at the disposal of the witness? It presents something of a dilemma, doesn't it, Mr. Columnist?

Whenever a court, such as the McCarthy committee, brings no formal complaint against the witness, when it acts as the accuser, investigator and the judge at the same time, the technique of the inquisition is being used. Throughout its history, the inquisition has proved very effective for stamping out religious, political, or any other form of dissent regarded as dangerous. Whenever and wherever ideas have been considered dangerous, the inquisition has flourished, and its success has depended on its ability to override the witness's right to refuse to testify against himself.

Fourth. Since J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, has felt that McCarthy is undermining the vital work of his investigations, and since he is obviously opposed to the opening of confidential FBI files to McCarthy and his cohorts, we feel that the columnist could more fairly have said "... snakes such as the FBI is exposing daily in spite of McCarthy!"

Fifth. What are Mr. McCarthy's motives for fighting communism? Is his fight based on moral grounds? Is there any valid evidence in existence that the "Gentleman" from Wisconsin would not be fighting something else were the United States not immersed in a great communist scare which was brought about largely through the "Gentleman's" own activity? Is there no indication that he would not just as soon burn Protestant Bibles as quickly as he would have every other book destroyed which fails to jibe with his own distorted views of "Americanism"? Is there any similarity between the phenomenal rise to power of the Wisconsin Senator and that of Adolph Hitler? What are Mr. McCarthy's political ambitions? Is he perhaps eyeing the White House? What is more effective as a means of gaining support of the "thinking" people than the fighting of the thing which he has defined as the greatest evil of our time? We would like very much to have some of the "thinking" supporters of Mr. McCarthy attempts to answer these questions objectively.

In conclusion, we firmly believe that the government of the United States should be conceded the right of protection. We believe, too, that the members of the Communist Party who commit overt acts of treason against the government should be dealt with under that right. But, these persons should be charged formally, tried by an impartial judge and jury, and they should have the right of confrontation of the accusers. Every citizen—even the murderer and the pickpocket—has the constitutional right to a fair trial as guaranteed under our form of government. We are not justified—in a democracy—in employing the wholesale and careless suppression of ideas and the denial of constitutional rights in order to protect the very government which guarantees these rights to every citizen.

We feel confident beyond a doubt, Mr. Columnist, that we are just as loyal as is the "Gentleman" from Wisconsin, and we state emphatically that we disagree vehemently with the things for which he stands. Call it "hog wash" if you please.

Departments Plan Exhibits For High School Day Tours

Visiting high school seniors on the campus for High School Day will be conducted on tours of the various departments where they will be shown demonstrations and exhibits.

The French exhibit will consist of pictures, maps, perfume, dolls, books, ceramics, inlaid boxes, and miscellaneous objects including a working model of the guillotine and a replica in miniature of a gargoyle from Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris.

The Geology department exhibit is designed to show the various kinds of rocks and fossils commonly found in Mississippi. A series of maps shows where these rocks and fossils are at the surfaces, and a model map of Mississippi shows where and at what depths oil and gas are found. One part of the exhibit shows various rocks and minerals of economic value and the commercial products manufactured from them. Another part features the tools a geologist uses, the geiger counter for detecting radioactive minerals, fluorescent light for recognizing oil in oil well covers, and the seoscope for identifying mineral crystals. Still another part of the exhibit features vegetable and mineral life of the past.

The exhibit of the department of Education will be set up as a model classroom featuring the teacher's desk complete with books—teachers' books and books used by practice teachers—and "an apple for the teacher." Also on display will be art work, samples of handwriting, book reports, and other school work completed by pupils in both the elementary and high schools where Millsaps students are doing practice teaching.

The English Department display will be in Murrah 24. Pictures of people and places famous in English literary history; rare and ancient books, including volumes issued in the days of William Shakespeare, one a black letter print of 1604; an exhibit of student manuscripts published and unpublished, including some freshman term papers; copies of Stylus, the college literary magazine; and copies of the college newspaper, The Purple and White, may be seen in the display.

The Spanish department will exhibit Spanish-American jewelry, pottery, china, costumes, hand tooled leather, magazine articles, and illustrations.

The Religion department will have the chapel open for worship with someone to play the organ at intervals.

An exhibit of skeletons, tropical fish, rats, hamsters, and chinchillas will be made by the Biology department.

En Garde!

The above scene is a famous one from The Rivals, the Millsaps Players' current production. Bob Acres, at right played by Bobby Myers, is an English country squire turned gentleman. He is learning somewhat hastily, though reluctantly, the dangers and intricacies of sword play from his Irish friend, Sir Lucius O'Trigger, played by Harold Hutchinson.

The Rivals has been called one of the three great English plays of the eighteenth century. It was Sheridan's first play and was written when he was twenty-three years old.

The Rivals was played for the first time at Covent Gardens in London in January, 1775. It was not successful at first because it was much too long and there was bad acting by one of the leading characters. Both these defects were remedied, and it has found enormous success ever since. It was played for the first time at Bath, March 8, 1775.

The Millsaps Players production will be very much in the style of the eighteenth century production.

Honoraries Tap Campus Leaders

Omicron Delta Kappa — A national honorary fraternity, ODK taps the outstanding leaders from main campus activities. It is the highest honor a man can attain at Millsaps. The local chapter originates and initiates many constructive campus projects.

Sigma Lambda — Paralleling ODK, Sigma Lambda recognizes women of prominence in activities on the campus. Invitations to the group must be with the unanimous vote of each of the regular members.

Alpha Psi Omega — Effective participation in the "Millsaps Players" earns membership in Alpha Psi Omega, national honorary dramatic fraternity. This participation may be in acting, in directing, in make-up, in stage management, in business management, in costuming, in lighting, or in publicity. Each year the name of the outstanding graduating senior member of the organization is engraved on a trophy, which is left in the college trophy case.

Theta Nu Sigma — This organization has a selected membership of students showing excellent grades and general interest in the natural sciences. At graduation it presents an award to the outstanding science graduate.

Kit Kat — The oldest and most exclusive honorary on the campus, Kit Kat is the goal of all male writers. Papers are read at monthly dinner meetings and criticized by both student and faculty members.

Pi Kappa Delta — The Millsaps chapter of Pi Kappa Delta offers membership to those who have given distinguished service in debating, oratory, or extemporeneous public speaking.

Alpha Epsilon Delta — Alpha Epsilon Delta is an honorary pre-medical fraternity, founded at the University of Alabama in 1926. Its purpose is to promote the interests of pre-medical students. Leadership, scholarship, expertness, character, and personality are the qualities by which students are judged for membership. Alpha Epsilon Delta strives to bridge the gap between pre-medical and medical schools.

Chi Delta — Sister organization of Kit Kat, Chi Delta recognizes women who have demonstrated a genuine interest in literary fields and who have creative writing ability.

Kappa Delta Epsilon — By fostering high scholastic standing and promoting professional ideals among women preparing to teach, KDE promotes the cause of better education.

Eta Sigma Phi — A national honor fraternity, Eta Sigma Phi recognizes ability in classical studies. Alpha Phi, the Millsaps chapter, was founded in December, 1935.

Bobashela Head Honored As Week's Major Major

Fred DeLong, senior history major from Tutwiler, takes honors as this week's Major Major.

During his years at Millsaps, Fred has been active in many organizations. He is a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity and has served as vice-president of that social group. His active interest and hard work in the Players was recognized when he was accepted as a member of Alpha Psi Omega, national dramatic honorary. He is editor of the Bobashela, works on The Purple and White, and is a member of Kit Kat, honorary literary fraternity. Fred is also a member of the International Relations Club, has been a member of the band in past years, and has appeared on the Dean's List.

Fred's leadership, scholarship, and personality were recognized and rewarded on Tap Day last week when he was tapped into Omicron Delta Kappa, national men's leadership honorary, which recognizes outstanding leadership in various fields on the campus. This is the highest honor that a male student at Millsaps can attain.

Many Changes Have Occurred In College Spirit, Says Author

A recent article entitled, "Lo, The Old Campus Spirit," by G. Gaddis Smith, appeared recently in the New York Times magazine. It presented an interesting comparison between the college spirit of today and of yesterday. It seems that the older alumni are clamoring for the good old days of the hip flask and raccoon coat. (It is rumored that Dr. Moore is a distinguished member of this group since he handed the article to the P & W editor). But just what are these changes and the reasons for them? As they are listed, you can compare them to the alterations which have been wrought on the Millsaps campus.

The two most significant changes are in the matter of school spirit at athletic events and the sense of humor of undergraduates. Many of the present-day students don't know the school yell—they rather maintain a dignified presence of mind at a football game. No longer are dangerous practical jokes, such as greased trolley-car tracks, mysterious flying missiles, cows in the dormitories, or other such methods used to prove loyalty to the old alma mater. Today's college man's spirit is deeper and means far more to his school. Old customs and traditions — such as bonfires, tug-of-war battles and wrestling between classes, freshman beanies (Millsaps, unfortunately, still has them), hazing and so on have passed out of existence.

The last change of any importance is in the attitudes toward the opposite sex. In the days gone by, women were thought of as taboo. There is obviously no need for explanation of the change in this respect.

What are the reasons for these changes? The first is the attitude of schools which no longer place great emphasis on sports in order to gain meaningless prestige. Another reason is the tremendous growth of extra-curricular activities. The old days of sitting around smoking a pipe and sipping beer have merged into the days of the get-up-and-go student. Interest in world affairs and realization of the disturbed position of the world today are other leading causes for the change.

In the twenties college men often didn't read newspapers from September until June, whereas today, students read daily news with avid interest. Another basis for the change is the terrific competition in the various freshman classes for entrance. No more can the rich man's son be assured of attending an institution of his own choice without proper training. Also, World War II has taught veterans not to be snobs, and those who were once persecuted are now social equals.

The last and most important reason is the great educational awakening going on throughout the country. This is evident in the experimentation of educational institutions and the opinions of today's undergraduates about education. Besides, draft boards scan every report card, and graduate schools demand more than mediocrity, making hard study worthwhile. This awakening, although fought in many quarters, will develop an even more modern type of college spirit. The author says that this spirit will have three chief qualities:

1. It will be soundly "conservative." Conclusions will be tested with sound principles.

2. It will be a spirit of faith because we are living in a generation where supreme faith is essential, and

3. It will be a spirit of leadership. Perhaps many of us will be here to observe that change and even be the leaders of this new movement.

Singers Tour Choir Chosen; Two Concert Trips Planned

Millsaps Singers Tour Choir has been chosen and the members are preparing now for a two-week tour beginning March 26 and lasting through April 11. This year the tour will be divided into two parts. The first week the choir will go to North Mississippi and the second week to South Mississippi. Seventy-nine students were selected this year to make the two trips, part of them going the first week and part of them going the second week.

Before leaving for the two-week tour, the choir will go on a weekend trip leaving March 13 to Waynesboro, Quitman, and Meridian. One weekend trip was made on March 7 to Forest and St. Luke's Church in Jackson.

Members of this year's tour choir are: First Sopranos, Alleen Davis, Frances Moore, Virginia Slater, Jo Nall, Mary Vaughan, Eugenia Kelly, Julia Allen, Annette Johnston, Ruth Ann Pearson, Rose Cunningham, Peggy Sanford, Ann Anderson, Mary Warren Huntley, and Jo Clayton.

Second Sopranos, Karen Gilfoy, Kathryn Hook, Walter Jean Lamb, Sarah Dennis, Carolyn Baria, Elaine Boothe, Pip Thompson, Cindy Faulkenberry, and Jeannene Sharp.

First Altos, Sara Jane Brockman, Jerry Crossland, Helen Davis, Mary Lynn Graves, June Hull, Frances Jernigan, Ellnora Reicken, Sara Jo Smith, Theresa Terry, and Lucy Jones.

Second Altos, Claire King, Carolyn Allen, Valera Bailey, Cara Lloyd Hemphill, June Hull, Annice Loflin, Mary Sanderson, Sylvia Stevens, Marion Swayze, Barbara Walker, and Mary Jo Edwards.

First Tenors, Johnny Awad, Howell Polk, N. R. Wally, Robert Streetman, Bobby Smith, and Cecil Jones.

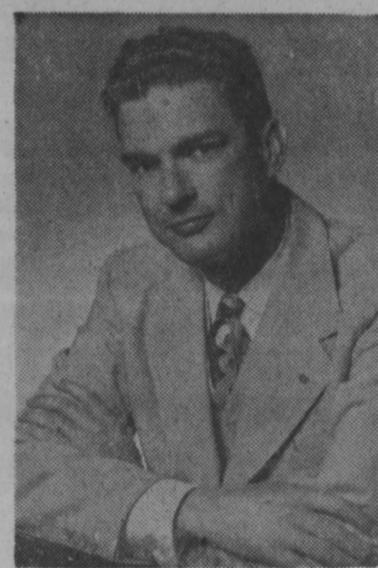

Second Tenors, Dick Johnson, Fred Blumer, Larry Tynes, Jerry Williamson, and Bill Bailey.

First Basses, Odean Puckett, W. H. Merrill, Lewis Alexander, Jimmy Jones, Roy Price, James Burnett, Joe Ebersole, Sam Jones, Enoch Dangerfield, Ray Bardin, Wally Conerly, Terry Hayward, R. W. McCarley and Robert O'Kelle ley.

Second Basses, Louis Hodges, Jug Hathorn, Arthur O'Neil, Paul Kern, Hugh Burford, Gary Balias, Lowell Jones, Frank Nash, Leslie Shelton, and Tommy Spell.

A Message From The President

March 13, 1954

To our High School Day Guests:

One of the highlights of the year on the Millsaps College campus is High School Day. This special occasion affords us an opportunity to meet some of you for the first time, to renew friendships with others of you, and to acquaint you with our college campus and community.

We hope you enjoy the day. All of us—students, faculty and administration—are eager to assist you in any way you may desire. Feel free to call on us throughout the day.

Yours cordially,
H. E. Finger, Jr.
President

College To Be Host At Luncheon; Alums At MEA Are Guests

Next Friday, March 19, Millsaps College will be host at a luncheon for former students and alums that will be here in Jackson for the annual MEA convention. Transportation from the Heidelberg Hotel to the college will be provided. The luncheon will be held in the private dining room. This will give the alums an opportunity to talk about old times here at Millsaps and to compare notes on ideas about teaching experiences. This practice is one that should be of great opportunity to teachers who are graduates of Millsaps.

A feature of the day will be consultations with faculty members and students with guests who desire interviews.

On Saturday afternoon the Chi Omegas will present their first place winning skit of stunt night, and the Kappa Deltas will present their skit that won second place honors. The Millsaps Singers will also present a program of music for the high school guests.

Finger, Livesay Meet With Alums; Discuss Campaign

President Ellis Finger and Public Relations Director Jim Livesay will go to Memphis March 17 to meet with the alums of that area. The purpose of this meeting is twofold. The first and most important part of this meeting is to inform the alumni of the progress of the Million for Millsaps campaign and the plans for the work to come later. A talk will be made by the President and the film, "Campus Close-Ups," will be shown. The second purpose of this meeting is to lay the ground work for the organization of an alum group in the Memphis area.

Chi Omega's Win Bucket Again!

Shown above are most of the Chi Omega's who participated in the winning stunt last Thursday night with the coveted bucket which is given to the winners each year. This is the second straight year that the Chi Omega's have won the bucket, and it will be presented to next year's winners if Karen and Barbara don't steal it.

Six From Millsaps Attend AED Meet Held In Indiana

Dr. Price has announced that the Millsaps chapter of Alpha Epsilon Delta, national pre-medical honorary, will send six delegates to the national AED biennial convention this year. The convention, to be held at the University of Indiana in Bloomington, Indiana, will discuss problems of universal interest to pre-medical students and instructors, and will give those attending the opportunity to profit by association with those of similar interests. Sixty-four chapters will be represented.

The Millsaps delegation will leave Tuesday, March 23, to reach Bloomington in time for the beginning of the convention on the morning of the 25th and return on the 27th. Dr. Price, national vice-president of the AED is scheduled to give the response to the address of welcome by Dr. Herman Wells, president of Indiana University.

The Millsaps chapter of AED was founded in 1935, the first chapter in Mississippi, and has long been an outstandingly active chapter. On several occasions the Millsaps chapter has initiated new chapters established in Mississippi and Louisiana. The most recent such occasion was the founding of a chapter at L.S.U.

Those attending the national convention are Tommy Spell, official chapter representative; Reginald Lowe, Faye Gaddy, Molly Lawson, Mrs. Price and Dr. Price.

Officers of the AED are Tommy Spell, president; Reginald Lowe, vice-president; Faye Gaddy, secretary; Gary Balias, treasurer; Molly Lawson, historian; and Dr. Price, faculty advisor.

Chi Omegas Win 'Bucket' Second Consecutive Time

The Chi Omegas captured the coveted bucket for the second consecutive year at the Majorette Club's annual Stunt Night last week. This year's runner-ups were the Kappa Deltas, second, and the Lambda Chi's placing third.

"A Thousand and one Nights" was the title of the winning stunt. It portrayed the king who had killed his two hundred wives because they had displeased him. A lovely princess had a wonderful idea—she would tell the king a story that would last a thousand and one nights. But alas! At the end of her story, her head was hanging on the wall with the other wives.

The stunt featured Barbara Mae Jones as the king; Katherine Hook, Scheherazade Karen Gilfoy, Aladin, and Oliver Coker, the ugly princess.

The Kappa Delta's stunt was entitled "Highland Laddie's Fling, or Jilt of the Kilts". Starring in this stunt were Sylvia Stevens as the Laddie and Edna Khayat as the bride. An outstanding part of the KD stunt was a dance by Ivey Wallace.

The Lambda Chi's showed a typical committee meeting at dear Old Claughorn College and showed Robert Streetman, Edwin Sturdivant, and Norman Creel as the profs. The dance routine by Walter Simmons and Cecil Trant ham was accompanied by the chapter's combo.

The other stunts were:

Phi Mu, "The Hat Most Likely to Succeed;" the Beta Sigs, "Rags to Riches;" Vikings, "Rags to Riches;" Pikes, "The Mask of Folley;" Kappa Sigs, "Slaughter on 10th Avenue;" and Kappa Alphas, "Othello."

Between the skits Mary Lynn Graves, Roy Price, the Kappa Sig Quartette, Carolyn Allen, Lu Wallace, Hardy Nall, and Wally Connerly performed.

MILLSAPS BAND

Millsaps Band Highlights Year With Fall Success

The Millsaps Band had one of the most active seasons last fall since its formation with football trips to Memphis and Birmingham. Half-time shows were presented at all home games.

The band this year is under the direction of Mr. Harold Avery, head of the music department at Belhaven College. Mr. Avery has worked with the band this semester on a well-balanced concert program.

A concert is planned for the late spring with works from composers such as: Bach, Sousa, Morton Gould, and Bizet.

Social Groups Enrich Life For Boys At Millsaps College

For the boys at Millsaps there is a wide variety of social organizations. Four Greek letter fraternities and one independent group all contribute to the social life of the masculine segment. A look at each will give an idea of the activities of each organization.

Kappa Alpha

The organization of Kappa Alpha fraternity on this campus dates back to the founding of the college; the "KA's" were founded nationally at Washington and Lee in 1865. Their president is Ben McCarty of Jackson.

The KA's celebrate all things pertaining to the South. They give their annual Black and White Ball right before Christmas holidays each year, and an annual party for the orphans.

Kappa Sigs

Scott Kimball of Crystal Springs rules the roost at the Kappa Sigma house located on North West Street. The "Kappa Sigs" were founded nationally at the University of Virginia in 1869, and on our campus in 1895.

The Kappa Sig Barn Dance is an annual dance for the whole campus on graduation night.

Lambda Chis

Lambda Chi Alpha, formed on Millsaps campus from a national fraternity Theta Kappa Nu, in 1939 is referred to more often as the "Lambda Chi's". Their proxy is Vernon Eppinette of Natchez.

Their main social event is their Purple, Green and Gold Ball where they choose their Sweetheart.

Lambda Chi was founded at Boston College in 1909 and is located on "fraternity row" on Marshall Street.

Pikes

Pi Kappa Alpha, or the "Pikes" who also live on Marshall Street are led by Tommy Woodard of Greenville.

Their annual Cotton Ball is heralded by the selection of a queen from five maids by a national personality. This year it was held March 6; it is open to the campus.

Pi Kappa Alpha was founded nationally in 1868 at the University of Virginia and locally in 1903. Last year the chapter adopted a war orphan as a charity project.

Norsemen

The Norsemen is a new social group for independent men begun just three years ago. It is a purely social group, and the boys enjoy many informal get-togethers both among themselves and with dates.

Yeager Hudson of Meridian is now serving as president of the group.

Of course, every group gives informal parties throughout the semester for the pleasure of its members, their dates, and on some occasions, the entire school.

Tradition Says —

Let's face it—a college has its specific traditions and follow them we must!

As freshmen we don't grandma's flapper dress or grandpa's striped vest and parade around the campus like maniacs on the tear. That's tradition! Confidentially though, we'll have to admit that Freshman Day offered specks of laughter and bushels of fun for everyone.

Behold Stunt Night! Social organizations gather their talented lads and lassies to present skits and hits to the student body. The coveted prize—guess what—a big tin Bucket! That's tradition for you, folks.

To moan and groan, to sigh and cry over comprehensives is a must for all college seniors. First comes the midnight oil, next, the comprehensive, and last but not least, that prized sheepskin!

Students cast their votes, ballots are counted, folks hold their breath, and winners of the titles Master Major and Miss Millsaps are announced. Quite an honor for two seniors and definitely a Millsaps tradition.

Each year students and faculty members pause in the hustle and bustle of campus activities to participate in Religious Emphasis Week. During this period inventories are taken and new dedications are made.

Here traditions—there traditions—everywhere traditions, and we must confess without them we'd be missing half the fun of college life!

The baby of our traditions is the annual song fest sponsored by the Chi Omega Sorority. Trophies are awarded the winning men's organization and the winning women's group.

"Pop" King Is Well-Loved Director Of Well-Known Millsaps Singers

Alabama. "Pop" and the Singers are concentrating their attention on their own state this year to help out on the Million for Millsaps campaign.

This is another in the series of annual tours to different parts of the nation. "Pop" and his chirpers carry the name of Millsaps far and wide, and we consider them our best advertisers.

For seventeen years Mr. King has divided his time between the Central High School chorus and the Singers. Those students from Central High sometimes sing under his direction for eight or more years. He encourages everybody who can "carry a tune in a bucket" to try for the Singers, for it takes equally as much hard work as talent to develop a good choral group.

The entire city of Jackson is grateful for him, but Millsaps is doubly proud of "Pop" and the honors he has brought to our college.

Campus Publications

Welcome New Talent

For the literary-minded there is the campus weekly newspaper, the Purple and White. The staff welcomes any new talent and will be glad to help any aspiring, but struggling, young writers. If a writer does well enough, he can earn two extracurricular hours a year towards graduation.

Also, there is the college annual, the Bobashela (the word means "good friend" in Choctaw). The annual is a photographic view of campus life. If you are willing to work hard, this is the job for you.

If you can't write, but would like to work with these groups, join their business staffs.

Another Millsaps publication is Stylus, a literary magazine published biannually. No, it doesn't contain the plays of Shakespeare, nor the poems of Wordsworth. Within the bindings of this little booklet are prized words of the college's talented young writers. All students who have the yen to write are urged to submit their poems, essays, or short stories to the Stylus committee.

Fredda's Fragments

May I be the second, or the third, etc., to welcome the high school seniors. I only hope you will be able to see a little of the life at Millsaps that means so much to all of our students. Naturally you'll be much too harassed and hurried to get a clear view in one day and I couldn't begin to tell you about it either. There is only one way and that would be for you to make the most of today and then come back next year to learn for yourself. It seems to me that our past society editor Cecile Brown had the right idea in her high school issue and I don't believe I could improve on it:

"The first few days you spend here you'll later remember as a sort of vague, dizzy period when you get little sleep, much advice and mileage. At the various activities you will meet . . . and I don't exaggerate . . . everyone and his brother. After a week or so though, you'll begin to learn one or two names, and after a few more weeks, you'll begin to use them for the right people.

"Those aren't Bread Lines you see, friend, that's where you register. And don't forget to have an X-ray taken and get all your books. Trips taken to the grill periodically will help you over this trying time. We also tried the laugh-at-everything-despite-all method, which proved very effective.

"Speaking of the grill, allow me to elaborate. Besides being the place where you will get your mail and buy all sorts of little necessary articles, it is the place where fellowship reigns. There you will meet all manner of interesting people, hear the latest in folk ballads on the juke box, and learn many amazing feats of magic with the coke bottle. Trips are made to the Juke and the drugstore for food and recreation, but to the grill for fellowship. Be sure to become acquainted with the grill early in your college career.

"Your first days in class are your opportunity to win friends and influence people. Take advantage of this first impression act and make it good. Everyone else will be doing it, too, including the profs.

"When you register, you will be assigned a chapel seat (tricky, eh?), which you will be expected to occupy every Thursday morning. This time will be divided between listening to the program, carefully studying the people around you, writing Mother, and meditating.

"And then there's Freshman Day. It's not so bad. In fact it's quite enjoyable. I can hardly wait. Heh Heh. You won't mind wearing a crocker sack to school, will you? It's not so bad to have to sing all the verses of the Alma Mater at high noon on top of the cafeteria table. You will probably enjoy scrubbing Major Millsaps' tomb with your toothbrush. You didn't like to walk on the sidewalks anyway, now did you? As I said, the laugh-at-everything-despite-all method often proves to be the best way to meet a situation.

Last Saturday night at the annual Pi Kappa Alpha Cotton Ball it was revealed that Virginia Hewitt had been chosen Cotton Queen by John Robert Powers.

Escorted by Edwin Jones, Virginia looked lovely in her debutante gown of French tulle and Brussels lace. Just before intermission the Pi Kappa Alpha lead out preceded the presentation of the queen and her court. Members of the court and their escorts were Barbara Walker, Leslie Page; Jo Glynn Hughes, George Hunt; Frances Moore, Tommy Woodard; Norma Neill, Fred DeLong.

Mrs. Rodney Little (Nan Howell), last year's queen, crowned Miss Hewitt queen for 1954. Trophies and American Beauty roses were presented to the queen and her court to commemorate the occasion.

Virginia, senior from Jackson, is a member of the Chi Omega Sorority and served as Co-rush Chairman last year. She is also a member of the band and the Majorette Club and made her debut with the 1953 group of Debutantes.

ATO Sweetheart

Rather neglected last week was Barbara Uhalt who definitely brought prestige to Millsaps when she was selected Alpha Tau Omega Sweetheart for 1954 at Mississippi State College. Congratulations, Barbara.

Last week the Pikes set a new precedent by awarding cups to three honorary maids. Master of ceremonies Jack Dunbar presented loving cups to Miss Carolyn Bufkin, Miss Mildred Moorehead, and Miss Elizabeth Craig.

Dance And Open House Celebrate Founders Day For Lambda Chi Alpha

The Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity will hold its SEB open dance for the spring semester on March 20, 1954, in the Convention Hall of the Robert E. Lee Hotel, from 8 to 12 p.m.

Kent Sills and his Southernaires of Mississippi Southern College will furnish music and the program for the dance.

On Sunday afternoon, March 21, 1954, from 3 to 5 p.m., Lambda Chi Alpha Founders' Day will be observed with an open house.

Students, friends of Lambda Chi Alpha, and faculty are invited to attend both of these social functions.

Five Chemistry Majors To Visit Graduate School

Dr. Price announced today that five chemistry majors will visit the graduate chemistry department of the University of North Carolina at Forest Hill during the Spring Holidays. The group will leave on Saturday, March 27, returning on the 31st. On the 29th, they will attend a chemical symposium at the University.

It is interesting to note that one of three making the trip, Roy Epperson, has been offered a teaching assistantship at the University of North Carolina for the coming year. If accepted, the assistantship is worth $1,350. This is but another indication of the respect with which Millsaps' chemistry department is regarded by other institutions.

Those making the trip are Roy Parker, Joe Lee, Harry Dowling, Roy Epperson and Dr. James.

Spring Drills End Today Grid Squad Shows Promise

Spring practice for the Major football players will come to an end this afternoon. Although the team has been weakened by the loss of several key men, the squad has shown a lot of spirit during the practices. Coach Sammy Bartling has even indicated that the Majors of next year will be even more powerful than the team of the past season.

Only twenty-eight men, many of them newcomers, reported during the spring drills, so the Majors will be definitely losing a lot of the depth that helped make them a winning team last season. The team of next year will try to use more experience and speed as a substitute for this lack of depth.

The squad suffered a definite set-back last week when Hardy Nall, first string halfback, was injured. Nall had his shoulder separated during rough scrimmage, and has not been able to play since. He will, however, be ready to go next fall.

Some several newcomers have shown a lot of promise toward brightening the hopes for next year.

Among these is Bubba Bogdan, formerly of Pascagoula and now from Jackson. Bogdan has been working at the quarterback position during the spring drills.

Crow Parnell, sophomore from Jackson, has shown some promise at halfback.

Five new men, all freshmen, are trying out for tackle positions. They are James (Luke) Wasson, Joe Houston, Jim Phyfer, Bob Holoman, and Lowell Jones.

Bartling has made several switches in an effort to give the team more over all balance. Roy Wolfe, a halfback last season, has been shifted to quarterback. Cecil Trantham has been moved from tackle to center in an effort to fill the gap there.

Other men taking a part in the spring practices are:

Fullback: John Lowery and Louis Alexander. Halfback: Drip Waldrop, Hardy Nall (injured), Terry Moore, and George "Spider" Armstrong. Quarterback: Stan Trupin. Ends: Eddie Khayat, Bobby Sartin, Paul Kern, and Bobby Joe Smith. Tackle: Scott Kimball. Guards: Tom Boone, Laverne Smith, and Jimmy Jones. Centers: Don MacPherson and Cecil Trantham.

one game during the season.

Only one man graduates from the starting five; so, the basketball team should go in the only possible direction next year—up.

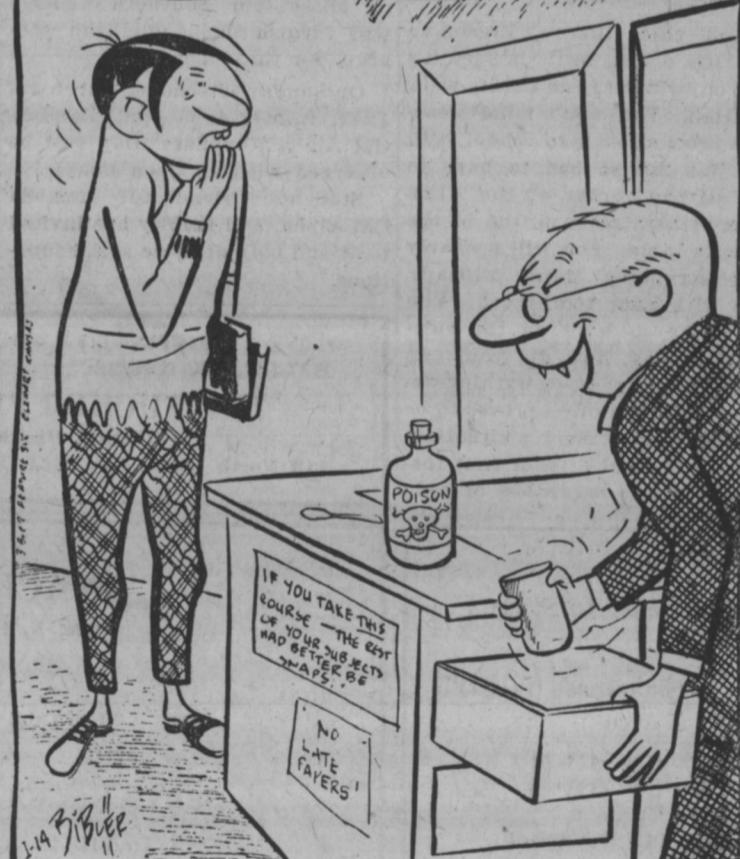

Many lettermen will return to the baseball squad this spring: much stronger. Pitchers returning include ace Tommy Woods, Walter Waldrop, Jack Speights, and Tommy Parker, out for the last two seasons with an injury.

Doctor White, head of the English department and coach of the tennis team, is very optimistic over the outlook for his netmen this year.

Several tennis lettermen are back from the good team of last year, and several freshmen are expected to improve the team. Lettermen returning are: Powers Moore, Bubba Lee, Bill James, and George Hunt. Newcomers are Willard Leggett and Freddie Abraham.

The Y.W.C.A. is divided into several commissions. These commissions meet regularly and plan new projects to help you and Millsaps College. The three commissions are as follows:

Christian Faith and Heritage, with Claudette Westerfield as chairman, meets each Wednesday afternoon at 3:00 in Whitworth lounge.

Campus and Personal Affairs has Myra Fisher as chairman and meets Wednesdays at 4:00 P.M. in Whitworth lounge.

World Relatedness, with Jane Wiggins as chairman, meets Wednesdays at 4:00 in Founders.

Ministerial League

The entire campus is invited to attend the program that is planned for the next month. The Ministerial League meets each Tuesday night at 6:30. The program is as follows:

March 9, 1954 — Rabbi Meyer Levitt of Temple Beth Israel will speak on "The Beliefs of Judaism."

March 18, 1954 — Father Basil Klonides of the Orthodox Church will speak on "The Beliefs of the Greek Orthodox Church."

March 23, 1954 — Rev. Wade Koon of the Trinity Lutheran Church will speak on "The Beliefs of the Lutheran Church."

April 6, 1954 — Father Joe Bruni of St. Peter's Catholic Church will speak on "The Beliefs of the Roman Catholic Church."

April 13, 1954 — Panel discussion including all of the previous speakers.

Those persons wishing to attend, not Ministerial students, are to meet at the Christian Center at 6:30 P.M., on Tuesday night. From here, we will go to the speaker's church to hear his talk and be instructed about his symbols, etc.

Coach 'Sammy': Good Teams With Simon-Pure Program

In the fall of 1946, Millsaps College embarked on an ambitious athletic program which the experts said couldn't be done — but they have been proven wrong mainly due to the influence of two men — the Bartling Brothers.

The oldest of the two — Coach Doby Bartling — put the plan into operation and laid the groundwork through nearly five years. Then during the last two, the younger, —Coach Sammy Bartling — has brought the plan to nearly an ultimate in fulfillment.

Sammy Bartling took over the reins of the Millsaps athletic department — a thankless task which involves coaching all three major sports, running the intramural set-up and physical education department, in fact everything but selling the tickets — in January, 1951, when Coach Doby resigned to enter the business world.

During the 1952 and 1953 football seasons, the Majors hit the high spots with two consecutive Dixie Conference football titles and an eight won, three lost record. His basketball and baseball teams have fared less well in the won-lost column with the highlights being a four game sweep of the baseball series from Mississippi College in 1951 and three consecutive basketball series titles from the Choctaws in '51, '52, 'and '53.

What manner of man is this person who has made a habit of getting a lot out of a little?

For all of his life, Sammy Bartling has been intimately connected with athletics either as a player or as a coach. He followed in Doby's footsteps at the Itta Bena high school, then went on behind big brother to Ole Miss, but only as a baseball player due to his lack of size. Doby in the meantime, quarterbacked a Rebel football team which was led by a big tackle named Kinard.

After graduation, Doby headed the coaching field, while Sammy deviated from the path working with the B. F. Goodrich Company. Doby started off at Canton, not too many miles north of here, then jumped into the Big Eight Conference at Meridian. In 1942, Sammy came back to athletics by taking over his brother's former job at Canton.

From Meridian, Doby went to Vanderbilt as a war-time coach, while Sammy turned out consistent winners at Canton. He, too, got his chance in the Big Eight, moving over to Vicksburg where in both 1945 and 1946 he had powerhouses that narrowly missed winning Big Eight titles in football and hit the jackpot in basketball in both '45 and '47.

In 1946, Doby came back to Millsaps to organize the newly installed simon-pure athletic program and was highly successful for five years.

Sammy moved to McComb in '47 and nailed down a Big Eight title with a murderous crew there in '48 — and a team from which there have been eight members enrolled in Millsaps.

O Sole Mio

The faculty quartet renders a number during their stunt as waiters in the cafeteria in connection with the recent World University Service drive on the campus during the year. Those singing are Professor George Maddox, Dr. A. P. Hamilton, Dr. T. L. Reynolds, and Dr. M. C. White.

EASY COME, EASY GO

Eighteen years to grow it and eighteen seconds to cut it off. A fresh freshman loses his locks to upperclassmen in the traditional fashion.

When Doby left early in January, 1951, his successor could have been only one person — Sammy Bartling. He moved in, took over a highly unsuccessful basketball team and quickly converted it into a winner in spite of losing half of the squad to the service just as he moved into the spot.

Since the time he has turned out teams of the highest caliber here at Millsaps. The 1951 baseball team swept a series from Mississippi College and the '51 football squad won three of five games and the Dixie Title. The '51-'52 basketball squad got six wins in 21 starts but won the series from Mississippi College. The '52 baseball team was less successful, for with only one pitcher the team could manage to win but two games.

Last year the football team showed that it was no fluke that Millsaps was winning. The squad, loaded with freshmen but not too highly inexperienced, crashed through with five wins in seven games, including a thrilling 21-20 win over the Choctaws. A basketball squad which had six of its eleven members freshmen won seven and lost eleven.

It is no fluke that Millsaps is winning and winning without paying. The simon-pure experiment of seven years ago is paying off. At other schools it hasn't been quite as successful.

But, the other schools haven't had a Bartling at the head of their athletic department.

Welcome High School Students!

A sincere word of welcome to the high school students visiting our campus! We hope that each and every one of you will experience many new and enriching events—and that you will allow the results of this day to guide you in the selection of your college.

In writing this editorial, we started thinking about the things that brought us to Millsaps College. Was it the fact of Millsaps' high scholastic standing, her philosophy of education, her teachers, her athletics, her campus, her student body, her graduates, and so on. We decided that it was neither of these traits alone—rather the combination of all of them. Millsaps College has, naturally, some weaknesses. These weaknesses, however, are realized and attempts are continually being made to overcome them.

Then, in attempting to explain the various advantages of the college, we happened on the idea that it might be interesting and informative to check back over the dusty files of the Purple and White and take a look at what had been written on the topic before our humble time. We found that most of the editors felt very much as we do about Millsaps; so, we decided to relate the views of past editors of the P & W on the advantages of Millsaps College.

The editorial which follows was written by Ralph Hutto while he was editor of the P & W in 1948. The column, entitled, "Varnado Lives Here," was written by Lowery Varnado in 1950, who was editor at that time. "The Moving Van" was written by Van Cavett in 1952, and "The Editor's Desk" came from the pen of Eddie Gossard in 1953.

Should You Come To Millsaps?

This week-end a number of high school seniors will stroll along the walks of our campus and view Millsaps for the first time. Next fall they will be entering an entirely different phase of their lives, one which will etch an indelible mark on the future of each one of them. College is the proving ground for the future and the future college students should take care and choose a proving ground with merit. We can't resist the temptation to add our two cents worth to the many things which high school seniors will be told about Millsaps this week-end. Here are a few things you seniors should take into consideration when you contemplate coming to Millsaps:

First, if you expect to get anywhere at Millsaps, you're going to have to resign yourself to hard work. The courses aren't difficult if you spend the proper amount of study on them. It's possible to get a fine education here if you put a lot into your studies. If you don't you might as well stand by for a disappointment.

Millsaps doesn't hold these High School Days every year in order to build up its enrollment. It is a small school accommodating more than it should now. The aim of High School Day is to try to attract outstanding students to Millsaps. The school feels that you students here this weekend are the type people who will make good Millsaps students.

Taken as a whole, Millsaps has an excellent faculty and is the only school in the state teaching a liberal outlook toward life and religion, unimpeded by political dogmatism! Millsaps has its faults, such as the old-fashioned attitude toward campus dances, but it would be impossible to name a school that didn't have some undesirable features.

Millsaps is located in the capital city of Mississippi, nerve center of one of the fastest growing areas in the United States. Great things are going to happen here in the next few years and if you're at Millsaps you'll have a front row view of the events as they occur.

Jackson offers fine opportunities for wholesome recreation. A proper amount of study doesn't mean studying all the time. Your schooling would be incomplete without a generous measure of fun. It's the folks who turn college into a continual round of play who run into tough sledding after awhile.

Millsaps is a good school and therefore demands a lot of its students. Don't come here with your eyes shut to the fact that you'll have to study, but don't think that the school is a dull grind. Millsaps is building leaders for tomorrow. If you go through this proving ground creditably you will emerge as one well equipped to face the world.

Ralph Hutto

VARNADO LIVES HERE

By Lowery Varnado

If you are a high school senior planning to enter Millsaps next fall, you will probably wish to know something about entrance requirements, campus life, etc. I have prepared this column as a sort of guide book. Tear it out, fold it neatly, and stuff it into one of your nostrils for easy reference next year.

Entrance Requirements

To enter Millsaps College:

1. You must be a member of the human race. This is the most rigid requirement and is seldom relaxed. There are exceptions, of course. Three of the happiest and most useful members of the student body, for instance are full-blooded chimpanzees, and proud of it.

2. You must be familiar with the alphabet and the Arabic numerals. You must be familiar with fifteen to twenty English words. You must be able to dress yourself and feed yourself.

3. You must be at least three feet tall and not more than nine feet tall. We like to preserve some note of uniformity in our students.

4. You must be free from neurotic, pathologic, or criminal tendencies. If you are an inmate of an insane asylum, a penal farm, or a leper colony, don't try to get in our college. To be quite frank about it—we don't want you.

Faculty

Having once gained admission to Millsaps, your problem becomes: What do I do now?

Probably, you will want to meet your teachers. Millsaps professors have an imposing array of degrees, honors, etc. They are among the most brilliant men in the country. Despite all this, they are all very real human beings. (This, of course, with the exception of three chimpanzees, who are among the most useful and intelligent members of the faculty.)

Extra-Curricular Activities

One of the big questions you will be asking at Millsaps is: "What shall I do with my spare time, and when do I get some?"

Millsaps provides numerous facilities for recreation and social life. One of the most prominent of these is the bear-pit where weekly bear-baiting matches are held. There are also facilities for ping-pong, shuffle board, mah-jong, Red Rover, Hop-Scotch, Button-Button, Who's Got The Button, and Russian Roulette.

Although social dancing is banned on the campus, students are allowed to participate in folk dancing. "Dance to the Rain Gods" and "Sacred Dance of the White Buffalo" are among the more popular.

Studies

Students at Millsaps are expected to study. That is about as far as it ever goes. Although Millsaps has the reputation of being a "tough" school, the curriculum is comparatively easy. Continuous day and night study usually suffices for a passing grade in a class.

So let us urge you to attend Millsaps for four of the most joyous, profitable, and ennobling years of your life.

Don't forget to bring your tuition.

The automobile is a great moral force. It has stopped a lot of horse stealing.

A jury consists of twelve people to determine which side has the best lawyer.

The Moving Van

By Cavett

Writing a column for a special issue such as this is no easy job. Of course, by now you realize that the whole purpose of the High School Day Edition of the Purple and White is to show a cross-section of Millsaps life as it really is.

Our one hope is that we have not colored it in such a way as to make you think that this school is a veritable paradise—a land of milk and honey or a utopia.

There is no school in this country that can start to be a paradise, although there are plenty that would like to make you think that they are.

Every institution has its faults, and Millsaps neither stands above nor below others in this respect. During the day here, take a look around and see what you like and don't like, for there will be some of both.

The one point about Millsaps that we would like to dwell upon in this column is its scholastic reputation. That is the thing you have heard the most about the college, we are sure. You have been told of its high scholastic standing and rating, and that the college is a "stiff" school.

In a way, all are true. Undoubtedly, Millsaps is of high scholastic standing. It has always strived to continue to be that way, for its purpose for existing is to give an education and not to be a country club, something which many schools seem to have forgotten in their search for students. All too often schools sacrifice scholastic integrity in order to attract masses of students, then point with false pride and say, "Look at us. We're the biggest school; so, evidently we are the best."

Size is not a virtue, neither is it a vice. A large school has its advantages. Both have their shortcomings.

Millsaps' reputation as a "stiff" school has probably scared more people off than any one thing about the college. This writer has, in the course of his college days, talked with dozens of prospective students have said, "Yeah, I'd like to come to Millsaps, but I could never make the grade."

And it is true, some of them couldn't make the grade. But, they couldn't have made the grade anywhere, for many were just barely getting by in high school.

Let's judge it this way. A "C" student in high school can make "C's" at Millsaps by the dint of a few hours study each day. It will be the same for "B" and "A" students.

The above facts will hold true in nine out of ten cases. Some poor high school students make good college records and some good high school students make poor records. It's mainly based on you and your own personal habits... and whether you came to college for knowledge or play.

But again don't get the idea that Millsaps is all work and no play. To the contrary, there is a great deal of playing being done. It is a very happy combination of the two.

There is one other factor that we would like to mention. Millsaps is the most ideally located college in the state. There are a number of opportunities available in the city of Jackson that cannot be obtained in towns where other schools are located. Keep that in mind when you are choosing your college.

The Editor's Desk

By Eddie Gossard

All kinds of welcoming words to the High School Day visitors. We're really glad to have you on our campus. After all the work of preparation for this day, the actual carrying off of the event is tame work which we enjoy thoroughly.

It is hard to say exactly what should go into a column of this sort on a day such as this. We could expound for several columns on the benefits of small liberal arts colleges in general and of Millsaps in particular. We could speak of the high scholastic standing and of the purely amateur athletic program. We could sound forth the praises of the professors and shout to the skies about the fellowship between faculty and students. We could speak of the vast number of people from Millsaps who go on to graduate schools in medicine, dentistry, and in the arts, and of the fact that entrance into graduate schools is no problem for Millsaps graduates. We could tell of the many opportunities for extra-curricular work, from the band and the Bobashela, the student annual publication, to the Purple and White and the well-known Millsaps Singers. We could say that there is a place in extra-curriculars for every student on the campus, no matter what his talent.

Every institution has its faults, and Millsaps neither stands above nor below others in this respect. During the day here, take a look around and see what you like and don't like, for there will be some of both.

In spite of the foul weather last Saturday, the annual High School Day turned out surprisingly well. It was estimated that between 450 and 500 high school students were present for the day's activities.

The program was executed smoothly and most of the visitors seemed to enjoy it tremendously. The only phase of the entire day which seemed to fail almost completely was the period set aside for student consultation. This should have been one of the most important aspects of the program, but it received almost no response from the visiting students.

The other point about which we were very disappointed was the matter of Millsaps' students remaining on the campus for this weekend. The number of high school students participating in the day's activities was much larger than the number of Millsaps students on the campus.

Terse but brutal criticism was cast at this editor last week by one of the lowly proofreaders of the P & W. He still hasn't (heh heh) recovered from its devastating impact. "Squeaky," an unimportant scanner of the galley impressions, dumped an armload of packing excelsior into his typewriter last Thursday. When confronted with the evidence, she muttered: "Well, it's the best thing that has come out of that machine for the past two months!" Latest word is that the ungrateful imp is seeking a position on the staff of the (urp) Bobashela.

By the time this issue hits the news stands, the Millsaps Players will have completed their second evening's production of "The Rivals." I predict that this will be one of Lance's best productions (and he has produced some darn good ones), in spite of its tremendous subtlety.

The play has been done very rapidly, and the cast has done a remarkable job in learning parts so quickly. As I pointed out before, its great weakness is its subtlety, and unless I'm very mistaken, much of its real impact is going to be lost to the audience —unless they see it at least twice. It is a fast-moving comedy, thoroughly delightful, and I'm sure it will be well-attended.

A situation which fortunately doesn't exist on this campus is one found at the Idaho State College:

Shortly after registration ended for the first semester, the editor of The Bengal commented on the unfair and undesirable policy of the English department in withholding the names of course instructors until students meet them in class. Not everybody likes this kind of surprise.

The schedule of classes for the second semester registration has been printed and released, and it is interesting to note that once again every English and literature course is listed as being taught by the same versatile Professor "Staff."

If some English instructors are so unpopular that their names have to be withheld . . . then something is radically wrong, either with the instructors or with the methods of the department and it can't be rectified by keeping the . . . names secret . . .

Millsaps Host To Christian Citizen Seminar Next Wk.

On Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday, March 21, 22, and 23, 1954, The Methodist Student Movement will sponsor a Christian Citizen Seminar. Most of the sessions will be held on the Millsaps Campus, and will be attended by representatives from twenty-five colleges and junior colleges over the state of Mississippi.

Prominent political leaders of the state, including state legislators will participate in the program designed to alert students to their responsibility in their own states.

CMS Sponsors Medical Forum

The Central Medical Society will present a medical forum at the Christian Center Auditorium Thursday night, April 1. This is the first in a series of meetings which will be held for four consecutive Thursday nights. The panel will be made up of doctors of the city of Jackson. The subjects discussed will be those which are given to the doctors at some time prior to the meetings. Questions about different diseases and treatment will be discussed. Millsaps students are invited and urged to attend. Such panels have been held in other cities quite successfully.

OPINION POLL—

Student, Faculty Are Concerned Over Recent Question Of Rights

In a student-faculty poll taken on the Millsaps Campus this week, a majority of students and faculty members felt that the recent stand taken by the Mississippi State Legislature and Mississippi's governor on the right of an Ole Miss Professor, Dr. Schnur, to criticize a state institution involves a matter of academic freedom, and could tend to create dangerous results.

In answer to the question "Do you think that academic freedom is involved in the governor's recent censure of an Ole Miss Professor" the following responses were made:

Robert E. Bergmark — If the exchange of views was simply that and no more, there is no question of academic freedom involved. Each person has as much right to express himself as any other. But if anyone, because he expresses views sincerely arrived at, is persecuted, silenced, or removed from his position, then, no matter who he may be, a question of freedom is involved, and if the person in question is a teacher then the freedom involved is academic freedom.

Howell Polk — Certainly academic freedom was involved. The purpose of sociology is to exhibit the existing facts of the society and its institutions without discrimination due to adverse situations or to the fact that the real truth might be known. How can we expect to rectify deplorable

American Association of University Professors Is Organized In Mississippi

The Mississippi State Council of the American Association of University Professors will meet on the Millsaps Campus at 10:30 March 20, 1954. The permanent organization of this group will be completed at this time.

Founders' Day Observed; Lewis Speaks In Chapel

The Rev. Osmond Lewis, pastor of the Collins Methodist Church, was the guest speaker for the 1954 Founder's Day which was observed at Chapel period Thursday, March 11.

President Finger introduced the 1903 graduate who spoke on his life while at Millsaps College.

Rev. Lewis, who was one of four brothers to be at Millsaps for the school year 1898-99, has served in many Mississippi Churches. Among these are the Broad Street Church in Hattiesburg, at Brandon, Shubuta, Gibson Memorial, and First Church at Laurel.

Among his many activities associated with the college are his being elected to the board of Trustees where he remained twenty-seven years, and he was president of the Alumni Association in 1933, the year his daughter, Ann Stevens, graduated.

Rev. Lewis has cooperated fully with three past presidents of the college. These are Dr. Watkins, Dr. Key, and Dr. Smith. He was also influential in planning and working to get the new Christian Center building on the campus.

conditions when we are not allowed to be aware of their presence? To censure this professor's lecture was to deny one of the privileges and obligations of his profession.

Miss Mildred Moorhead — From what I know about it I would say, yes.

Audrey Jennings — Yes, because I don't think that anything in the government should be above criticism. If it can be improved, I think it should be and where constructive criticism is offered I think it should be taken rather than censored.

George Maddox — Yes and no. Academic freedom was involved, but since it was known that a criminologist was studying the institution and was expected to make a report, he had every right to say what he found out. The governor must have said that the professor should be fired in a rash statement.

Jack Dunbar — Whether the professor's charges were valid or not, he certainly had a right to question the operation of a public institution. It seems to me that when an educator, especially, is censured for critically examining an issue, then we approach the point where indoctrination replaces education. It is obvious why the professor was the object of the governor's vituperative remarks, and this in itself makes the occurrence more appalling.

Approximately Four Hundred Visit Here High School Day

North Mississippi State Band Festival To Be At Millsaps, April 8, 9, 10

The North-Mississippi division of the State Band Festival will be held on the Millsaps College Campus on April 8, 9, and 10, 1954. Most of the sessions will be held in the Christian Center Building.

Ole Miss Singers At Millsaps CC Auditorium

The Ole Miss Concert Singers will appear in a concert on the Millsaps Campus in the Christian Center Auditorium on March 25. The group from the University is being sponsored by the Jackson Business and Professional Women's Club.

Approximately four hundred students participated in the annual Millsaps High School Day held Saturday, March 12. Students throughout Mississippi took part in the day's activities which included scholarship competition, tours, departmental exhibitions, and entertainment.

Millsaps students acted as guides on tours for the guests and faculty members directed interviews for the high school students.

The Chi Omegas presented their prize-winning skit of stunt night "A Thousand and One Nights" and "Highland Laddies Fling or Jilt of the Kilts" was presented by the Kappa Deltas, who placed second on Stunt Night. A film on the life of a Millsaps student was shown, and Hardy Nall presented entertainment between the acts. The Millsaps Singers presented three musical selections to end the afternoon program.

A guided tour of the fraternity and sorority houses was conducted for the seniors from 3:00 to 4:00.

Dinner was served at 5:15, and a farewell party was given in Buie gym from 6:15 to 7:15 p.m.

SCIENCE DISPLAYS INTERESTING

Many of the outstanding points of interest to the high school seniors visiting the Millsaps Campus were the science displays in Sullivan-Harrell Hall. Millsaps students are shown above explaining an exhibit to some seniors.

GREETING HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS

Shown above is another scene from High School Day last weekend. Here a Millsaps student is greeting a group of high school seniors.

"YWCA Is World-Wide Fellowship"Says Miss Kathaleen Carpenter

"Girls, do you have imagination, initiative, and a sense of humor? Would you like to meet new people? If the answer is an emphatic 'yes'—you're wanted!" So says Miss Kathaleen L. Carpenter, member of the Community Division field staff of the National Board of the Young Women's Christian Association. Miss Carpenter, during her visit to Millsaps, will interview young women of the campus who may be interested in a social work career.

"If you meet the above requirements the YWCA is definitely interested in you," Miss Carpenter says. "Jobs in the YWCA are many and varied. For instance, if you've had a hankering to travel to some part of the country that holds a fascination for you it is possible to do so because of the YWCA's extensive program. Also, many YW activities are co-educational and staff members work with community leaders of both sexes. There are wide opportunities to make new friendships," Miss Carpenter added.

She points out that the YWCA is a world-wide fellowship of democracy in action, carrying out its program through a variety of co-ed group activities in clubs, classes, workshops, forums, sports, can- teens, and projects such as Students-in-Industry and student European Seminars. "To give such broad leadership we need staff members who feel real concern about people and their growth, who like to work with them, and who care deeply about the YW aims—both local and international," Miss Carpenter explains.

Such staff members will have interesting and varied experiences, working with people of different religions, national and racial culture, and economic backgrounds," she adds. They can be assured of professional advancement and the challenge of a creative career which can be combined with marriage. They will also have an opportunity to be of great service to the community.

Miss Carpenter is interested in interviewing persons for group work, health, and physical education jobs in student and community associations. These jobs require a bachelor's degree with training in such fields as social studies, psychology, physical education, religion, recreation, education, and group leadership experience. She will be at Millsaps for one day, March 24. Her visit comes at a time when local Associations throughout the nation are making plans for celebrating the hundredth anniversary of the YWCA in 1955. The three-fold Centennial observance will emphasize rededication of the 3,000,000 members to the Christian purpose of the YWCA, increasing membership, and raising a Centennial Fund for strengthening the work of the organization.

As a field staff member, Miss Carpenter works with community YWCA's on all phases of program and administration. She is responsible for cooperation with Association leadership on teen-age program, on business, professional and industrial members, on YW Wives, and on health education. She also advises on questions of finance and community relations.

Miss Carpenter has had wide experience in the YWCA. Joining the organization in 1941, she worked as director of the teen-age and of business and industrial girls departments in the YW's in St. Petersburg, Florida, and Evansville, Indiana. Later she was on the staffs of the YWCA's in Richmond, Virginia, and in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, in the same capacity. Before becoming a field staff worker she was Executive Director of the San Fernando Valley Branch of the Los Angeles YWCA and metropolitan teen-age executive for the Los Angeles area.

A graduate in sociology from Maryville College in Tennessee, Miss Carpenter also studies religious education at Tennessee Wesleyan College in Athens, Tennessee. She has taken post-graduate studies in group work, volunteer training, and recreation at the University of Pittsburgh in Pennsylvania, and at the University of Southern California School of Social Work in Los Angeles.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

by Dick Bibler

"Since in the past I've taught this for five hours credit—It probably seems like a lot of work for a two-hour course."

Sports Views

By John Morris

Intramurals competition has become much keener this year. All of the organizations are showing a lot of interest in the program, and even though the Sigs have all but cinched the intramural cup for this year, the competition is remaining high.

This is in direct contrast to past years, when every team except the winning team has been ready to quit as soon as the title is decided.

One reason for the interest could be that there is now an intramural committee, with members from each organization, which acts as a governing body over the various intramural activities. This group meets once a week, with Coach Bartling sitting in to help the policy-making of the committee.

In years previous one man, appointed by Bartling to serve during a semester, has had the entire job to do by himself. In general, these intramural chairmen have done a very poor job. One reason could have been that this man got very little help from the organizations.

Now the umpires for the various games come from the organizations taking a part. Thus far this system has worked very satisfactorily.

The point system for judging the intramural champion has been changed. The points for the three major sports, speedball, basketball, and softball, are 40-30-20 instead of 40-20-10, for first, second, and third place. The minor sports tennis and golf now count 20-15-10 instead of 20-10-5.

The men taking a part in the games seem to be having more fun than previously, probably because of these changes.

Baseball Practice Begins Here

Next Week; Few Returning

Organized baseball practice will not get underway until the first part of next week because of bad weather during the first part of this week.

Coach Sammy Bartling has a rebuilding job ahead of him for this Spring. Only nine lettermen are returning from last season. There are two positions, catcher and third baseman, where there is no returning letterman or prospect.

Lettermen returning are: Pitchers: Tommy Woods, Jack Speights, and Ken Simmons; First Base: Fred Powers; Catchers: None; Second Base: Joe Hobbs and Read Jones; Short Stop: Crow Parnell; Third Base: None. In the outfield there are two returning lettermen — Sammy Joe Glorioso and Bennie Kirkland. It is very doubtful that Kirkland will play this season.

Tommy Parker, out for the past two seasons with an injury, is returning this year, and he should bolster the mound staff some. Also reporting for the early season drills will be Walter Waldrop. A pitcher last year, Waldrop did not letter. He will probably be moved to the outfield this season. Coach Bartling has already announced one change. Parnell, a letterman at third base last year, will be moved to short stop to try to fill the gap left by Les Griffith, a freshman last season who transferred at the end of the year.

Student Government In Pakistan Has Troubles, Communists Included

Special Report from the Student Mirror

One can hardly speak of student government and representation of student interests in the Western sense in Pakistan. It is true that there are students' unions everywhere on the college level, but these bodies have little responsibility. The entire student body elects its representatives once a year, usually at the beginning of the summer semester. In most colleges only the vice-president and general secretary are chosen by the entire student body, while the university names the president — usually the college principal — and the treasurer from the ranks of the professors. It is true that in some colleges the president and treasurer are elected by the student body, too, as in Punjab and Peshawar. The "cabinet" consists of the representatives named by the university (if any), the representatives chosen by the student body, and a representative for each class. The activity of these students' unions is quite limited. It is usually restricted to theatrical organizations, film clubs, sports representations, and especially debates. Each college has a college magazine which is published yearly or half-yearly under the direction of professors and some students. Here and there, the students' unions exercise a certain influence on the way of life in residence halls through residence halls committees.

Theoretically, the student's unions are non-political. But a leftist influence is becoming more and more noticeable. Some unions are completely Communist-controlled. Nevertheless, they are generally loyal to the state, just as, on the whole, a strong feeling of responsibility among Pakistan students toward the state can be determined in contrast to India.

There is little intercourse between students and professors.

My Dear
Callie Crud

(NOTE: Miss Crud tenders advice only through this column. She will not make private appointments or give advice through the mail.)

Dear Miss Crud:

I have tried to be a good wife and a good mother. I fear, however, that I am a failure. Let me tell you about it.

My husband, John, and I have been married happily for thirty-four years. We had (until recently) three lovely little daughters, aged 2, 3, and 4, respectively.

Hubby Dons Knucks

Not long ago, my husband developed the mania which is wrecking our marriage. He began fancying himself as the outdoor-type man. The little girls were started on a training program which would lead to membership in the Girls Scouts. We began subscribing to "Woodsmen of the World," and John began to carry a deer rifle and a pair of brass knuckles around with him. I don't mind the deer rifle because John is a very poor shot, but he is fairly accurate with the brass knuckles.

Child Hatcheted

Several days ago, upon returning from a meeting of my bridge club, I discovered that our youngest child had been chopped into tiny pieces with a Girl Scout hatchet. When I mentioned this to my husband, he chuckled and hit me in the teeth again with the brass knuckles.

My problem is this: in order to save our marriage, should I become a troop-mother in the Girl Scouts? Also, will the feminine appeal which I have for John be lessened if I let him know that I am getting false teeth?

Anxiously yours,
Toothless

Dear Toothless:

In answer to your first question, no, you shouldn't become a troop-mother in the Girl Scouts. Being spineless will only spoil your husband (from your letter I gather that he is already used to having his own way). Point out to him that other accidents may occur with the Girl Scout hatchet around, and persuade him to allow you to return it in exchange for a set of throwing knives.

Disillusioned Dentist

You also wanted to know if you should tell your husband that you are getting plates to replace the knocked-out teeth. Yes, tell him! He will probably appreciate their utility. Point out to him that they may be removed before he hits you, thereby saving large dentist bills.

Marriage on the Rocks

Now, as to the general state of your marriage. It is in a bad way. You are obviously too lenient with your husband. Be firm with him. Insist on having your own way at least half of the time. Remember, my dear, that the workable marriage must be based on a complete basis of equality. By showing your John that you are determined to share 50-50, you may do much toward saving your marriage.

Hoping for your future happiness and success, I remain,

Compassionately yours,
Calcamine Crud

Professor Ferguson Reveals Interesting Past and Education

Jimmy Ferguson Jr. was born in this prof, and he has an interesting story to prove it. In 1948, during the States Rights campaign, Professor Ferguson had taken his debating team to visit the precinct convention on the campus. One of his students who it seems was especially impressed with the professor's qualifications and thought he should get into the race, promptly proceeded to nominate him to oppose the candidates for the county convention. When the returns came in, Professor James Ferguson of Millsaps College came embarrassingly close to being elected.

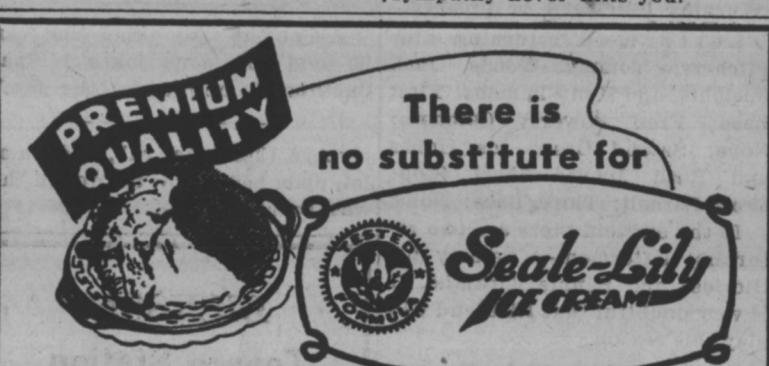

Millsaps is proud to have this man with so many honors on its faculty. As an historian, he is a member of the Southern Historical Association, the Mississippi Valley Historical Society, and has written articles that appeared in the Journal of Mississippi History. Last year he received the Ford Foundation Award which enables progressive men in the field of education to study at Yale—observing methods used in other colleges.

Millsaps welcomed him back to become Academic Dean. He now lives at 4876 Maple Drive with his wife Frances and two daughters, Francie and Lynn. He is a member of the Broadmeadow Methodist Church and is on the church board of stewards.

Aside from a multitude of Dean's duties, he does get in at least one form of recreation, which consists, he says, of running up the stairs of Murrah Hall, exactly three minutes after eight each morning, Monday through Friday. He certainly is proof that Millsaps professors have not lost their sense of humor.

Two lunatics, each firm in the belief that he was a lifeguard, escaped from an asylum and were trudging along the road in search of an ocean. Presently they came upon a large field of wheat which rippled in the breeze, much like waves of the sea. Shedding their clothes, they scrambled up a telephone pole and the first one dove off. A moment later his head dazedly emerged from the wheat. "Dive to the left," he cautioned his companion. "I struck a sand bar."

A heart enlarged by love and sympathy never kills you.

Fredda's Fragments

Well High School Day is now official history and we're no worse for the hectic week-end (or are we?). I would say that we had a pretty fair turnout considering the peculiarity of the weather. (See, I always have to mention the weather in some capacity. What would I do without it?) I will say that I wasn't overjoyed to climb out of bed at seven a.m. on Saturday just to welcome the high school seniors but my staunch school spirit spurred me ever onward. All sarcasm aside, I think the visitors had a good time.

Putting a plug in for Mr. Marley, I'd like to express a liking for broiled chicken. I was one of the lucky ones who got to eat before the food ran out. Oh well, nothing ever happens perfectly... next year we'll laugh about it. In the meantime, let's have some more chicken like that! (Please, Mr. Marley, don't throw any cake at me, I don't like it!). Generally, I believe the entire program was very successful.

The Rivals

I trust you've all seen THE RIVALS by now. If you haven't you've missed something. The cast and scenery committee have really put a lot of time and effort into it and I'll stick my neck out to say that it should be nothing short of tremendous. All the costumes were ordered from New York and they are fabulous. It's worth the price of a ticket to see the boys in those colonial wigs.

Romance?

Here it is spring and the time of year when young man's fancy turns to thoughts of romance. Maybe the cold weather has had some effect but not one person that I could track down (and I tried) has become engaged, pinned, ringed, going steady, or even dated. Please... have a little sympathy for the society column. After all, we can't continue to fill up space with nothing... or can we? Surely this week's example should be convincing proof that I am in dire need of romantic news. That about ties it for this week.

Christelle Ferguson, Editor of "Eleusis", Visits Chi Omegas

Miss Christelle Ferguson, editor of the Eleusis (official Chi Omega Publication) and chapter visitor, will visit the Chi Delta Chapter of Chi Omega on Monday, March 22, through Wednesday, March 24.

During these three days Miss Ferguson will hold consultations with all the officers of the chapter, committee chairmen, and the Dean of Women.

The climax of Miss Ferguson's visit will come Wednesday night when the Chi Omega's hold their annual Eleusinian Banquet celebrating their Founder's Day on April 5, 1895. The charter members of Chi Delta Chapter and also all the alumnae have been extended a special invitation to attend the banquet which will be held at the Convention Hall of the Robert E. Lee Hotel.

Highlights of the program will be the address by Miss Ferguson and an original skit presented by the present members of Chi Delta. The skit was written by Ann Carter and Minnie Farlow. The Chi Omega's are celebrating their twentieth birthday on the Millsaps Campus this year.

No Criticism, Please!

When the Mississippi legislature passed an absurd equalization program for state schools and then failed to pass legislation to finance this product of stupidity we were confident that they had reached a new low level in law making.

We were wrong.

When the Mississippi legislature passed the delightfully farcical "Right to Work" bill behind the "rah, rah's" of industry, we were then certain beyond a doubt that they had sunk to their lowest level.

We were wrong.

When the Mississippi legislature failed to pass legislation granting voting privileges to 18-year-olds "because it would give the vote to more Negroes," we threw our hands up and moaned: "surely, this is the poorest excuse ever given by a state law-making body."

We were wrong.

When the Mississippi legislature recently chided the University of Mississippi with a threat of cutting off funds to the school because of remarks made by one of its professors, we were again convinced that they could do nothing cheaper.

We're still waiting.

Dr. Alfred Schnur, professor of sociology at the University of Mississippi, speaking to the Rotary Club at Oxford, made the remark that Parchman was "a breeding ground for criminals . . ." Governor Hugh White immediately shouted to high heaven that the scoundrel should be fired for criticising a holy state institution which one should presume to be above reproach. He implied that this statement could have a direct bearing on the appropriations of the legislature to the University of Mississippi. Then, the governor had the gall to say that there was no question of academic freedom involved. We can only wonder, in our stupidity, what the heck is involved then.

The governor said that he didn't care what the professor said—so long as it was said in class. Does he not grant to University professors the right of citizenship? Is not teaching a legal profession, and does not the professional person have the right to discuss the objectives and findings of his profession—in classroom or out? Certainly, no intelligent person can believe that there is no question of academic freedom involved.

Since the episode occurred, there have appeared in the state (thank God) many editorials from the pens of men who still have fear lest certain politicians steal from under our very eyes freedom of speech, etc. These men were indignant over the action of the legislature and of the governor. There were one or two editorials in the state written in favor of the action of the legislature. Following is an editorial appearing in The Mississippian, Ole Miss's student newspaper this week:

OUR TWO CENTS ON THE 'PRISON WALLS'

"The controversy of the preceding week of the purity of our present penal system and over Dr. Alfred Schnur's right to criticize the system has proved one thing: freedom of speech is limited in this state and likewise freedom of thought, and many Mississippians either distrust or hate non-conformists.

"After Dr. Schnur criticised Mississippi's penal system, Governor White said that he should be fired for behaving 'unbecomingly.' The penitentiary committee threatened 'the budget'; Chancellor Williams and Dean of Law Robert Farley defended Schnur's right to speak, and everybody editorialized on the matter.

"Schnur's right to speak has never been questioned in our minds and neither has the right of anybody else to criticise Schnur. But the grammar school character of some of the comments coming out of Jackson last week has been enough to repulse anybody.

"In addition to official comments, the Jackson Daily News reiterated the tone of their remarks by asking 'what the hell business' had Ole Miss with a criminologist? For that matter 'what the hell business' have we with an engineering or law faculty or any professional faculty?

"We have been under the impression that the business of this school is to train people in useful professions and work for the progress of the state in every way.

"Ole Miss will continue to train students and do research for the state, we think, and will continue also to have qualified professional men on its faculty. We are proud that Mississippi's share of backwardness cannot be attributed to Ole Miss."

Following is an editorial from the Jackson Daily News containing comment of the grammar school character:

SLURS FROM DR. SCHNUR

"Governor Hugh White is quite correct in saying that no question of academic freedom is involved in the sharp censure of Mississippi's penitentiary system by Dr. Alfred Schnur, a self-styled criminologist on the faculty of the University of Mississippi. The professor overspoke himself.

"In the first place, what the hell business has Ole Miss with a criminologist, penologist, or whatever he sees fit to call himself, on its faculty?

"Since when did it become desirable or necessary for Mississippi's foremost educational institution to teach the boys and girls of our state about crimes and criminals, methods of prison management, rehabilitation of convicts, and similar flim-flam, fol-de-rol and flap-doodle? We need teachers of criminology in our institutions of learning just about like the average man needs seven more holes in his head.

"Surely, in all the wide realm of education, there are many other subjects of more value and importance to the youth of our state than ways and means of coddling convicts.

"The Daily News knows nothing about the educational qualifications of Dr. Schnur, where he came from and where he is going from here, but what he has said in criticism of the Mississippi penal system is proof conclusive that he doesn't know what he is talking about and that he is no more capable of prison management than he could be in piloting a stratosphere plane to Jupiter. No matter how many college degrees he has trailing behind his name, Dr. Schnur is not qualified to sit in judgment on the Parchman penal farm, which is essentially an agricultural operation under highly capable management.

"Parchman is a wonderful training school for criminals," says Dr. Schnur. That's a bid of platitudinous pifle that has been uttered by so-called prison reformers ever since prisons were established.

"No doubt if criminologists and penologists had their way about it, the prison farm at Parchman would be fully air-conditioned for the summer months, breakfast would be served in bed to convicts, Oriental rugs on all floors, menus prepared in accordance with the Waldorf-Astoria standard, radio and television sets in each cell, barbers, massagists and manicurists provided, and labor limited to two hours per day.

"Unfortunately for the inmates, prisons can't be run that way."

And now, with the quotes quoted, we would like very much to pose a question or two for the perusal of the writer of this latter editorial.

Who the hell says that the professor is a "self-styled" criminologist? It seems to us that a person who holds a Ph.D. degree in his field should know more about criminology than a common newspaper editor. The title, "self-styled" seems to fit the latter critic much better than it does Dr. Schnur.

Since when did it become desirable or necessary for Mississippi's foremost educational institution NOT to teach about criminology, etc. Would the writer say that we should discard the teaching of religion, mathematics, science, history, etc. Certainly, as many sound arguments could be formed for the elimination of all other courses as has been proposed for the elimination of criminology.

Would not seven more holes be advisable for certain heads?

Is the writer really being fair in charging that criminologists and penologists would like to see Parchman air-conditioned, etc.? We have never heard of a professor proposing such absurd changes. They only feel that the Medieval penal institutions have been outmoded with the progress of mankind, and that rehabilitated criminals make better citizens when they are pardoned than do embittered men who have been subjected to the fond lashes of the whip. No, these criminologists only study existing situations and make recommendations.

We are totally unfamiliar with the conditions at Parchman, and so far as this issue is concerned, it is unimportant. However, an issue of paramount importance is the right of a person on the staff of a state supported institution of higher learning to find the truth, irregardless of whose toes are stepped on in the search. We feel that a university professor should have the right to search for the facts—to analyze the facts—and to make recommendations when the facts justify such. When he is denied this right by the state there is clearly a matter of academic freedom involved.

Letter to Editor

Dear Editor:

Last year was my first year here at Millsaps. My attention was drawn to all the landmarks—observatory, M-Bench., the bell, the resting place of Major Millsaps, etc.—that first year. The resting place of Major Millsaps, the founder of our beloved alma mater, began to take on a new look that year because of the special efforts of one member of our faculty. Weeds began to disappear and flowers and shrubbery took their places. Grass was planted in the bare spots around the tomb also. All of this made the vault the beauty spot of the campus.

Within the last two semesters the student body (that includes me) and the faculty have used this plot of ground for a shortcut to class. Last Friday grass was replanted.

I am wondering if we as a student body would put forth a special effort, by taking extra steps and use the walks, to help Mrs. Goodman keep this as a beauty spot of the campus? Or we might even go farther and make the campus a beauty spot of Jackson.

Marines Seek College Women For Training

Washington, D. C. — "The United States Marine Corps is looking for the best caliber of college women this country has to offer, to serve as commissioned officers in the U. S. Marines."

This was the main theme of a recent conference in which Colonel Julia E. Hamblet, Director of Women Marines, was interviewed for college campus publications.

"We've found that college women fill a vital role in the Marine Corps as command and administrative officers," said the head of 2700 Women Marines. She feels that service in the Armed Forces is one of the most rewarding opportunities in life. In addition, as Colonel Hamblet pointed out, a career in the Marine Corps is a profitable one, since a college woman can earn up to $4250 upon appointment to the rank of second lieutenant.

Women Marine Officers are a permanent part of the Marine Corps, and are assigned leadership positions at Marine Corps bases and air stations in the United States, Hawaii, and Europe.

Preparation for these assignments begins for the individual at the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Virginia, where the Women Officers Training Class is held each winter and summer. Qualified young women who are college undergraduates attend two six-week training sessions during their summer vacations. College graduates are trained in one continuous 12-week session during either the winter or summer months. Upon completion of the WOTC, candidates become full-fledged second lieutenants.

Final Tryouts Will Be Held Monday For Next Play Here

The Millsaps Players' next production, The Madwoman of Chaillot, is to be presented May 12, 13, and 14. Try-outs were held Wednesday, March 31, and Monday, April 5. Final try-outs will be held Monday, April 12, at 1:15 in the Christian Center Auditorium. Anyone who has not read for the play and would like to do so is invited to attend these try-outs. The cast will be announced on Tuesday, April 13. Rehearsals will begin immediately. Needed especially is someone for The Juggler and someone for The Street Singer.

There are eight speaking parts for women and seventeen for men. Altogether there are thirty-seven roles, but that includes doubles.

The Madwoman of Chaillot is a comic fantasy by the modern French dramatist, Jean Giraudoux. Giraudoux also wrote Onine, a play running now on Broadway starring Audrey Hepburn and Mel Ferrer. The Madwoman of Chaillot won the New York Drama Critics' Award in 1949 for the best foreign play of the year. It had a run in New York of over 400 performances. Maritita Hunt starred as the Madwoman of Chaillot with John Carradine as the Ragpicker.

The play was written in 1944 when Giraudoux was in Switzerland because of the French Occupation. He wrote it for Louis Jounet, France's foremost actor-producer-director but would not let it be produced during the French Occupation. Giraudoux did not live to see it produced for the first time in Paris in 1945.

Jack Cooper Wins Bownocker Grant To Ohio State

Last week John E. (Jack) Cooper received notice of his appointment as Bownocker Fellowship winner for the 1953-54 year at Ohio State University. The award is for $800 and waiver of tuition.

History is repeating itself in this instance, as Cooper's geology teacher, Dr. R. R. Priddy held the same fellowship for two years. Jack's letter of appointment was signed by Dr. Carl A. Lamey, now head of the Geology Department at Ohio State. He is the same professor who guided Dr. Priddy in his graduate work.

Jack Cooper is very deserving of this honor. He has an enviable scholastic record, and is president of Theta Nu Sigma, Millsaps' science honorary. Jack has also served for the past two years as laboratory assistant in geology.

Priddy, Burford To Attend Geology Meet In Carolina

Millsaps College is to be represented at the Geological Society of America which will meet at Columbia, South Carolina, on April 16. A joint paper is to be delivered describing sediments of parts of Mississippi Sound, the shallow muddy bottoms comprising much of Mississippi's Gulf Coast. The authors are Dr. Richard R. Priddy, head of the Millsaps College department of geology; Robert M. Crisler, geology graduate of 1952, and at present, a candidate for a master's degree at Emory University; and Hugh Burford, senior at Millsaps and a history major.

Priddy and Crisler delivered a similar paper last year at the Nashville meeting of the Geological Society. That paper dealt with the 1952 summer of research when suitable bottoms were found for planting oysters near shore where salt water enemies could not reach them. In 1953, the program was expanded so that Hugh Burford joined the group as analytic chemist to determine the chemical nature and nutrient value of the sediments.

Bass Pecan Company Contributes 200 Trees

Mr. J. H. Bass, Jr. of the Bass Pecan Company has given to Millsaps 200 paper shell pecan trees. Mr. Bass is the president of the South-Eastern Pecan Growers Association. The setting out of these trees on the campus has already begun with the planting of some near the gym and tennis courts.

Sigma Lambda Elects Officers

Sigma Lambda, women's leadership honorary, announced this week the election of its 1954-55 officers at its regular meeting last month.

The new officers elected are as follows: president, Fredda Shelton; vice-president, Ann Carter; secretary-treasurer, Helen Fay Head; historian, Mary Lynn Graves.

Sigma Lambda sponsors many campus functions, among which are Coffee Hour and the annual varsity show.

Noted Author And Lecturer Will Be Principal Speaker

Dr. George Arthur Buttrick will be the fourth speaker to come to Millsaps College for the Religious Emphasis Week program to be held May 5, 6, and 7, 1954. Religious Emphasis week is held annually on the Millsaps Campus under the auspices of the J. Lloyd Decell fund.

Dr. Buttrick, author and professor, will hold services on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday nights in the Christian Center, at 10:30 in the mornings, and 7:30 in the evenings. Classes will be rearranged so students can attend all of the morning services. The time of the services in the evening was set so that people in Jackson, and from all over the state, may attend. The first service to be held on Wednesday morning will be the required chapel service of the week.

Dr. Buttrick was born at Seaford, England in 1892, and was educated at Leeds Central High School, Victoria University at Manchester, and Lancashire Independent Seminary. He graduated from Victoria University with honors in Philosophy. He holds degrees from Hamilton College, Middlebury College, Yale University, Miami University, Princeton University, Albright College, Bethany College, and Columbia University.

He has served pastorates at many of the largest congregational and Presbyterian Churches in the United States, as well as serving as College preacher at some of the outstanding colleges of the nation.

Dr. Buttrick's books include "The Parables of Jesus", "The Christian Fact and Modern Doubt", "Prayer", "Christ and Man's Dilemma", "So We Believe, So We Pray", and "Faith and Education".

He was general editor of The Interpreter's Bible, a twelve volume commentary on the Holy Scriptures.

The general topic of Dr. Buttrick's sermons during Religious Emphasis Week is "The Christian Faith in the Present Crisis". The break down of the general topic from day-to-day is:

1. The True Nature of the Crisis
2. What Can One Man Do?
3. The Lost Generation: Rediscovering ourselves
4. Faith, Crisis, and Fear
5. Faith, Crisis, and Failure
6. Faith, Crisis, and Death

Committee members, discussion groups, and discussion topics will be announced as soon as plans are completed. Methodist ministers from all over Mississippi have been sent invitations, and the general public is invited to attend all of these services.

Stylus Will Be Distributed Next Week; Authors Listed

Stylus, Millsaps' Literary magazine, will be distributed one day next week according to Frank Mangum, editor.

This semester's copy of the magazine will contain fifteen stories, written by twelve people. The price of the magazine will again be twenty-five cents per copy.

Other members of the staff of Stylus are Mary Grantham, business manager and Miss Thomasina Blissard, faculty advisor. Members of the English Department aiding in making the selections include Dr. M. C. White, Mrs. W. F. Goodman, Miss Blissard, Miss Mildred Morehead, Professor Paul Hardin, Mrs. Mary Stone.

The following selections will appear in this issue of Stylus:

"Starlight and Pink," Mary Vaughan; "The Wind Doth

"Blow," Cliff Rigby; "The Ten Percent," Bill Stallworth; "Ya-Ta-Hay Shi-Do-Ni," Scott McCarty; "Whose Weakness?" Eddie Gossard.

Alpha Psi Elects Six New Members

Alpha Psi Omega, national dramatics honorary at Millsaps College, announces the tapping of six new members in the regular chapter services yesterday.

These new members will be initiated at the next regular meeting of Alpha Psi Omega, which will be held on Wednesday, April 22.

Memphis Alumnus Group Organized

On March 17 the Memphis, Tennessee, Millsaps Alumnus organization was organized. This organization was the outgrowth of the meeting held with Mr. Livesay and President Finger. The officers elected were president, Bill Wofford of the class of 1938; vice-president, Rev. David Watts of the class of 1942; and the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. P. B. Nations, nee Erlene Johnson. The next meeting of this group was planned for April 22.

Tennis Team Starts Well; Golf Team On The Road

The golf and tennis teams will see considerable action in the next few weeks with both teams rounding into shape rapidly.

The tennis team, under the direction of Dr. White, has already competed in dual matches with Miss. College, Ole Miss, and the netters of Miss. Southern. The results of these matches have been most encouraging as the Major netmen defeated the Chocs 5-4; were outclassed somewhat by Ole Miss, and upset the favored Southerners 6-3.

A return match is slated with Miss. Southern at Hattiesburg on Wednesday of this week. Then, next Saturday, the Ole Miss team will invade Battlefield Park for a return match. A better showing is predicted in this match, and all students are urged to be on hand. Members of the tennis team are Powers Moore, Bill James, Willard Leggett, Jimmy McCormick, George Hunt, Fred Abraham, and Charles Cooper.

The golf team does not have a full schedule of matches arranged to date, but a few more matches will be added soon. The present schedule calls for 4 matches; two with Miss. State, and two with Miss. Southern on a home and home basis. Today the golf team, composed of Jerry Boykin, Bubba Spencer, John Cook, and Bill Lampton, will go to Starkville to play Miss. State. The following Wednesday the team will go to Miss. Southern for an initial match, which will be returned in Jackson on May 7.

SOUTH AFRICA: DISCRIMINATION AGAIN . . .

The National Union of South Africa students has renewed protests against discrimination at Witwatersrand University. The Union says the university—which has been attacked before for discrimination—put colored students at a disadvantage when grading a recent examination.

Since Witwatersrand still officially welcomes members of all races, the Union says equal rights must be maintained.

Even the inevitable needs a gentle push now and then.

Fredda's Fragments

Looking around the campus this past week, I've become convinced that over half the student body is gone on Singers' tour. Really, I didn't realize what a big gap sixty people could make—true proof that Millsaps is a small liberal arts college. (This is just professional jealousy. My voice wasn't good enough). Reports from tour is a Chi Omega, and Red is a Kappa Sig.

Bridge Tourney Will Be In April

The Bridge Tournament, which appears to be developing into an annual event, will be held on April 12, 13, and 14. Sponsored by the Interfraternity Council and held for the first time last year, the Bridge Tournament was a huge success with 16 couples entering and participating all three nights.

The only requirement you must meet to enter the tournament is that you and your partner must remain in the contest all three nights. If you decide after Monday night that you would like to enter, you may do so. Monday night at 6:30 there will be a meeting of all participants at the Kappa Sigma House at which time the rules of the tournament will be read and explained by Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Clark of Jackson, judges this year.

Trophies will be awarded to the members of the winning team at the end of the tournament. Last year the first place winners were Betty Gray and Minnie Farlow.

The tournament will be held on Monday night at the Kappa Sigma House, Tuesday at the Lambda Chi House, and Wednesday at the Pike House.

1; Johnny Howell of Durant, No. 2; and Tarver Butler of Hattiesburg, No. 3.

Alpha Mu not only walked away with the scholarship trophy for the third straight semester, thus winning it permanently, but also ranked highest chapter of the Kappa Alpha Order scholastically for 1952-1953. The announcement of the top chapter was made in the latest issue of the Kappa Alpha Journal.

MAJOR MAJOR—

Former P&W Editor Is Honored As Major Major

Eddie Gossard, former editor of the Purple and White, is in the spotlight this week as Master Major.

In addition to serving the P&W Eddie has been on the Methodist Youth Council of the Mississippi Conference for three years and has appeared on the Dean's List for six semesters. During his years at Millsaps, Eddie has been active in intramurals, having played softball and basketball.

A senior English major, Eddie is a member of Kit Kat, men's literary honorary fraternity on the campus, and is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, men's leadership honorary. He served as vice president of ODK. He is also a member of the International Relations Club and the Student Executive Board.

Eddie was selected to appear in the 1953-1954 edition of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

One of his most valuable contributions to the college is his serving as chairman of the S.E. B. committee to study reorganization of the student government.

When asked how he liked Mill-saps, Eddie replied, "These last two or three years have been among the most significant in the history of the school, and I feel fortunate in having been here."

Southern Literary Festival To Meet At Blue Mountain

The Southern Literary Festival, which will meet April 23 at Blue Mountain College, will feature three well-known speakers and discussion groups with the speakers leading them.

Thomas Hal Phillips, a novelist and the brother of Reubel Phillips, the Millsaps High School Day speaker from Corinth, will be a speaker at the morning general meeting. Mr. Phillips is the author of such works as The Bitterweed Path, The Golden Lie, Search for a Hero, and various short stories including "The Shadow of an Arm" which is anthologized in the O. Henry prize stories of 1951.

This novelist is a graduate of Mississippi State College and the University of Alabama. He is a former instructor in creative writing at Southern Methodist University and the holder of the Rosenwald Fellowship for Creative Writing (1947), the Eugene Saxton Memorial Award for 1948, the Fulbright Fellowship for 1950, and the Guggenheim Fellowship for 1953.

Peter R. E. Viereck, a poet and historian, is noted for his Terror and Decorum, Strike Through the Mask, and The First Morning, and as a critic of poetry, of Dream and Responsibility.

Metapolitics: From the Romantics to Hitler, Conservatism Revisited, and The Shame and Glory of the Intellectuals are his contributions to the historical field. He received his B. A. and PhD from Harvard. He is the winner of the Pulitzer Prize for Poetry of 1949 and the author of the Phi Beta Kappa Poem. He was the lecturer at the Fulbright conference.

Hodding Carter, an editor, novelist, and social critic, is noted for The Lower Mississippi, The Winds of Fear, Flood Crest, Southern Legacy, and Where Main Street Meets the River.

Mr. Carter is a graduate of Bowdoin College and holds an honorary M. A. degree from Harvard, and earned his Lit. D. from Bowdoin. He has been the editor of the Hammond La., Daily Courier, Stars and Stripes Yank, Middle East Editions, Delta Democrat-Times of Greenville, Miss.

He is the holder of the Nieman Fellowship for Newspapermen, and the Guggenheim Fellowship in Creative Writers for 1945. He was the winner of the Southern Literary award in 1945 and the Pulitzer Prize for editorial writing in 1946 and has been a member of the Pulitzer Prize advisory board.

In addition to Mr. Phillips, Mr. Viereck will also address the general meeting of the Festival in the morning. Mr. Carter will speak in the evening. During the afternoon the visiting speakers will meet with special discussion groups. Mr. Phillips will lead the one on fiction, Mr. Viereck on poetry, and Mr. Carter on expository writing. The latter is a new feature of the program and was suggested by the popularity of published "non-fiction."

Because of limited housing facilities, Blue Mountain College cannot offer overnight accommodations to visitors. Anyone interested in going will find listed with Dr. M. C. White a list of near-by hotel and tourist courts within a reasonable distance of the college. Anyone interested in attending should write for reservations in Tupelo, New Albany or Ripley.

Lunch and an informal dinner may be secured with the Festival group for $1 and $1.25 respectfully.

Mrs. Busybody was pumping the local doctor about the demise of the town's richest man.

"You knew him well," she cooed. "How much of his wealth did he leave?"

With a tip of his hat, the old doctor replied, "All of it, madam all of it."

As most of you know, the annual annual is the annual yearbook portraying events of the year which happen annually. This year, we understand, the annual will be in 3-D, glasses furnished free; and the books will be auctioned off to the highest bidders.

What is the Purple and White going to do for editorial matter?

At Agnes Scott College in Decatur, Ga., "Suppressed Desires Day" turned the campus upside down.

Students attended class, chapel and meals in shirts and jeans, and shouted in the library whenever they pleased. They greeted professors with "Bon jour, Pierre" or "Nice day, ain't it, Willie Joe," and answered instructors' classroom questions frankly, like "Well, Margaret, I see it this way . . ."

Anything went, and nobody got in trouble.

If you would like to have such a day at Millsaps, you should write a letter to the Dean, fold it, envelope it, and forget it.

Do you think this is funny? An artist, painting a picture in the country, had a farmer as an interested spectator.

"Ah, monsieur," sighed the artist, "perhaps you, too, love the beauties of nature. Have you seen the golden fingers of the dawn spreading across the eastern sky, the red-stained islets floating in the lake of fire in the west, ragged clouds of midnight blotting out the shuddering moon?"

"Nope," said the farmer. "Don't drink!"

Violence was narrowly averted at the city jail last week when ladies of the Methodist Church Choir visited the jail Sunday afternoon to serenade inmates with religious songs. The prisoners objected on grounds that such forms of punishment were not included in their sentences.

A young man's hardest problem is to find a girl attractive enough to please him, and dumb enough to marry him.

Dr. Price Elected National Veep Of Alpha Epsilon Delta

Dr. J. B. Price, head of the Millsaps chemistry department, was elected vice-president of Alpha Epsilon Delta at their national convention at Indiana University, last month.

AED, national pre-medical fraternity, was organized at the University of Alabama in 1926. There are now 64 active chapters scattered over the nation. The Millsaps chapter was established in 1935, nine years after the founding of the original chapter.

Dr. Price became a member of the Millsaps chapter in 1942, and has been faculty adviser for the last ten years. He has held the position of national vice-president for the last two years by appointment.

Dr. Price was born in Quitman, Clarke County, Mississippi, and graduated from the now defunct Clarke County Agricultural High School. In 1926, he received his B. S. degree from Millsaps College. In 1929 he received his M. S. from the University of Mississippi and in 1942, he received his Ph. D. from Louisiana State.

Dr. Price has been a member of the Millsaps' faculty since 1930, at first as an instructor in both math and chemistry. In 1943, he became head of the chemistry department. Under his leadership, the department has become recognized as one of the best and has been particularly successful in the pre-med field.

Dr. Price was member of both the Purple and White and Bobahela staff during his student days at Millsaps, and was elected a member of Kit Kat for his efforts.

He is also a member of Kappa Alpha social fraternity, the American Chemical Society, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and the Mississippi Academy of Science.

Ole Miss Holds College Play Day

The University of Mississippi is sponsoring a college Play-Day the weekend of May 7 and 8. Invitations are extended to all college girls in the state.

The Play Day begins Friday night with a square dance featuring the Collettes, famous dance team from Atlanta, Ga. Activities for the following day include competition in archery, tennis, badminton, softball, relays, and other events. The program will be climaxed with a gala banquet in honor of the winning team.

Anyone desiring to take part in the Ole Miss Play Day, please contact Miss Sain as soon as possible. Arrangements for transportation and housing need to be made soon.

The Little Theatre Will Give Annual Award To Player

This year marks the beginning of a new award to be presented to a Millsaps Player. The award, presented by the Jackson Little Theatre, is given for the most outstanding contribution in the field of production for this year. This award is in keeping with the Little Theatre's policy of encouraging excellence and achievement in local dramatics productions.

Mr. Jimmy Hewes, the president of the Little Theatre, announced that the award might be presented in any field and that the recipient is to be chosen by Alpha Psi Omega, national dramatics honorary.

The award will be announced at the Millsaps Players Awards Dinner on May 19. Four other awards will be presented: two acting awards to the outstanding actor and actress of the year, a junior acting award to a boy or girl for the best performance in a one-act play, the Alpha Psi Omega Award to the graduating senior for the greatest contribution in his or her college career.

Play Day Is Set For May Eleventh

The annual Play Day has been set for Tuesday, May 11. This day is set aside for students and faculty to get together informally in a day of athletic competition. This year's program promises many entertaining events.

Sharing the spotlight will be a faculty-student softball game for the male population of the Millsaps campus. The women will have their share of the fun in a faculty-student volleyball game.

Book is now being made, and the odds on rain for the day are stupendous. All students and faculty members are urged to participate in the day's activities.

Council Sponsors Chapel Periods

The Christian Council will sponsor the two chapel periods preceding Religious Emphasis Week, April 22 and April 29. The programs will be held in the form of panel discussions. Six members of the faculty have consented to be on the panel. Each time three will speak briefly on the question: "From the orientation of your particular field, what do you consider the basic problems of the world today?" After this, there will be a discussion period during which questions may be directed to the men by other panel members and by members of the audience. This is to tie in with Buttrick's theme, "The Christian Faith in the Present Crisis." The moderator will be Jack Dunbar. If anyone has any questions they would like presented to any of the men, they should submit them to Jack either before the chapel period or during the discussion period.

Academy Of Science Meets On Campus Friday, Saturday

Coast. Dr. F. W. James heads the Physical Science Section, and Dr. William C. Brett is co-chairman of the Biology Section.

The whole Millsaps student body is invited to attend the sectional meetings and to hear the addresses. A feature of unusual interest is an exhibit by the Junior Academy of Science in the laboratories of Sullivan Harrell Hall. Some 75 entries of scientific collections are expected from Junior High School and Senior High School students throughout the state. Prizes are offered for the best exhibit for the 7th and 8th grade group, for the 9th and 10th grade group, and the 11th and 12th grade division. Another feature that many students will be interested in will be a choice of three field trips to leave Millsaps College at 9:30 A. M.: one to Rex Brown power station, another to the Knox Bottle plant, and the third to the large scale model of the lower Mississippi River situated south of Clinton.

At 5 p. m. President and Mrs. Finger will hold a tea in honor of the speakers, delegates, and their guests. At 7 p. m. the Academy banquet will be held in the college cafeteria to be followed by the evening address in the Christian Center Auditorium by Dr. Peyton N. Rhodes, President of Southwestern College at Memphis.

Four Millsaps Students Win Grants For Graduate Study

A number of Millsaps seniors have received fellowships and scholarships for graduate study. Although, the list available is at present incomplete, we list below those that were available at the time of our deadline.

JACK DUNBAR

Jack Dunbar, of Sumner, Millsaps senior, has been awarded an assistantship in political science to Emory University, it was announced today by College officials.

Dr. L. M. Holland, chairman of the Department of Political Science at Emory, notified Dunbar of the award, which totals $1000.

The assistantship will begin in September. Dunbar's work will be done in research for the Department of Political Science.

ROY ARNOLD

Roy Arnold, of Jackson, Millsaps College Senior, has been awarded a scholarship to Vanderbilt University, it was announced by Charles B. Galloway, professor of Physics at Millsaps.

Arnold will study radiological physics. The scholarship which will extend from September 15, 1954 to September 15, 1955, was awarded by Vanderbilt in cooperation with Oak Ridge National Laboratory.

Arnold will spend nine months in study at Vanderbilt and three months working at Oak Ridge.

The scholarship was awarded on the basis of his work in physics at Millsaps.

HUGH BURFORD

Hugh Burford, chemistry major from Vicksburg has been granted an assistantship in chemistry at the University of Mississippi to work toward his M. S. Degree. Hugh has served as chemistry assistant at Millsaps and recently worked as analytic chemist with a geology group doing research on the sediments of parts of Mississippi Sound.

GRANVILLE SYKES

Granville Sykes, senior from Jackson, has been granted as assistantship in chemistry at the University of South Carolina to aid in his graduate work.

Korean Student Is Enrolled Here For Next Year

Mr. Song Seung Rin of Seoul, Korea, is enrolled in Millsaps College for the fall semester this year, the registrar's office announced this week. Mr. Rin's address is 115-30 Pal Pan-Dong, Chong Ro Ku, Seoul, Korea. He would like very much to correspond with some Millsaps students before he enters in September.

Early List Of Students Indicates Large Enrollment

Pre-registration for the 1954-55 fall semester at Millsaps is progressing very rapidly, announced Mr. Paul D. Hardin, Registrar, this week. Approximately one-half of the freshman class for the next regular semester have made application and been accepted.

OPINION POLL:

Millsaps Students-Faculty Say Evasion No Solution

In the latest survey taken, there seems to be a general agreement among the students and faculty members on the campus concerning the question "Do you think that Mississippi's abolishing its school system in the event of a Supreme Court decision abolishing segregation will solve its problem?" Several students and members of the faculty answered the question as follows:

Scott Kimball: No, the question won't be solved by evasion. The abolition of segregation is coming; and the sooner we accept it, the better off we'll be.

Audrey Jennings: Certainly not, the problem needs education more than anything else for its solution. The reaction seems more like that of a spoiled two-year-old than a legislature charged with responsibility for a whole state. Mississippi probably isn't ready for the complete abolishment of segregation right now, but gradual integration would more than likely solve this problem as it has solved similar ones elsewhere.

Doctor Ferguson: No, but it will intensify our problems. Not only would accrediting standards be destroyed, but the schools would be paralyzed for three to four years while the adjustment is being made. Court battles between private groups would develop over control of our present facilities.

Frank Mangum: No, This would be an evasion of the problem and not the solution to it.

Wally James: No, of course not. An act of this kind would only aggravate the problem. Although Mississippi does not seem ready for unsegregated schools, I should think that unsegregated schools even now would be preferable to a state with no public education.

Arthur O'Neil: That would be a definite step to the rear. To abolish the public schools would be like outlawing the automobile because of the cost of wrecks. It must be settled in a more intelligent and progressive way.

Professor Hardin: No, that will not be a solution to the problem. The public schools are a funda-

Former P&W Society Editor Honored As Major Major

Audrey Jennings, an outstanding student and leader from Chicago, Illinois, takes honors as this week's Major Major.

Active in all phases of campus life, Audrey deserves her many honors and recognition.

This busy senior is a member of the Phi Mu social sorority, has been reporter and secretary-treasurer of that group, and recently won one of the Phi Mu alum's recognition awards.

A sociology major, Audrey is a member of the International-Relations Club. She has served as secretary-treasurer of Alpha Epsilon Delta, honorary pre-medical fraternity, and of Theta Nu Sigma, general science fraternity. She has been historian of Sigma Lambda, women's leadership honorary which recognizes leadership and superior scholarship among women students. Bridge! Ears immediately prick up, and all eyes turn toward the speaker. Yes, you can be sure the scene is the Grill, and someone is trying to find a fourth. The Bridge Tournament earlier this week really stirred up quite a bit of interest in that fascinating game. I heard someone remark just the other day that they would love to learn to play, but they knew they'd never be able to quit long enough to study. I thoroughly agree . . . since I Millsaps to Mississippians on these state tours. I feel sure they did a splendid job.

I surely will be glad (from a literary standpoint, that is) when we all get back from Easter weekend. In case no one has noticed, with the Singers on tour and everyone planning to go home as soon as they got back, there has been a glaring lack of social events. Excepting, of course, the exceedingly large number of romantic items last week. I'm always appreciative of interesting things for my column. I'd speculate that the number last week might be a record for this year. Anyone care to break it? In the meantime, have a very Happy Easter and bring back much news.

Comprehensives

Which leads me to mention an entirely unpleasant subject that will not affect me until next year. I've heard numerous rumors that several zealous seniors are happily (I use the word applying it deeply into the future . . . around April 29 or 30 to be quite specific) contemplating the comprehensives which draw nearer with every passing day, in fact, every passing breath. A word to the wise from someone entirely unqualified to issue such . . . study early, get gray hair, then stick around to watch the less favored individuals take (or be taken by) final exams. The above remedy is a positive guarantee to make all tired seniors feel great . . . around about May 22.

Hello Again

Welcome home again, Singers. I partially welcomed you last week. I have heard various reports highly commending your concerts. The Singers is one organization that every student should take great pride in, whether he be participant or listener. They really had a wonderful chance to sell

Pan-Hellenic Holds Workshop; Studies New Rush Rules

Old and New members of Pan-Hellenic met Tuesday afternoon for a Pan-Hellenic Workshop. The purpose of this meeting was to instruct incoming members of Pan-Hellenic concerning the new rush rules adopted by the last year's group.

Official representatives are the president and the rush chairman of each sorority. They are Martha Ann Selby and Margaret Whitfield, Beta Sigma Omicron; Fredda Shelton and Barbara Mae Jones, Chi Omega; Emily Greener and Jeanelle Howell, Kappa Delta; "Boots" Carpenter and Carleen Durham, Phi Mu.

Outgoing officers are President, Peggye Falkner; vice-president, Dee Ford; Secretary, Mary Grantham; and Treasurer, Minnie Farlow. Other members are Shirley Fritz, Jo-Glyn Hughes, Janella Lansing, and Ann Carter.

BSO Presents Annual Ruby And Pink Ball On April 23

Alpha Zeta of Beta Sigma Omicron will have its annual Ruby and Pink Ball on April 23rd from 8:00 'til 12:00 o'clock at the Robert E. Lee Convention Hall. The Southernaires from Mississippi Southern will play, and the entire campus is invited to attend.

An outstanding feature of the BSO Dance is the presentation of the Ruby and Pink Lady, chosen from the senior girls in the chapter. Girls eligible this year for the honor are Norma Busse, Lois Boackle, Mary Grantham, Sybil Foy, Mary Helen Phillips, and Barbara Walker.

Sports Views

By John Morris

It has been of general concern on the Millsaps Campus, especially during this past year, as to why so many men who go out for a varsity sport quit during the season of their particular sport.

Although it is their privilege under the Millsaps system of athletics, we cannot believe that these men who quit really want to stop playing. Usually, the teammates of any man who quits try to convince him to try to finish the season.

We have been told by many that a lot of boys leave the varsity competition in order to participate in the intramural program. This is definitely true in a very small number of cases, but it cannot stand as a good reason for all of these men.

A lot of men quit for academic reasons, that is definitely a good idea; but, these men would not necessarily have to do this if the athletic committee would set up a grade standard necessary for varsity competition (and hold to it).

It will remain somewhat of a mystery to us as to the reasons these men decide to leave varsity competition. We should, as students, be concerned about setting up a better arrangement, so that the boys playing varsity sports will enjoy the games more.

False Confessions

Getting out this newspaper is no picnic. (The under-statement of the decade). If we print jokes, critics say we are silly. If we don't, they say we are too serious. If we stick close to the office all day, we ought to be out hunting material. If we go out and try to hustle, we ought to be on the job in the office. If we don't print contributions, we don't appreciate genius; and if we do print them, the paper is filled with junk.

If we edit the other fellow's write-up, we're too critical; if we don't we're asleep. If we clip things from other papers, we are too lazy to write them ourselves. If we don't, we are stuck on our own literary genius.

Now, I don't doubt a whit that some young critic will say to us Friday that we swiped this from another newspaper. We did!

Poor Support

Millsaps College opened its baseball season last week with two games. The team won one game and lost one. The ironic thing is that the team played so hard without any school support. The opposition had a larger cheering section present than we did—and they were playing away from home at that.

What's wrong with sports at Millsaps? Certainly we have no great championship teams—no outstanding All-American—nor any real striving for such. But we do have some fine boys playing in all phases of sports—boys who could easily play for larger schools. These boys play hard to win, and they like to play for the fun of it—not for any financial reward that might otherwise be coming their way at another school.

They can't be expected to play their best, however, unless they get some student body support, a thing which is true of any phase of activities on the campus. You can't blame them for it. It's only natural that they desire a crowd to yell for them.

It is poor situation indeed for the students at Millsaps College to travel over the entire state to see every school in the state play every sport in which their friends participate at Millsaps—yet refuse to attend our own games for the flimsy reason that "our boys just ain't got no team."

Our only comment is "no durn wonder they ain't got no team. They ain't got no student body support. They ain't got no will to win without said support. And we, dadgummit, ain't got no school spirit!"

No Hostility To Bands

For the third consecutive year the State Band Contest was held in the Christian Center on the Millsaps campus. It is a distinct privilege for our school to have been hosts to these high school band students for the three-day period.

Our first year at Millsaps saw the premiere of the contest, and we have been impressed during our three years by the change of attitude on the part of the student body toward the invasion and occupation of one of their buildings for a short period. That first year the students seemed to resent the band members being on the campus. As a matter of fact, many of them acted like snobs, and were quite disrespectful to the visitors.

This year, however, the situation was greatly improved. As a general rule, the students were, if not friendly, at least indifferent. May we commend you for this attitude. We hope that the bands will select the Millsaps campus for the next contest. We were glad to have them here.

Many students have referred to last week's issue of the Purple and White as the "Weekly Advertiser." Fortunately, it is the editor's privilege to offer excuses in such cases, and since this is no exception, here goes:

If anyone sees "Scoop" Graves sneaking about the campus for the next month, kindly deter her for a moment and ask her this simple question: "Scoop, how did you goof week before last?"

Her answer is my excuse.

As has been the policy in the past, the Purple and White will be edited and published by the ladies on the staff for the week of April 30. The editor will announce the staff next week for the Co-ed Edition.

Following are 10 suggestions from Robert Tyson, of the Hunter College (New York) department of psychology and philosophy, on how to stay in college:

1. Bring the professor newspaper clippings dealing with his subject. This will demonstrate a feeling of interest and gives him timely items to mention in class. If you can't find clippings dealing with his subject, bring in any clippings at random. He thinks everything deals with his subject.

2. Look alert. Take notes eagerly. If you look at your watch, don't stare at it unbelievably and shake it.

3. Nod frequently and murmur, "How true!" To you, this seems exaggerated; to him, it's quiet objective.

4. Sit in front, near him. (Applies only if you intend to stay awake.) If you're going to all the trouble of making a good impression, you might as well let him know who you are, especially in a large class.

5. Laugh at his jokes. You can tell. If he looks up from his notes and smiles expectantly, he has told a joke.

6. Ask for outside reading. You don't have to read it. Just ask.

7. If you must sleep, arrange to be called at the end of the hour. It creates an unfavorable impression if the rest of the class has left and you sit there alone, dozing.

8. Be sure that the book you read during the lecture looks like a book from the course. If you do math in psychology class and psychology in math class, match books for size and color.

9. Ask any questions you think he can answer. Conversely, avoid announcing that you have found the answer to a question he couldn't answer, and in your brother's second grade reader at that.

10. Call attention to his writing.

Sunrise Service Set For Easter

The Easter Sunrise service is to be held in Tiger Stadium starting at 5:30 Easter Morning. In case of rain this service is to be held in the Christian Center auditorium. The speaker for this service will be Rev. Wade H. Koons of the Trenton Lutheran Church. The music will be furnished by a choir composed of members of the different church choirs. This annual event is sponsored by the Jackson Ministerial Association and the Junior Chamber of Commerce. All students that are on the campus this week-end are urged to attend this service.

Rev. Joe Elmo Was Speaker Here

Reverend Joe Elmo, director of the Wesley Foundation at the University of Mississippi, was the chapel speaker sponsored by the Methodist group on the Millsaps Campus last Thursday, April 8, 1954. The current series of chapel speakers is under the sponsorship of the various religious groups on the campus. Doctor A. B. Pierce of Jackson spoke for the Baptist group the previous Thursday.

Reverend Elmo is a graduate of Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas, and of Yale University. He spoke on the topic "Faith," drawing comparisons from the book of Job in the Bible, and making practical applications to the lives of present-day students.

College Representatives Attend Career Days

Many career days have been attended by Millsaps representatives. There are several more planned. This service helps the high school seniors to understand what they can get in way of things that interest them. Career days are planned for Batesville, April 20; Vicksburg, April 20, 21, and 22; Natchez, April 22; and West Point, April 28. Millsaps students and college representatives will attend these meetings.

This produces an exquisitely pleasant experience when connected with you. If you know he's written a book or an article, ask in class if he wrote it.

Regarding whether or not you want to do some work in addition to all this, well, it's controversial and up to the individual.

W.C.W. Donates Book Of Worship

Today marks the conclusion of Holy Week. Its contribution to this campus will be the memory of its spiritual significance.

A permanent material contribution, however, is the W. C. W.'s donation of twenty-five copies of the Book of Worship, containing the Methodist Church Ritual, which have been placed for your use in Fitzhugh Chapel.

For those persons interested in donations of their own, the W. C. W. has twenty-five extra books at their disposal. A name plate will be inserted into the book stating the giver's name.

Student Dorm Managers Sought

Applications for dormitory student managers for the academic year, 1954-55, were accepted this week through the office of the dean of students. Statements of reasons for applications were accepted before the deadline, April 15, from the applicants.

Since Dean McCracken is absent from the campus this week, Mrs. Daniel, in Galloway Hall, has been answering questions concerning the matter. Dean McCracken stated that selections would probably be made by the first of May so those chosen would have time to become acquainted with their jobs.

Letter To Editor

To the Editor:

Often during this school year we have loudly protested things which we felt were unjust to W. C. W., but now the time has come for us to "Sing Praises" to the P & W.

In all sincerity we should like to express appreciation to you and to your staff for the splendid cooperation which has been given us in publicizing not only our program for Holy Week, but also all other religious activities throughout this semester.

Sincerely,

SEB NOMINATES SIX FOR OFFICES

Committees Are Named For Religious Emphasis Week

Frank Mangum, President of the Christian Council and chairman of this year's Religious Emphasis Week, announced the committees for the event which will be held May 5, 6, and 7. Dr. Goege Arthur Buttrick, noted author and professor, will be the guest speaker for the three days.

The committee in charge of the worship programs is headed in the mornings by Dr. H. Ellis Finger, Lois Boackle, and Frank Mangum. In the evenings three religious groups on the campus, Wesley Ministerial League, and the Baptist Student Union will be in charge of the services.

Frank Mangum will be in charge of the platform speaker, and Lois Boackle is in charge of the discussion leaders. Working on the committee to work out a schedule of classes and to print a program will be Jerry Williamson, Lois Boackle, and Becky Lovett.

Publicity for the week will be in the hands of Frank Mangum.

KDE Elects New Officers For 1954

Kappa Delta Epsilon, national honorary recognizing educational students and future teachers, initiated eight new members at its meeting held last Wednesday night. Those members initiated were: Mary Gene Gainey, Betty B. Pearson, Janeanne Sharpe, Martha Ann Selby, Carol Mae Brown, Katherine Webb, Ann Carter, and Joyce King.

Newly elected officers for the group for 1954 are: president, Martha Ann Selby; vice-president, Ann Carter; secretary, Carol Mae Brown; and treasurer, Joyce King.

ROY EPPERSON

Roy EPPERSON, a senior at Millsaps and the National President of Eta Sigma Phi, will attend the convention of that group in St. Louis April 23 and 24. Roy will give the "Response" for the Fraternity following the "Words of Welcome" by Thomas S. Hall, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, Washington University. This year the convention will be held on the campuses of St. Louis University, Washington University, and Maryville College.

From The Dean's Office

Students who have requested dormitory rooms for the fall semester and have not paid the $10 reservation fee, should do so as soon as possible. No assignments can be made to rooms until the reservation fee has been paid.

All students who plan to take the Medical Aptitude Test on May 8, 1954, must file their applications on or before Saturday, April 24. These applications may be secured from Dr. J. B. Price or Dean James Ferguson.

A definite effort is being made to obtain a complete survey of the part-time employment status of Millsaps students. In order that this information about our stu-

Polk, Blumer Named To Run For Highest Student Body Position

S.E.B. last Tuesday named six candidates for the three student body offices and set Tuesday, May 11 as the date for the annual election for next year's officers.

Nominated by the Board were: Howell Polk and Fred Blumer for president; Joe Ebersole and Walter Waldrop for vice-president; and Ivey Wallace and Boots Carpenter for secretary-treasurer.

Additional nominations for each office may be made by circulation of petitions on the candidate's consent through the student body bearing the signatures of at least 8% of the student body. Before he or she becomes qualified as a candidate, such petitions must have been submitted to the S.E.B. at least one week prior to the election. Whereupon, the S.E.B. shall immediately place the candidate's name on the nomination list.

Petitions may be submitted to Tommy Woodward, S.E.B. president, or to Howard Cheek, chairman of the election committee. The election committee was composed of the following: Miss Mildred Morehead, Professor Lance Goss, Fred DeLong, Peggy Falkner, and Yerger Hudson.

Millsaps Debaters Take Fourth Place In Debate Turney

The four members of the Millsaps Debate team participated in the Southeastern Regional Debate tournament at Emory University April 3 and 4. This was the last tournament for the members of the team for all of them are seniors. This year's debate team is composed of Lois Boackle, Sylvia Sanford, Fred Whitam and James Williams.

The tournament, which is sponsored by the Barkeley Debate Forum at Emory, was won by the University of North Carolina. Millsaps placed fourth winning seven and losing five. The boys, who argued the negative side of the question won four and lost two. The girls, on the affirmative side, won three and lost three.

This year's debate topic is: "Should the United States adopt a policy of free trade?"

After the award banquet Saturday afternoon, the debate team with their coach, Dr. Raymond McIlvenna, visited Stone Mountain and the Cyclorama in Atlanta.

NO PARKING!

Dean McCracken has again urged that people stop parking in the yellow restricted zones on the campus. There was an accident last Thursday which could have been serious. If students will cooperate with the administration in this, no disciplinary measures will have to be taken.

Seek Applicants For Annual Heads

Applicants for editor and business manager of Bobashela, Millsaps annual yearbook, are now being accepted, according to an announcement this week by Professor Lance Goss, faculty advisor for the yearbook publications committee.

Interested students should submit type written letters, including their qualifications and past experience. The applications will be considered by a committee consisting of three faculty members, the past editor and business manager of Bobashela and one other staff member.

Applicants must have an overall average of 1.0, and they should be at least a junior next year. The final date for submitting applications is May 1, according to Professor Goss.

DR. HAMILTON

Dr. A. G. Hamilton, professor of classical languages at Millsaps College, left Thursday to attend the 50th Anniversary celebration of the Classical Association of the Midwest and South, which will be held in St. Louis, Mo., from Thursday day through Saturday.

Sponsors and hosts for the celebration will be Washington University and St. Louis University, and the meetings will be held in the Sherraton Hotel.

Millsaps Assists On New Bulletin

Millsaps College is one of sixteen colleges and universities across the nation chosen to assist the U. S. Department of Labor in the preparation of its new booklet entitled "Occupational Planning and College."

The booklet, designed to assist students in the choice of their life work, has been published recently and can be obtained from the U. S. Department of Labor.

Dr. R. S. Musgrave, head of the Department of Psychology at Millsaps, directed the project for the college. Forty students participated in the program by selecting and evaluating material which would help college students in their choice of a vocation. Suggestions made by Millsaps contributors were combined with material received from other participating institutions of higher learning by booklet editors.

In addition to Millsaps College, the following schools were selected to assist in the project: City College of the City of New York, Clemson Agricultural College, Florida State University, Georgia Institute of Technology, Harvard University, Middle Tennessee State College, Morehead State College, Pasadena Junior College, Vanderbilt University, and the Universi-

Holy Week

A bouquet of praise, this week, goes to the W. C. W. who sponsored and planned a terrific week of pre-Easter services. The chapel was filled each morning and evening of the week, leading up the climatic re-enactment of the crucifixion on Golgotha. To those who worked so hard on worship centers, which created an atmosphere of humility, we offer our congratulations. To those who planned the services and worked so diligently to see that the week was a success, we must say "thank you." Especially must we praise Nancy Peacock and Becky Lovett who gave so sacrificially of their time and talents. To all who participated in any way, this Holy Week was a blessing and inspiration. To all of you who neglected the opportunity to participate in this week, may we offer our sympathy for your poor judgement and neglectful nature. We can only hope that all of the students on the campus may awake to the fact that Easter so clearly exemplifies—we serve a risen Saviour.

Ministerial League

The series of study on various churches came to a grand finish Tuesday, April 6. The panel discussion, which was the grand finale, turned into a real heated discussion. The League would like to thank all who participated in their program and to invite all ministerial students in school to come and enjoy the rest of the program this semester.

Fredda's Fragments

I have one comment to make . . . it's just a good thing I'm not taking my comprehensive this semester. Has anyone failed to notice the wonderful spring weather we've been having? Unfortunately, I haven't and I have an A-double-plus case of SPRING FEVER. That just has to be the reason I can't keep my mind on anything. If something doesn't happen quick I'm afraid I'll just sit back and enjoy the lovely sunset while I fail every subject. I am earnestly petitioning some friend to help me find remedy before it is forever too late.

Take this column for example, I'm sure you'll be glad to have some legal excuse for criticism. Now exactly what literary value to you find here? None. I could find many excuses but I prefer to leave that up to the reader's imagination. My loyal followers (I find them very few in number) well admit that I am a past master of the art of making convincing excuses. Anyway, back to the issue at hand, even the joy of composition couldn't break into my reverie this week. Please bear with me in my extreme apathy.

Giving a Party?

Attention all groups planning to give a social function that includes members of both sexes! . . . I have news of grave importance straight from the big man himself. Dean McCracken has asked me to remind you that all social functions planned for the Spring semester must be cleared through the Dean of Student's Office and the Dean of Women's Office. You must have two chaperones, one from the approved list of the faculty.

Beta Sigs' Open House

The Beta Sigma Omicron Sorority will hold open house this coming Sunday, April 25, for the campus from 2:00 'til 3:00. Everyone is cordially invited to attend. From 3:00 until 4:30 the Beta Sigs will entertain the high school seniors.

The Pink Lady of Beta Sigma Omicron, their outstanding senior, will be in the receiving line. (She will be announced at the dance tonight.) The senior members of the group will serve.

Frances and Tommy

The Easter Bunny wasn't the only one that brought Frances Moore of New Albany a present this year. Check the third finger, left hand. Seems that Tommy Woodard, Pi Kappa Alpha from Greenville, presented her with a sparkling diamond. Frances is a junior and Tommy is a senior.

Cecelia and Campbell

Looks like Campbell Gilliland found that same Bunny because the ring he placed on Cecelia Ridgeway's left hand wasn't a token of friendship. Cecelia is a junior from Gulfport and a member of the Kappa Delta social sorority. Campbell was a Kappa Alpha here but right now he's in med school at Ole Miss. Campbell is from Jackson.

of the Kappa Sigma social fraternity. He is now serving as treasurer of that organization. He has been a member of the Singers for three years, and he is now serving as president of the Inter-Fraternity Council. He has also served on the S.E.B.

Fred Blumer, a junior from Sumrall, is a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity. He has served as treasurer of the fraternity, and he is now serving as president. He is president of the Singers, a member of the S.E.B., assistant business manager of Bobashela, and he has appeared on the Dean's List. He has also served as chairman of the Social Calendar Committee, and is a member of the original Committee of Student Government.

Vice-President

Joe Ebersole, a sophomore from Jackson is a member of the Lambda Chi Alpha social fraternity. He is serving as an officer of that organization. He is a member of the Singers, the Psychology Club, and the Debate Club. Active in campus publications, he is a member of the staff of the Purple and White.

KA's Appoint 1954 Officers This Week

Kappa Alpha Order released the names of the appointed officers of their group for 1954 this week. The three elected officers names were announced last week. The other six are Number Four, Fred Yerger; Number Five, Scott McCarty; Number Six, Reynolds Cheney; Number Seven, Terry Hayward; Number Eight, Ezelle Lewis; and Number Nine, Harold Hutchison.

Kappa Sigs & Dates Leave Friday For Annual House Party

Kappa Sigmas and their dates are going to be off on the annual Kappa Sigma house party this week-end. The party is to be held at Camp Kittywake on the Gulf coast. The group will leave sometime Friday afternoon in order to arrive in time for a huge wiener roast to be held Friday night on the beach. The party will break up sometime Sunday afternoon, when everyone will return to school. Chaperones for this year's house party are Dr. and Mrs. McCracken and Dr. and Mrs. McIlvanna.

'Pink Lady' To Be Named At Beta Sig Dance Tonight

Tonight the Beta Sigma Omicron Sorority will hold its annual Ruby and Pink Ball at the Convention Hall of the Robert E. Lee Hotel from 8 'til 12. The Southernaires will play and the entire campus is invited. Dr. and Mrs. T. L. Reynolds, Dr. and Mrs. E. S. Wallace, and Professor and Mrs. R. R. Haynes will chaperon. Highlight of the dance will be the presentation of the Pink Lady, the outstanding senior of Beta Sigma Omicron.

Past Panhellenic President Honored As Major Major

Peggye Falkner, a sociology major from Yazoo City, is honored as our personality of the week. This energetic senior has been active on the Millsaps Campus all three years she has been here.

A member of the Phi Mu Sorority, Peggye was model pledge and has served as rush chairman and president of that organization. She has also been president of the Panhellenic Council.

Her varied interests are shown in the fact that she has been a member of Players and YWCA for three years. Last year she was a member of Singers and her freshman year was active on the Purple and White. Now Peggye is on the Woman's Council and the Student Executive Board. She has been active in women's intramurals and is in the Majorette Club.

Peggye's earnest efforts and sincere interest in her school's work

KLIPT

By MARY LYNN GRAVES

A lady of more than average avordupois shoved her way into a crowded subway car at Times Square and stopped before an overall-clad man who sat absorbed in a newspaper. There was a narrow vacant space between him and the next passenger, and the lady said something that made him look up.

After a moment's stolid observation, he reached into a pocket, pulled out a jointed ruler and slowly unhinged it. Then, while we watched enthralled, he measured that part of the lady's anatomy which required a seat, looked at the vacant space, shook his head, stowed away his ruler and returned to his newspaper.

A very red-faced lady moved away from that spot.

HONOR

Nothing matters, only this:
That the fight you made was fair.

Goals of glory you may miss,
Honors you may fail to wear,
But if you have done your best,
You have met the real test.

Not in victory alone
Is the worth of mortals told.
God has never made it known
That He sent us here for gold.

We must dare for what is right,
But we need not win the fight.

Nothing matters save that we Shall not sell our souls for gain;

Shall not, for the victory,

On our honor place a stain.

Better is it not to win

Than to triumph, black with sin.

Take the failure if you must,

Think no more about the prize.

If your battle has been just

You have conquered in His eyes.

You shall rest in peace at night

If you've made an honest fight.

When at 33 years of age Paul A. Wagner arose to accept the presidency of Rollins College, one enchanted coed, noting Wagner's six-foot frame, he-man rudeness and curly brown hair, burst out: "Gosh, he's dreamy!"

"That's right," quipped the new president's wife who had overheard, "but I dreamed first."

From bright dawns first big bust (no apologies for connotations) to evening's ignoble shadow, milling tides of men who shave, and women whose buxom attributes bespeak a maturity beyond the point "where brook and river meet", ebb and flow uninhibited through Alma Mater's broad and liberal halls. Not a few of those who know the literal razor's edge stand by for country's greetings, prophetic tokens of blood and battle. Many a lassie, too, may on the morrow, learn to step lively or to fetch a snow white bandage on the double.

Within our Alma Mater's all encompassing embrace there is sanctuary and inspiration for maturity. The atmosphere of pure and stable academic freedom—freedom of discussion, freedom to breathe, freedom to eat (if you can pay for it) and freedom to be content—all combine to make Millsaps the Citadel of Twentieth Century tolerance and intellectual understanding. The unrestrained pursuit of knowledge condoned and encouraged earns the recognition and praise of Oxford of England, Harvard and Princeton of America, and the Hellfire and brimstone of some whistle-stop indoctrination centers.

We have adequate reason for great pride in our small-co-educational-liberal-arts-church-supported-institution. But here, gentle reader, (if any) the picture of quiet scholarly groups wending their happy way from one fountain of wisdom to another ends—abruptly. We have been lulled into a false sense of security. We thought there was naught to mar the serene and unimpeded pursuit of truth and beauty and knowledge. Dear trusting souls!

Little did we know that there lurked in the darkness cunning and vicious jackals with fangs bared and hearts as black as Pluto's clothes closet. For months they have lurked and lurked—drooling there in ambush. Now they have struck and the very foundations of the institution rocks.

Lest we appear vague we hasten to acquaint you with this ominous plague which has beset us. We speak of none other than that group of iniquitous Communists who propose to overthrow our hallowed traditions of La Danse. For years . . . yea for many years—we have been content to clutch the object of our affections and whizz up and down the ole Buie Gym in a delightful square dance or clutch her closer and—again,

OPINION POLL:

Student Leaders Debate The Age-Old Dancing Question

In this week's opinion poll, opinions of the Millsaps student body on whether the new Student Union Building would serve its real purpose unless dancing is allowed in it seems fairly well divided if those answering the poll are an accurate student body cross-section.

On answer to the question "Do you think that the new Student Union Building is going to serve its real purpose unless dancing is allowed on the Millsaps Campus and facilities for such are provided in the new building?" the following answers were received.

Shirley Stanton: "Although I think dancing facilities should be provided for in the new Student Union Building, I believe it can be a success without it."

Vernon Eppinette: "Definitely not! It seems that since the school is spending this money for a 'Student Union Building' the students should be able to do the one thing that would keep them on the campus—dance. An argument against dancing on the campus has always been that there isn't a place on our campus suitable for this recreation. When the building is completed, we shall have an adequate grill."

Emily Greener: "The new Student Union Building will definitely serve its purpose without having facilities for dancing. There are too many substantial reasons this building is being constructed for it to fail because of the lack of dancing."

Fred Blumer: "The question here seems not to be whether we think the purpose of the building is to provide for dancing on the campus, but instead, whether the real needs of Millsaps students can be met by a Student Union Building which does not provide facilities for dancing. Personally, I don't think the building will serve its complete purpose unless it provides dancing facilities along with the others."

Martha Ann Selby: "Yes, a new Student Union Building could be made to work without dancing, but it would be especially beneficial if the students could use it for dancing at designated times."

Scott Kimball: "No, there seems to be no doubt that dancing is wanted by the majority of students and faculty, too, for that matter. The S.U.B. should provide that facility; if not, the students will not profit. All they would get would be a snack bar. We already have places for the other activities. From what I hear, Major Millsaps didn't have any aversion to dancing back in Copiah County."

Sara Jo Smith: "Yes, I think the new building will serve its purpose without a specific place for dancing, although the majority of students would enjoy having such facilities."

Tommy Woodard: "Yes, I think that the S.U.B. will serve a definite need as such; we need a place in which to center student activities. However, I think we will realize its greatest value when we can dance in the S.U.B. (or anywhere on the campus, as far as that goes.)" up and down—cut the corners square with a thrilling schottish. We have never entertained the slightest idea that we should indulge in a dance that goes round and round. We know the evil connotation of going round and round. In fact it was our research that offered conclusive proof that Eve was cutting a round caper routine when the serpent caught up with her. And we know all about original sin. Some believe we originated it.

But a little group of morbid profligate aliens have infiltrated our sacred ranks. Their evil influence has spread abroad. These hounds of hell not only propose to dance the round fantastic out in the shadows of the gym well hidden from the public eye. Properly secluded out the back way anything goes in Mississippi (and who are we to change the folk ways.) Nor or they satisfied with the splendid arrangement which enables the student to go round and round on the hotel roof tops or better still at the clubs and tonks out in the good ole Mississippi bushes. We realize that the cost is rather tough on the pater's pocket book but we can put a value on the joy of being well hidden from the chaperones. Besides, in the better tonks out in the bushier bushes it is rumored that the red eye is as red as the wine that is red which we must not look upon. In addition, for those of us who part our hair right there are frequent invitations from a certain wicked little sister college across the way. Never having been told the facts of life, this evil group of beauties often smuggle invitations to La Danse—with no holds barred—in broad open daylight.

But with all these splendid arrangements the little group of willful imps cannot be appeased. They still must yap and cry for more evil. Brothers they must not pass! To arms, Comrades! Let us leave no stone unturned. Hurrah for McCarthy! Remember the Alamo! Remember the Schottish! Let's forbid anything round. Round table discussions are out! Join the Squares! There is no truth but that which makes us free! There must be no dance but that which makes us square!

Last week we announced in this column that the co-eds would edit the Purple and White for the next issue. Well, they are! We also promised that we would tell you who was going to do what in what official capacity next week. We are.

Serving as co-editors will be Helen Fay Head and Mary Lynn Graves; society editor will be Fredda Shelton; feature editor, Barbara Mae Jones; sports editor, Lucy Robinson; and news editor, Suzanne Peery. They will choose their own co-workers, and we shall peer glibly on as they sweat over deadlines, cuts, etc.

We are going to begin plugging early, Lance Goss's next dramatic offering, The Madwoman of Châllot. We have just read the play, and we are certain beyond a doubt that it is going to be one of his very best. It is an uproarious comedy, and if you miss it, you're crazy and lazy. It will be presented May 12, 13, and 14.

Much has been said and written lately regarding a new method of learning in which the student acquires his education by plunking a record on a phonograph and then retiring to his beauty sleep. The idea behind the theory is that the apparatus gives transcribed lessons which are retained very effectively by the sub-conscious mind.

I decided that if the theory worked with the use of a machine, why wouldn't one get the same results by employing slightly different methods. So, I tried it. Alas! It didn't work. Dr. Moore said, "It would give me immeasurable pleasure if our distinguished editor would at least sleep with his eyes open while honoring us by his presence in our class."

I've ditched the theory 'til someone comes up with a method of open-eye napping. Besides, there is no real point in getting your sub-conscious cluttered up with stale facts.

Joe Jones, writing in the Campus Crier, at Central Washington College, notes that A C P has this to say about sports: "Football is all right as a sport, but for good clean fun there is nothing like trying to bribe an income tax official."

Oh no, you naive children. Income tax officials are men with hearts. You should try to buy a copy of the final exam for English 12 from Mrs. Goodman.

Here's a problem for Professor Bergmark: "The majority of students in the United States are not in colleges. The number in grade schools and high schools is much larger than the total enrollment of U. S. colleges. Therefore, college effects few students." Somezing funny!

(ACP)—At Cornell University, a freshman co-ed has offered to buy all copies of the freshman directory. She says that a picture of her published in the directory stands to ruin her social life.

She was trying to remove a shread of stringy substance from her teeth when the photographer snapped the shutter.

Jumpin Jupiter! Think what could very easily happen in the Millsaps cafeteria when you try to untooth some of that (pardon the expression, please) spaghetti.

Another news item worthy of note comes from A C P: Two fraternities at Washington State Col-

A Student Union Building Or Just A Building

Millsaps College is a highly-accredited liberal arts institution. Within its classrooms theories, beliefs, truths, half-truths, and dogmas are subjected to sympathetic and scientific scrutiny under the guidance of highly-trained instructors. No cut-and-dried theories are spoon-fed to the students at this school. Each and every person attending this institution is expected to acquire the ability to evaluate the importance and the validity of the facts presented to him and to reach his own conclusions pertaining to knowledge and the use thereof. By all the standards which a college or university is judged scholastically, Millsaps holds a position as one of the most far-sighted and intellectual colleges in the nation. It has maintained this enviable position throughout its many years primarily because the professors have been left largely free to conduct their classes objectively, without any attempt to inject particular beliefs and propaganda into their discussions.

However, outside the classrooms, the students and faculty at Millsaps College are disciplined socially by one of the most hypocritical, out-moded and paradoxical edicts presently in existence on the campus of any institution of higher learning.

No dancing on the Millsaps campus!

Such a philosophy has no justifiable place at this school—it has no valid reason for being. The no-dancing rule is regarded even now, by those who uphold it, simply as a tradition which dates from the founding of the college. As such, they feel that it should be held to doggedly. They refuse to see that it is not a sound, practical, or even Christian guide to student recreation on the campus.

What are the arguments set forth by the proponents of the no-dancing rule? The chief objection seems to be based on the idea that dancing is wrong—that it is an evil which lures its victims into the inescapable pitfalls of sin from which there is no return. The paradoxical aspect of the argument is that it is not wrong to dance off the campus—only on the grounds of this college. Why don't these persons, if they are to be consistent in their thinking, refuse admission to Millsaps if students participate at all in this evil form of recreation? Why isn't hand-holding or other conspicuous forms of familiarity condemned? Perhaps they simply refuse to believe that such things go on—and thus, see no need for considering their inconsistency. We sincerely hope not, and we strongly urge those who favor the continuance of the "no dancing rule" to present their case openly to the student body and to the faculty for their opinions.

How do the members of the Millsaps faculty regard the rule? Every teacher with whom we have had occasion to discuss the matter are opposed to such backward ideas. Certainly, their opinion as a body should have some weight in correcting the situation. Members of the faculty constantly chaperone dances off the campus. These dances are planned and held at great expense and unnecessary labor to the groups concerned. Such a waste of money is not justifiable when the same facilities could be provided on the campus at half the cost to groups concerned.

Within the next few years a modern Student Union Building is going to be a reality on this campus. That's well and good—that's exactly what we need. But, unless the persons responsible for the project ascertain that floor space and facilities for dancing are included in the structure, we are forced to speculate that the building is definitely not America," says the Evergreen, "because it seems that today's young adults have developed some widely different ideas on brotherhood and decency from those of the preceding generation."

Ha! You Didn't Notice!

In last week's Purple and White, we wrote an editorial chiding the students for their lack of interest in athletic events at Millsaps—particularly baseball. We implied that the baseball team opened its season here and that only a handful of students bothered to go to the game. The Millsaps team has not played a game here this year, but we made the implication for a purpose. The purpose of the statement was to discover how many students even knew the difference and how many would tell us about it if they did know it. Would you be interested to know what we found out?

The first student to call it to our attention said, "But I don't think Millsaps had a game here last week!" A total of seven students out of a student body of over six hundred mentioned to us that we were in error, SEVEN PEOPLE! And that's exactly the way the students show up at games.

Of course, some students remind us that they haven't seen a notice of the games to be played here in the Purple and White. That may be a good excuse or it may not. We don't believe it is. Baseball games, football games, basketball games, tennis matches, golf matches, intramurals and every other sports event has been splashed all over the paper in the past, and the situation has not been any different.

We feel that the Purple and White should get much more cooperation from the athletic groups regarding publication of their games, and we feel that since this newspaper is published only once per week, that the varsity group particularly should make some effort to publicize its games by use of posters on the campus and by other means which will keep the students reminded of the dates of games.

As for this paper, if we can get the proper cooperation in the future, we are going to give you ample notice of all sports events to be played on this campus and away. If attendance at sports events doesn't increase drastically, somebody had better prepare themselves for a good beat-out.

Okay?

going to serve the purpose for which it was primarily intended. It is to be a STUDENT UNION BUILDING!

The student body at Millsaps has lacked school spirit sadly for many years, and we feel very strongly that the absence of facilities for group gatherings on the campus has been the outstanding cause of the decayed spirit. We are equally confident that the deplorable condition is going to continue just as long as this fact is purposely neglected. Mature college students are not going to be bound together as a body by the simple act of being provided with a small nook in which they can play marbles, ping-pong and tickle-wink. When this very obvious fact is realized by the men in a position to remedy the existing situation, the sooner strong student body spirit and a feeling of unity is going to be accomplished.

By providing a large space in the new Student Union Building and allowing the students to dance—at least on weekends—every student who likes to dance will be saved considerable expense, and they would be able to dance in a wholesome atmosphere. Certainly, no intelligent person could have the slightest doubt that students, if allowed to dance here, would conduct themselves at all times as ladies and gentlemen—with or without chaperones. It seems inconceivable and completely unjustifiable to us that the leaders of our college will continue to deprive the students of such privileges when they must realize what a tremendous difference the provision for dancing on this campus would mean.

We feel that a statement from the proper person would be fair to the students and faculty. We, and many other students here, would like very much to know the reasons for not allowing dancing at Millsaps. Will such an answer be forthcoming?

Petitions Of Powell, Selby Approved As Time For Elections Approaches

Officers of the Millsaps Student Executive Board will be elected on Tuesday, May 4, with eight nominees vying for the three offices of president, vice-president, and secretary. Balloting will be held in Murrah Hall between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Nominations include Fred Blumer and Howell Polk for president; Joe Ebersole and Walter Waldrop for vice-president; and Boots Carpenter, Betty Jo Powell, Martha Ann Selby, and Ivey Wallace for secretary. The two nominees by the student petition are Betty Jo Powell and Martha Ann Selby.

Betty Jo, a junior religion major, serves as secretary of Chi Omega sorority. She is a member of the Woman's Council, Sigma Lambda, and is program chairman of the "Y". She is reporter of the Majorette Club and a member of the P&W Staff, the Millsaps Players, and the "Y" cabinet as chairman of the Bethlehem Center. She has appeared on the Dean's List and is National Outreach Chairman of the MYF.

Martha Ann, a junior English major, is president of Kappa Delta Epsilon and Beta Sigma Omicron Sorority. She holds membership in Eta Sigma Phi and the Majorette Club and she serves as vice-president of the Pan Hellenic Council. Martha Ann has appeared on the Dean's List every semester, and she was a representative of the Sardis District at the Youth and Missions Conference this past summer.

Wednesday Marks Official Beginning Of Millsaps R.E.W.

Next Wednesday will be the official beginning of Religious Emphasis Week on the Millsaps campus when Doctor George Arthur Buttrick will be the speaker for the occasion. Each student has a personal invitation by the Christian Council as announced by Frank Mangum, president of the organization, to attend each meeting. The meetings are scheduled for Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, May 5, 6, and 7. Wednesday is the day for the weekly required chapel attendance.

The three-day program made possible by the J. Lloyd Decell lectureship fund, established at Millsaps College in 1947 as a memorial to the late Dr. J. Lloyd Decell, Bishop of the Jackson area of the Methodist Church.

The Christian Council also wishes to announce that periods of personal consultation can be scheduled by the Council for those who would like to take advantage of Dr. Buttrick's counseling.

Blumer Wants Effective Government

The problem facing Millsaps students as I see it, is the establishment of an effective student government. Any platform which does not begin here is destined to fail. We have fought a losing battle in this regard for years, and until this year little has been done toward the establishment of an effective student government. As the only returning member of the committee on student government who has worked with this problem from the beginning, I not only feel compelled to run for the presidency of the S.E.B., but also to run on the platform of a truly representative and democratic government. This will provide for:

1. Actual representation in our student government so as to insure the active participation of every student in every issue involving students. The S.E.B. will no longer be a figurehead, instead, it will be an agency of student expression.

2. A social calendar which is correlated with the college calendar. This is the only solution to the mess-up and confusion we have involving all college events.

3. Student voice in academic affairs, such as scheduling comprehensives, exams, religious emphasis week, and other such events which should be scheduled so as to be advantageous to the students.

The opportunity for progress is unlimited. We can have longer spring vacation, among many other things. But whatever is done can be done only through a government that is recognized by the administration as being actually representative. I am not promising miracles. I am presenting a program which must be carried out now if our student body is to take advantage of the opportunities we now have. We cannot afford to be passive or unconcerned. We need a representative government now.

I present myself as "Your Man for Your Government."

Polk Lists Eight Point Plan

To be one of the nominees for the position of President of the Millsaps S. E. B. is a distinct honor for me and I accept this nomination with the deepest humility.

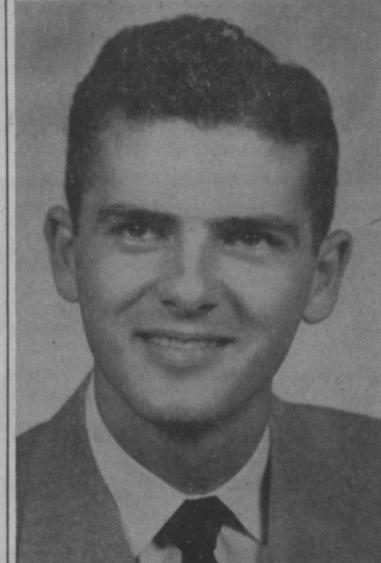

During my tenure of three years here, Millsaps has come to be a great influence on my life. The high standards and Christian ideals of the school symbolized by the quality of its student body presents a challenge which nothing else has offered me. Above all, Millsaps has shown me how to meet this challenge to the best of my ability.

As I look back over our present school year, all that I can say about our student administration is very favorable. Our President Tommy Woodard has done a most creditable job and I offer him my congratulations.

In constructing a platform on which a campaign is to be based, it is, of course, necessary that we examine our student administration and locate the sources or causes of difficulties and then to propose the means by which unfavorable situations can be improved. At the present time our student administration and other phases of campus life are being critically examined, prior to a possible revision. In the light of this fact, I offer some proposals which I believe can be carried out to the best interests of the student body and the school. These proposals are as follows:

1. To follow through on the present administration examination plans;

2. To develop a greater sense of loyalty to the school and a spirit of unity among the students;

3. To co-ordinate the intramural sports program and the varsity athletic program in order that the best results may be obtained from each;

4. To provide a means of representation on the S. E. B. whereby the views of all groups might be reported and considered;

5. To provide interesting and worthwhile activities in which each student may participate;

6. To continue and to develop to a greater degree student-faculty relations;

7. To continue to work for the building and improvements of the school's physical plant;

8. To organize the S. E. B. in such a way that problems can be handled in the wisest and most efficient manner.

I believe in the student body of Millsaps; and if I am elected, I will look forward with pleasure and great anticipation toward working for and with our students. This is accompanied by the promise that I will work to the extent of my time and ability to keep Millsaps at the top in its many respects.

HOWELL POLK

Ebersole Believes Job Chance To Serve

Contrary to the usual opinion of the vice-presidential office as a do-nothing job, I believe the office offers a real chance for service to Millsaps and to the Millsaps Student Body.

In addition to the tasks already delegated to the vice-president it will be his job next year to work unceasingly to see that the goals of the president are fulfilled. Because of the importance of the coming year in the history of Millsaps these goals take on added importance.

I pledge my full support to student government revision, to far-sighted building planning, to all efforts to improve school spirit and unity, and to every point of the elected president's platform.

I wish to thank the student body for this opportunity to run for an office of service.

JOE EBERSOLE

Waldrop Pledges Support to President

I pledge my full support to the person elected President of the Student Executive Board.

Already this year groundwork has been laid for a revision of student government along more representative lines. If elected, I will continue to urge this revision.

In the apportionment of S. E. B. funds I strongly advocate a system of itemized budgeting by every organization expecting to receive S. E. B. aid. This will enable us to achieve a fair division of funds according to the needs of the various organizations.

Give me a chance to help give you more effective administration in student government.

Millsaps Singers Present Concerts For Local Groups

Although Millsaps Singers Tour has been over three weeks, the Singers are still in demand. Not only have they given several programs in town, but they even took a short trip.

On April 20 at 7:00 p.m., the Singers gave a thirty minute program for the Mississippi Economics Council, then went to a local nursing home to sing for Pop King's sister, who has been unable to hear the Singers this year because of illness. A group from the Tour Choir entertained the Kiwanis Club on Wednesday, April 21.

The out-of-town trip made by the Singers was to Pelahatchie on April 25. The purpose of the trip was to sing for a revival. The choir was given supper at 6:30.

Methodist Board Elects Graduate

Miss Jennie Youngblood, a church worker from Gulfport, has been elected to the staff of the Methodist Board of Education's national headquarters in Nashville, Tennessee.

Miss Youngblood is a graduate of Millsaps College and holds a master's degree from Emory University, Atlanta, Georgia.

Carpenter, Powell, Wallace, Selby Make Statements

The time for elections has come again. I want to thank S. E. B. for nominating me for the office of secretary-treasurer of the student body. It is an honor in itself. I hope that you will feel that I can fulfill the duties of the office.

If elected secretary-treasurer, I would work with the other officers to improve student government here. This has been said many times, but little has been done about it. I would be sincere in my efforts to work toward a more efficient student government and would appreciate your giving me the opportunity to do this by voting for me when you go to the polls on May 4.

"BOOTS" CARPENTER

Before making any statement of what I propose to do if elected secretary-treasurer of S. E. B., I should like to express appreciation to those who submitted my name for this election.

The same old line, same old story, but with my sincere and honest effort as an officer of S. E. B., if you see fit to elect me, I propose and promise to support and co-operate with the President and Vice-President elect in any endeavor that they might undertake to get a stronger student government and to do all within my power to facilitate the functioning of this government. I shall make every effort to keep before the student body all actions undertaken by S. E. B. which I feel should be a definite responsibility of the secretary.

BETTY JO POWELL

It is an honor to be a candidate for an S. E. B. position no matter what the outcome may be. If I'm elected, I'll do the utmost of my ability to carry out the wishes of the student body in cooperation with the new president and vice-president elect and our faculty members.

With the new construction that's going up on the campus next year, it will be the duty of the students to cooperate to their fullest. At a student, I will do my best to help continue this program.

Give me a chance to help give you more effective administration in student government.

1954 Bobashela Issued Today

Students may pick up the 1954 Bobashela in Murrah Hall, Friday morning, April 31st. No one is allowed to pick up any one else's copy unless they sign for it. Fred DeLong says, "It's a bit unusual to have them out on time," but he is proud of it.

Chapel Programs Win Approval Of Student Body

A new type of chapel program was presented at chapel period on April 22 and April 29 at which time several members of the faculty served on a panel which discussed world problems that pertained to each professor's field. On April 22 the three members of the panel who presented their views were Dr. Bergmark, Dr. Ferguson and Prof. Maddox. Dr. McIlvena, Dean McCracken, and Dr. Priddy finished the discussion yesterday.

After the professors had finished their talks, the student body was then permitted to ask questions to the panel. The new type of program proved to be very interesting as well as educational.

Theta Nu Sigma Chooses Officers

Theta Nu Sigma, honorary science fraternity, has announced newly elected officers for the coming year. Tommy Spell, sophomore from Jackson, was elected president, Mike Conner, Jackson, vice-president, and Molly Lawson, Jackson, secretary-treasurer.

New initiates into Theta Nu Sigma are Howard Cheek, Hugh Burford, and Roy Arnold.

Millsaps Freshmen Win Scholarships

Two Millsaps Freshmen have recently been honored because of their particular talents. The first of the two is Betty Yates, a Freshman from Jackson, who has been awarded a scholarship to study at Sherwood School of Music. This talented Freshman received this award because of the recommendation of her teacher.

The second Freshman honored was Helen Young from Tchula who is the recipient of a three day scholarship to the art colony at Allison's Wells. She was selected because of her talent in art. Here at Millsaps her teacher is Karl Wolfe. Doug Fontaine is to be the director of this colony.

If elected to this responsible position, I will give my all for better student government.

MARTHA ANN SELBY

It is a genuine honor to me to be nominated for secretary-treasurer of S.E.B. It will always stand out in my mind as a high privilege whether I am elected or not. If I am elected I will endeavor to cooperate fully with the new president and vice president and all the members of S.E.B.

I will also continue my services on the committee for the new student government plan and if a new form of student government does go into effect, I will give the best of my abilities to the formation and successful perpetuation of this government.

Fredda's Fragments

Hey Boys! Don't look now but your superiority is slipping. Do you notice that the editors this week are of the opposite sex? Never let it be said in my presence that anything boys can do girls can't do better. I joyously congratulate our co-editors on a fine edition. (In case no one caught it, this paragraph is inspired by National Beat-Out McCarter Week. I consider my obligation accomplished, what say you?)

Plague?

Looks rather like a few of the people around here are suffering from some rare tropical disease. I particularly noticed because I have the same symptoms. If you run into someone with a strangely brilliant nose and extremely ruddy cheeks, don't get alarmed. Look a mite closer to determine whether or not the said individual is similarly discolored about the shoulders and arms. If this proves to be the case, tremble no longer because seldom has this disease been known to be contagious. I could give several pointers on how to avoid exposure... the main one would be: avoid exposure, especially when the Gulf coast sun is shining brightly. It does seem to me that young adults of normal (?) intelligence would have more "hoss sense" than to cook themselves like a piece of meat (southern broiled). All things being like they are, and the sun being like it was, we suffer from the common summer blister, in varying shades of course.

Excuses, Excuses

Seems I made several errors in last week's date list. I apologize profusely, and I'll try not to let it happen again. I won't mention any names, but please excuse me. Thank you.

Sugar And Spice Editors Of P&W

What are little girls made of? Sugar and spice and everything nice. But that isn't what our paper is made of this week. Nobody will ever know the true story of how the paper got out co-ed week. This week has been one of mass confusion with Fredda and Barbara urging us to get the articles in.

I know the boys are expecting us to turn out a style issue or a romantic novel, but we have a surprise in store for them. We can be as newsy and as original though not as cut and dried as they.

Of course there will be all of the usual jibes from the boys about our articles but since we are such good sports we will laugh it off. It's odd that the boys who make so much fun about the paper seem to have stayed around the office this week while we were working. Surely there must be something interesting to attract so much attention.

So what are little girls made of this week? Ideas, complaints, and printer's ink—that's what little girls are made of.

Spring Is Here Elections Appear

Yep, once again the grass is green, the sky is blue, and S.E.B. elections are just around the corner.

Now there are numerous types of hair-pulling, nerve-racking elections. We read about this election for president, or that election for governor, but the elections of all elections are those which occur at our tiny, free arts college. Colorful banners float in the air, convincing posters decorate the trees, and hopeful smiles adorn the candidates' faces. Everybody hustles and bustles to convince everybody else that "so and so is the man for the job."

Slogans are created overnight and They're heard for days on end.

Recital Of Songs Presented By McCools Thrills Audience

By Mrs. Magnolia Coullet

The recital of songs presented by Evelyn Ames and Charles McCool in Bailey Junior High School Auditorium on last Thursday evening was one of the most pleasant musical events of this season.

Both artists are experienced performers and were friendly and at ease on the stage which established at once a sympathetic and cordial response in the audience.

The program which consisted of numbers from widely different periods was fresh in content, varying in mood from the serious to the playful, from the deeply religious to the frivolous, from operatic duets in the grand manner to an entrancing number accompanied by an actual bit of waltzing on the stage by the artists.

The repertoire for the combined voices of tenor and contralto is a limited one and the blending of these two voices is not the most usual, but these two singers were exceptionally successful both in their choice of duets and in their presentation of them. Each sang with complete understanding and mastery and with the utmost deference to the skill and cooperation of the other, and the result was a beautiful combination of technique and tone. Outstanding among the duets were "Lord, My Trust is in Thee" by Schutz; "Spring" by Fiske and "Si la Stanchezza M'Opprime, O Figlio" from "Il Trovatore."

Among the solos were many not

The All-Important Day arrives and to the polls Millsaps students hop! Then comes the wait. Some calmly hang around, while others, wild-eyed and distracted, stand up to their knees in chewed-off fingernails. When the ballots have been counted and the winners' names announced, S. E. B. elections are over until another year.

New officers began striving to fill the shoes of "old hands." And They're heard for days on end. a lot of fun and experience have familiar to the average listener—a fact which gave an added anticipation as each number was presented. Some were freely dissonant, some were in more familiar harmonic arrangement, but all were delivered in wonderfully sustained lines where such was called for and with a wide range of color and warmth at all times.

Mrs. McCool, with her singing of "Lord What Thou Wilt Shall Be My Pleasure" by Bach, clearly impressed her audience with her evident sincerity as well as with her dramatic and tonal artistry. Then she charmed them with her rollicking interpretation of "The Green Dog" by Kingsley.

Charles McCool with his clear and limpid tenor voice sang Mozart's "O Image, Angel-like and Fair" from the "The Magic Flute" with the purity of tone and seeming effortlessness which this composer always demands, and then demonstrated further flexibility by singing just as effortlessly four modern number of variable rhythms, moods, and character.

This delightful program was brought to a close with a medley of tunes, "All About Love" from Broadway musicals, which completely captivated the audience who recalled the singers repeatedly for encores.

Edith McDaniel gave brilliant and sensitive accompaniments to all the numbers and thus the entire program was an entertaining, instructive, and thoroughly integrated performance.

Sports Views

By Lucy Robinson

Since the girls are putting out this week's edition of the Purple and White, I'm going to take full advantage of the feminine prerogative to view the news subjectively. We, the females of the species, are supposed to be "subjective, biased, narrow-minded, and opinionated" even when it comes to sports, about which we know so little. So here goes with what one girl could round up in the category of sports.

Tennis fans — and there should be quite a lot of them as Miss Sain is currently teaching five tennis classes — will be delighted to know that two new tennis nets are up. If you're not an ardent tennis lover, you probably didn't even notice the sticks that were used to prop up the old nets or the many extra holes in said nets. To date there are three courts — we're hoping that before long something new in the way of tennis courts will be added.

For the less actively inclined student, shuffleboards are available. One is in the little valley by Sullivan Harrell; the other between Founders and Whitworth. This game can be fascinating for the skillful player and fun, even for those of us who aren't exactly skilled in the art of shuffleboard. The equipment is available at any hour of the day or night. Those who play in the day usually make higher scores than those who play at night.

Spring seems to have brought out more golfers. The golf-course has been fairly crowded lately. This is another sport whose facilities are available to students at all times (except Sunday). I'm told those who play at night have higher scores than those who play during the day.

Play Day, sponsored by the "M" Club and the Majorette Club, has been set for May 11. It promises to be a day full of fun for both students and faculty.

Mrs. Bobby Wilson, a graduate of the University of Mississippi, will teach girls' physical education here at Millsaps this summer. Mrs. Wilson, presently a coach at Canton, will teach courses in golf, tennis, and elementary physical education. Miss Sain, the current physical education instructor, plans to do graduate work this summer and return to Millsaps in the fall.

Girl's Intramurals Feature Softball

Girl's softball is underway. Mary Alice Shields, Nell Marie Vaughan, Sybil Foy, and Molly Lawson are the captains of the four teams. Games are scheduled Monday through Thursday at 4:30 for the next three weeks. These games are played on the practice football field and are open to the public.

The softball series winds up the girl's intramural program for the year. At the close of the season, the Majorette Club will have a picnic honoring the winners in all the various intramural sports.

Millsaps Tennis Team Victorious In Tournaments

Congratulations are in order for the Millsaps tennis team. The boys have won all their matches except one; that one was lost to Ole Miss and played at Oxford.

The team is composed of seven players. Powers Moore plays Number One position in singles and in doubles. Powers is a Kappa Sig and has participated in the intramural program. He also played tennis in high school.

The Number Two position in singles and in doubles is held by Willard Leggett, Lambda Chi from Meridian. Willard has been active in intramurals and has played tennis both in high school and at Meridian Junior College.

William James, a junior, fills the Number Three spot in singles and Number One in doubles. He played tennis last year.

Fred Abraham plays Number Four singles and Number Two doubles. He has been on nearly all the Pikes' intramural teams.

The Number Five singles position is held by Jim McCormick, who plays Number Three doubles. He's a freshman and has participated with the Lambda Chi's in intramurals.

Charles Cooper plays Number Six singles. A freshman from Greenwood, he played tennis in high school. He is active with the Sigs in intramurals.

George Hunt, Number Three man in doubles, was on the tennis team last year. He is a Pike participant in intramurals.

Delta State Defeated

Tuesday, April 20, Millsaps defeated Delta State here in a closely played match, 5-4. In the singles, Powers lost; Willard won; Bill lost; Fred won; Jimmy won; Cooper won.

In the doubles, Bill and Powers lost; Willard and Fred lost; George and Jimmy won.

Sunday afternoon the tennis team left for Delta State to enter the State Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament. Teams from Ole Miss, Delta State, Mississippi College, State, Southern, and Millsaps competed. Games were played Monday and Tuesday.

Choose Wisely— They're Your Officers

SEB is now in the process of reorganizing student government. If the best possible results are to be obtained, the cooperation of each member of the student body is vitally necessary.

As usual an excellent slate of candidates for student body officers has been nominated by SEB. Fast and furious campaigns have begun and, for the most part, sides have already been taken. Again social groups have "silently" pledged their support in return for equal patronage to their candidate. For the most part, individual qualifications have been hidden under the cloak of group identification. Is this the proper attitude to take? Is this the proper training for our future roles as citizens of our city, county, state, nation—the world?

On many campuses of our country the social groups completely run the student government. In recent years this problem has not been as prominent at Millsaps College. Approximately half of the students are members of Greek letter organizations. Social groups certainly add to every phase of student life. They are important, but think what might become of the little school spirit we now have if the student body were run only by this part of the student life. The privilege and duty to vote lies on EVERY student at Millsaps College.

Last year 85% of the student body voted in the SEB elections. That was an increase of 4% over 1953. Why can't 100% of the student body vote this year? The polls are open from 8:00 a.m. to 2:00. Most students go through Murrah Hall sometime between these hours on Tuesday. It takes only a little effort to cast your ballot. You may have to wait in line a few minutes, but the student who doesn't vote has little or no right to criticise the winning candidates or the student government. The student who takes an interest in his school, its elections, sports, and the activities it offers gets much more from his college education. School spirit, not just the type that should be shown at football games and other athletic contests, is a vital factor which will contribute greatly to the values gained from a college education.

In this issue of the Purple and White you will find a statement from each candidate, along with his or her qualifications for each of the particular offices for which the individual is running. We try to be impartial in the presentation of each candidate; that is the only fair way to present them to the students. This campus is small enough for each student to meet the candidates, talk to them, and be familiar with their platforms. Read their qualifications, know the individuals, and by all means, VOTE!!!

Parking - Still A Problem

The parking situation on this campus is a critical problem. Several times the Purple and White has published notices stating that no parking would be allowed on the drive in front of Burton Hall because of the traffic danger. The warning that tickets would be given to the offenders was issued. Whether or not that rule has been enforced by the giving of tickets is another question. But the fact remains that the students are not cooperating.

The rule was made for the safety of Millsaps students and others passing through the campus. The recent wreck that occurred in front of Burton Hall should be sufficient proof that precautions should be taken. Cars parked in the no-parking zone contributed to the cause of that accident.

The location of the cafeteria in relation to available parking space is very poor. With the successful completion of the Million for Millsaps Campaign, the building of a new cafeteria will be possible. The new building and its location will solve this problem, we hope.

Until this becomes a reality, the cooperation of every student who drives a car is necessary. Parking in front of the Christian Center will mean having farther to walk to get to the cafeteria, but it might prevent your receiving a traffic ticket or your car getting a fender smashed.

BOBASHELA! A Job Well Done!

For the first time in MANY years, the Bobashela has come out on time. In fact, for many students, it would seem to be the first time in the history of Millsaps College. A little questioning revealed that this supposition is not at all true.

Little is known regarding the period before 1920; but during the 20's the annual, as a rule came out on the date set aside for the issue. The 30's marked a ten-year period in which the Bobashela seldom made its appearance before the year's graduation exercises. Shortages of materials during World War II contributed to the delay during the 40's. The editions of the early 50's owe their late distribution to—? Nineteen-hundred fifty-four will be recorded in the records of our school and the minds of many students and faculty members as a red-letter day!

The entire Bobashela staff—all have worked many long hours in order to get your annual to you while you're still interested. The department heads have struggled to compile the material and have had numerous worries over the persistent deadlines. The adds, the cuts, and the information have not just leaped into place.

Their job has not been an easy one. The Bobashela has long been known as "last year's records". The 1954 annual coming out for the class of '54, an old precedent has been broken. No longer can the Bobashela be the target for unscrupulous and sarcastic remarks! This year's staff has proved "It can be done!"

Congratulations to the 1954 Bobashela staff! And a special bouquet to the editor, the assistant editor, the business manager, and the assistant business manager. You truly have a job well done!

What Price Education?

(From the Carroll News, John Carroll University, Ohio)

Education is not a commodity. Not being material, it cannot be paid for.

It is sometimes easy to lose sight of this fact among the various charges and fees connected with acquisition of an education, but its disregard leads to a loss of perspective and purpose.

When you buy coal, you pay by the ton—the more you get, the more you pay. But when you "buy" education, you pay one fee—an entrance fee . . . The student who gets the most from his education and the one who gets the least pay the same rate.

This means that a student's education is entirely up to himself. For his tuition he receives access to teachers and to facilities—not an education but the chance to gain an education.

Education is an unending process. Classes, extra-curricular activities, outside reading, social events—all can be made part of an education. Payment of fees confers the right to all of these. Their use is up to the individual.

OPINION POLL

Opinion Favors Girl P&W Editor

In this week's opinion poll, Millsaps students and faculty members were asked their opinions on the question "Do you think a girl would make a good editor of the Purple and White?" The following answers were received.

Doctor Priddy: "Why not?"

Terry Hayward: "If the girl has the ability and perseverance to carry through the job of editor, I'm all for her. However, this job requires an ability to take adverse criticism gracefully, still maintaining balance and perspective. Rare indeed is the individual who can do so. My opinion is that a man is better equipped to handle this difficult job."

Lucy Robinson: "It doesn't matter if the editor is a girl or not just as long as she can do a good job."

Shirley Anderson: "Yes, I do. If a girl has the ability and talent, I don't see why she wouldn't do as good a job as a boy."

Doctor Moore: "Yes, we have had many girls as editor of the paper and the annual who have done exceptional jobs. Yes, very definitely."

Walter Ely: "Definitely, yes. A qualified girl can handle it as well as a qualified boy. It might be well to have the feminist viewpoint on certain issues."

R. L. McCarter: "Very definitely yes! There are several girls on this campus capable of editing the Purple and White creditably.

I believe that the election of a girl as editor would tend to improve the quality of the newspaper because of the male-female competition for the editorship which I believe would ensue. I feel, too, that I have been took advantage of by a loaded question."

Theresa Terry: "Certainly. It seems as if girls hold most of the jobs on the campus which require work. I was very disappointed that a girl was not put up for president of the student body."

Martha Ann Selby: "Yes, definitely so. I think we have girls at Millsaps who are just as outstanding as boys are."

Sandra Weir: "I think so; I've never seen any reason why a girl shouldn't be editor. They are just as intelligent as the boys are."

Jim Livesay: "I see no reason why a member of the fairer sex couldn't do a very acceptable job as editor. I have every reason to believe that our coeds have the same vision, loyalty, and capability for independent thinking which has been characteristic of most of our male editors down through

Co-eds Canvass

By Mary Lynn Graves
And Helen Fay Head

Well, we made it! It seemed doubtful for a while; but after daily headaches and the addition of quite a few grey hairs, this edition has come out.

No longer will we beat out our chief and slave-driver—not for a week or two anyway. The entire staff will gladly welcome back R. L. McCarter next week.

Someone was using good psychology when the annual co-ed edition was first begun. There is no better means of educating the staff on the struggles of publishing a newspaper than to turn over the entire works to the girls for one week. We can truly say that our editor has accomplished his goal.

Thanks for the co-operation of the feminine part of the P&W staff. A special thanks to Fredda Shelton, Barbara Mae Jones, Lucy Robinson, and Suzanne Perry for working as department editors.

With sorrow we hear that this election has been marred by the defacing of campaign posters. It seems too much to expect good sportsmanship in politics.

Only a few days remain before the ballots are cast and counted. Most of the destruction has been done, but in this short remaining time can't we show that Millsaps has a higher quality student than the average college campus?

Last week's paper ran an editorial on the "social status" of our campus. As yet, we have not received any replies. We are still open for answers both for our own information and for the benefit of the student body as a whole.

The sales of STYLUS have not reached the expectation. This publication is for the students and must be supported by this group if it is to continue.

Last year the second semester issue was not printed for this same reason. We would hate to see STYLUS permanently discontinued.

Many favorable comments have been heard concerning the chapel programs for the past two weeks. We are greatly interested in this type program and feel that there should be more in the future. A possible addition to the presentation would be student panel members. Another suggestion is in the form of previously presented questions.

the years. Journalistic ability, intelligence, a healthy exposure to the spirit of Millsaps and an understanding of its mission would be requisites. If she has these, she would be able to equal the best of our long line of distinguished male editors.
